"THE NEW CHAMPION ?"

VELVETMEN WIN FROM GIRLS' TEAM 10 TO 7 IN NOVELTY BALL GAME

A capacity crowd at the Martin ball park last night saw the New York Girls baseball team give a very charming and delightful exhibition of the national pastime as it is interpreted by the fair sex. The score, which is merely incidental to the game, was 10 to 7 in favor of the J. B. Martin club. It was a real treat for the local fans to see nine charming misses becomingly gowned in the regulation baseball uniform, which they set off to good advantage.

As to real baseball from the standpoint of the rabid fan, the game was not so appealing, for the men were far superior to the women as ballplayers. But at the same time they did remarkably well and deserve plenty of praise for the way they performed on the ball field. They demonstrated that baseball can be played very gracefully as well as with technique. The girls executed a number of brilliant plays with speed that would do credit to their brothers, but their batting and throwing was not as strong.

It was an interesting game and drew a large number of women to the game, more than half of those present being of the fair sex. The crowd was somewhat disappointed at not seeing woman umpire, which are as rare as the dodo-bird. The truth of the matter is that the young woman engaged to umpire had a bad case of stage-fright at the last minute and refused even Johnny Murphy with his pleading voice. She emphatically said that she was no female Hank Morin and that she couldn't stand the abuse like he did.

Even without the woman umpire it was a good game and one well worth watching. The girls played a nice game and the boys were extremely chivalrous toward the girls. The score:

FIRE DAMAGE OF $20,000 TO TRYSECK STORE AND STOCK

A fire of undetermined origin again caused a heavy property and stock loss to the general store of Peter Tryseck, of Pequot, early Thursday about 2:00 a. m. Mrs. Fred Baxter who lives two stores from the house discovered the fire. She then aroused her husband and her brother, James Daniels, who gave the alarm. Again the fire equipment of the J. B. Martin Co. of Pequot with their employes and local men in charge of Superintendent John Wylie and Master Mechanic Howe, of the Martin Co. did wonderful and expert work was done in stretching their line of hose from the mill to the store and in a short time after hooking up the hose the blaze was subdued. In the meantime Niagara Hose Co. of New London again responded to a call given them by First Selectman Ambrose Sullivan and aided the local firemen. The residence of Mr. Tryseck, which is close by, was badly scorched by the flames from the store and at one time it looked as though the house would catch fire. The local men carried all the owner's furniture to safety. It was later taken back into the house. The store was connected with the two tenement house that was burnt Monday morning, a fire which would have reached the store were it not for the timely arrival of the Niagara company. The store with stock was a total loss, estimated at $20,000, only partially covered by insurance.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

A Queer Use for a Tail

For everything there's some excuse;
It must have had or has a use.
—Old Mother Nature.

Whenever Peter Rabbit was over near the Smiling Pool he watched out for Starnose the Mole, the little furcoated chap who lived underground and had such a funny little nose. Once in a while Peter would get just a glimpse of him; but it was only a glimpse. You see, Starnose, while he does come out once in a while, doesn't stay out long. He doesn't want to run the risk of being picked up by a hungry enemy.

At last, however, it happened that Starnose had caught a very big worm and he had caught it on the surface. Instead of going down into the ground to eat it, he dragged it partly under a low-growing fern. Peter saw him do it. Peter said nothing until Starnose had finished that worm. Then Peter spoke.

"How do you do, Starnose?" said he.

"Just about as usual," just about as usual," squeaked Starnose rather impatiently.

"If you please," said Peter. "I wish you would tell me what use you have for a tail."

"Just as much use as you have for one and probably more," squeaked Starnose. "For my part, I don't see what use you have for your tail. Now I use my tail. I use it every day of my life. I use it the same as my cousin, Miner the Common Mole, uses his."

"I didn't know that he did use his," replied Peter. "If you say he does, I suppose he does; but I didn't know it. How does he use it?"

"In the same way that I use mine," squeaked Starnose with a throaty little chuckle at his own joke.

"But that doesn't tell me anything," persisted Peter. "Do you really and truly use your tail?"

"Of course I use it!" responded Starnose. "It is very handy to have something out in front of you when you are backing up."

"How can a tail be in front of you when it is behind you?" demanded Peter.

Starnose chuckled his squeaky little chuckle. "Well," said he, "when I am backing up in hurry, running backwards in one of my little tunnels, my tail is ahead in the direction I am going, isn't it?"

"How can a tail be in front of you when it is behind you?" demanded Peter

"I suppose so," said Peter somewhat doubtfully.

"Of course it is!" declared Starnose. "It is a sort of feeler, to tell me that the way is clear. Otherwise, when I am running backward I might run into trouble."

"I don't see what you want to run backward for anyway," said Peter.

"Because," replied Starnose, "it is the only way I can get back. There isn't room to run around in one of my tunnels. I've either got to keep digging or else back up until I reach a place where I can turn around. But with a handy coat like mine, and a useful tail to feel the way, it doesn't make much difference to me whether I am going forward or backward."

"What has your coat got to do with it?" demanded Peter.

"Everything," replied Starnose. "You see, my fur will lay either way. If it wouldn't, I would get it all rumpled up and in a terrible mess by running backward. Now when I start to go backward my fur just lays back the other way and doesn't get rumpled at all. It really is a very handy fur coat. Old Mother Nature has given every member of the Mole family."

"I should say so!" exclaimed Peter. "I wish I had one like it."

BANK $308,000 SHORT IN SAVINGS DEPARTMENT

CHEBOYGAN, Mich., June 11—(AP)—The First National Bank of Cheboygan closed its doors today with announcement of a $308,000 shortage in its savings department, the manager of which, Clyde Milliken, 44, committed suicide Monday night.

The bank was closed and placed in the hands of Henry F. Quinn, examiner, on orders of the board of directors, who issued a statement predicting that all depositors will be paid in full.

The savings department of the bank was unusually large for an institution of its size, the last statement reporting deposits of $366,880, compared to $230,100 subject to checks. The shortage was said to have resulted from peculations covering a period of several years.

DANIELSON

THIRTY-FOUR RECEIVE DIPLOMAS AT KILLINGLY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, June 12—In the customary setting and with the usually impressive and really inspirational ceremonies another class was graduated from Killingly high school tonight and 34 young people who have satisfactorily completed four years of study there were formally presented their diplomas by Supt. W. E. Parker of the town's schools and are now enrolled among the hundreds of graduates of the institution.

Rev. Frank B. Haggard of Hartford delivered the address, taking as his subject The Most Wonderful Thing in the World. The high school orchestra played at the opening of the exercises and the prayer was by Rev. Harding W. Gaylord of the Westfield Congregational church.

Again tonight as a feature of the exercises the annual award of the Killingly Woman's club scholarship fund was made by Miss Emma F. Pilling, representing the organization. And, as in the past, the name of the fortunate young person was not divulged until Miss Pilling made it known to the audience that filled the school auditorium to capacity. Again this year the award goes to Miss Susan Legendre, member of the class of 1929 and at present a highly successful student at Miss Wheelock's school in Boston. Her progress there has been so impressive as to again win for her the scholarship fund for the second time.

The program tonight included in addition to the features previously mentioned the singing of the cantata Columbus by a group of students, the playing of The Red Gnome by the high school orchestra and the singing of the class song, the words by Miss Anna Lillian Conklin of the graduating class, to the air of The Old Refrain. The exercises were brought to a close with benediction, pronounced by Rev. Mr. Gaylord.

The programs noted tonight that three members of the graduating class maintained an average of over 90 per cent for four years—Miss Madeline Teresa Fournier, in the classical course; Miss Henrietta Moline Thompson, in the scientific course, and Alfred Sheldon Ennis in the general course.

This afternoon with their relatives and their friends as their guests the graduates held their class day exercises in the school auditorium, and a delightful occasion it was.

After the opening selection by the high school orchestra, prayer was offered by Rev. C. J. Armstrong of the Baptist church. June Song was sung by a group of the class members—Misses Cecelia Baranski, Phyllis Kenworthy, Gladding Hutchins, Florence Loiselle and Mildred Meech. The address of welcome was delivered by the class president, Theodore Francis Hammett. The honor essays were by Alfred Sheldon Ennis, whose subject was Objectives of the Modern High school, and by Miss Madeline Teresa Fournier, whose topic was Education for Citizenship. The third essay of the afternoon was that of Miss Henrietta Moline Thompson and the subject, Athletics in School Life.

Henry Ricewasser gave the class history. The prophecy was by Miss Ruth Pilling Mellor and Clarke Brayton Wood and the class will was by Miss Mildred Elizabeth Meech. Presentation of the class gift was by Charles Samuel Dayton and the acceptance by Philip Whitman. The musical features of the programme included a violin solo by Herbert Motz, the singing of the class song and, just prior to the benediction by Rev. Mr. Armstrong, The Star Spangled Banner.

This year the class motto was Per Aidua Ad Alta, the class colors blue and gold, the class flower the blue iris.

The class roll is as follows:

Classical course—*Madeline Teresa Fournier, Mildred Elizabeth Meech, Ruth Pilling Mellor.

Commercial course—Cecelia Anna Baranski, Anna Lillian Conklin, Florence Mae Ellison, Janet Elizabeth Kennedy, Florence Eldea Loiselle, Loretta Rosalinde Mullen, Jeanette Nicholson, Gertrude Antoinette Schroll.

General course—Frederic Fremont Arnold, George Woodrow Couture, Ernest Thanallus Elfgren, *Alfred Sheldon Ennis, Helen Gladding Hutchins, Phyllis Irene Kenworthy, Monroe Olney Knight, Paul Allen Laurecka, Florence Edna Milliard, Herbert Motz, Kenneth Wade Nason, Edward Nielsen, Herbert Percival Parker, Robert Tyler Princeton, Eugene Parsons Shipps, Bernard Szafranski, Frank David Turner, Clarke Brayton Wood, Henry Ricewasser, Thomas Henry Ray.

Scientific course—Charles Samuel Dayton, Theodore Francis Hammett, *Henrietta Moline Thompson.

*Average over 90 for four years.

Pedro, alias President, deClark, Putnam colored man, faced the ordeal in the Killingly town court this morning of hearing his wife and their fourteen year old daughter accuse him before Deputy Judge Charles S. Francis of incest with the daughter, Mary, as the victim of his unthinkable assaults upon her, the first time when she was but eight years of age. The little girl made an excellent witness and the testimony of her mother was also convincing. The accused man grinned sardonically as Judge Francis found probable cause for holding him for the next term of the Windham county superior court having criminal jurisdiction, and fixed his bonds at $5,000. In default of this sum deClark was taken to the county jail at Brooklyn to await trial.

The case came into the Killingly court by reason of the fact that one of the assaults that the little girl accuses her father of having made upon her was committed in this town, somewhere in the vicinity of Quinebaug lake, back in April. She also charges two subsequent assaults, on a trip to Worcester.

FUNERAL

Charles H. Bacon

Many gathered at the home on Main street this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock to attend the funeral services for Charles H. Bacon, among them representatives of the official life of the town and borough, numbers of business men and members of fraternal organizations with which Mr. Bacon was affiliated.

The service was conducted by Rev. Harding W. Gaylord of the Westfield Congregational church. W. W. Reimer sang during the service. Burial was in Westfield cemetery, where the Pythian ritualistic burial service was conducted by Rev. William Swainson of Dayville, as prelate. Honorary bearers were F. A. Jacobs, Abner S. Young, Oliver P. Bartlett, Frederick E. Bitgood, Dr. F. P. Todd and George O. Thomas. The active bearers were J. W. Gallup, C. E. Haynes, Arthur Chapdelaine, Frank E. Young, B. C. Hopkins and Alton Eldridge. A delegation was in attendance from Orient lodge, K. of P. and from the Pythian Sisters. A. F. Wood was in charge of the arrangements.

Today the body of Eugene B. Smith, who died yesterday in a Providence hospital, was brought here to A. F. Wood's funeral home. Mr. Smith was born in the neighboring town of Foster and lived in that town, where he was engaged as a farmer, practically all of his life. Mr. Smith leaves a son, Jesse, of East Killingly, and two daughters, Mrs. Sarah Hall and Mrs. Myrtis Brisson, both of Sterling.

Gift From N. D. Prince

Incident to the commencement exercises Principal Ernest R. Warren of Killingly high school announced today the receipt of a letter from Nathan D. Prince, president of the Hartford-Connecticut Trust company, formerly resident here, a gift of money from three unnamed alumni of the school. This money is to be added to the public speaking contest fund of the school, making the fund $500.

From the interest on this sum three prizes will be offered each year for those who show the greatest proficiency in declamation contests at the school. The first prize is to be $10, the second prize $5.00, the third prize $2.50. It is believed these prizes will stimulate students to greater effort along public speaking lines, and incidentally assist them in learning how to speak before an audience with the grace and charm that is such a great aid to the presentation of facts or the discussion of any subject.

Up to now the fund, started by the class of 1900 on the 25th anniversary of its graduation and later added to by the class of 1901, has been $160. Such income from the fund as is not used for awards each year will be added to the principal.

County Agent Raymond E. Wing is giving notice to members of the Windham County Vegetable Growers' association that an interesting field trip has been arranged for Monday and Tuesday of next week by the State Vegetable Growers' association.

The trip will take the growers to Seekonk, Mass., where the farm of H. F. Thompson will be visited, during Monday afternoon. He grows a great variety of crops and successfully conducts a roadside stand. On Tuesday the Governor Dyer market will be visited and then the farm of Stanley Burney, who is a wholesale vegetable grower, having many acres of asparagus, melons, squash, sweet corn, lima beans, egg plant and other crops.

The Danielson Rotary club wishes to purchase a good second-hand piano. See Wm. Sangster at Conn. Light and Power Co. office.—Adv.

Secretary L. Edwin Hill of the Windham County Y. M. C. A., will go to Camp Woodstock at Black Pond in Woodstock June 25, for the opening of the camping season there.

Miss Harriet A. Beetcher is at her home, Canterbury Manor, in Brooklyn for the summer season.

A surprise party was arranged by her co-workers in the office of the Connecticut Light and Power company for Miss Grace O'Connell at her home on Main street Wednesday evening.

Victor Anderson of Broad street was among the considerable number of persons who were in New York tonight to see the Sharkey-Schmeling battle.

Sidney P. Marland has been re-elected president of the Killingly High School Alumni association. Other officers for the ensuing year are: Miss Beatrice Maynard, vice-president; Miss Ruth Fiske, secretary-treasurer; Gordon Cunneen, Franklin D. Crosby, Miss Flora Keech and Miss Mary Walsh, executive committee.

Remarkable 2-day sale of hosiery, as detailed elsewhere on this page at the Keech Department store. Sale opens Friday.—Adv.

It is understood that A. T. J. Clark, prominent resident of Canterbury, will be a candidate for the republican nomination for senator in the 29th senatorial district, which in addition to Canterbury includes eight other towns in the southern section of Windham county. Mr. Clark has represented Canterbury in the legislature during four sessions.

Grammar school pupils, their year's school work practically completed, were taking home today various things they have had in school for convenience sake during the long months of study, for the eighth grade pupils graduation comes on Friday.

WAUREGAN

The promotional exercises of Wauregan grammar school were held at the Company hall, Wednesday evening. The hall was decorated in the class colors, green and silver. The motto, "Not at the top, but climbing," was displayed above the platform. The graduates entered the hall as the Stein Song was played by Leach's orchestra, and marshaled by Adel Greenstein, 5 years old, and an exceptional musician. Following the invocation by Rev. William Williams, Amelia Wallow gave the address of welcome; Warwick Mercer an essay on "Our Government"; Joseph Wallow the class prophecy; Max Fesik the class will, and Loreen Bowden the farewell address. Led by Miss Germaine Bouvier, the school music supervisor, the entire school sang "Stars of the Summer Night" and "Daybreak," with a double quartette, Amelia Wallow, Sophie Staskivich, Loretta Beauregard, Loreen Bowden (sopranos); Max Fesik, Joseph Wallow, Warwick Mercier, Stanley Bobinski (altos), singing "Summer." The orchestra interspersed the programme with selections. Diplomas were presented by Superintendent John L. Chapman, who gave an excellent address. Daniel A. Smith, chairman of the town school committee, and Dr. Bouvier were platform guests; also John Goven, local member of the committee. Warwick Mercer admirably conducted the school songs on the piano. Principal Leon Rockwell, Miss Agnes Picard and Miss Hattie Geer were congratulated on the exercises, so admirably carried out.

Miss Madelaine Ruff, of Ridgefield Hill, N. J., is spending a week as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Filkins, Grove street.

Among the out-of-town guests at-tending the grammar school exercises were Miss May Leary, of Plainville, Conn., and Miss Gertrude Tupper, of Princeton, Maine. Miss Tupper is a former parishioner of Rev. W. Williams, and is at present teaching at Plainville.

At the Children's Day exercises Sunday last, Elnora Carpenter received a gold pin for a two-year record of perfect attendance; Caroline Williams received a similar reward, and Loreen Bowden a silver pin for one year's perfect attendance.

A REPORT THAT LINKS DAWES, REED AND VARE

EASTON, Pa., June 6—(AP)—The Easton Express, in a special despatch from Philadelphia this afternoon predicts the appointment of Senator David Reed to the court of St. James in the event of the resignation of General Dawes, and the appointment of William S. Vare to succeed Reed in the senate. The Express despatch says:

"Linked with persistent rumors coming out of London to the effect that General Charles G. Dawes is about to resign the ambassadorship to the court of St. James, is an equally persistent rumor in the inner circles of the republican organization here that Senator David Reed will be appointed to the London post.

"If Reed is picked by President Hoover to go to London, organization leaders are quoted as saying that Gov. John S. Fisher will appoint William S. Vare to the vacancy that will be created in the senate."

PUTNAM

JOSEPH ZIEMBA ARRESTED ON ARSON CHARGE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, June 12.—On Nov. 29, 1929, the barn on the border line farm of Joseph Ziemba of Dudley was burned to the ground by a fire which at the time appeared to be a blaze of incendiary origin. The mysterious circumstances surrounding the fire were called to the attention of the state police at the Danielson barracks and throughout the winter months State Officer Royal V. Scranton was engaged in the investigation of its origin. The months he spent in gathering up threads of evidence, on Wednesday resulted in the arrest of Ziemba on a charge of arson. Through the investigation, Officer Scranton learned that the owner of the property was alleged to have kindled the fire in order that he might collect insurance, with which it was heavily covered.

He was arraigned before Justice P. P. Tourtellotte in the town court of Thompson at North Grosvenordale this morning, charged with arson. He denied the allegation and with the finding of probable cause by Justice Tourtellotte, Ziemba was ordered bound over on bonds of $1,500 for trial at the September session of superior court. He was committed to the county jail at Brooklyn in default of the bonds. The home of Ziemba and much of his property is located over the line in Dudley, Mass., while the barn burned to the ground by his alleged act is situated a few feet over the border line, in Quinebaug, Conn.

Nathan D. Prince of Danielson and Hartford and well known in this city where he is a director of a local bank, has accepted the chairmanship of a free bed fund now being instituted to provide for care of aged and infirm needy people at the Haven home in Abington, according to Mrs. Susan Griggs, superintendent of the home. The subscription campaign in connection with the fund has already been launched and the list is headed by Mrs. T. Morris Murray of Boston and "Gwen Careg" farm, Abington, which has made a substantial contribution.

Ralph E. Thurston, general manager of the Putnam plant of the Connecticut Light and Power company, who is chief of the fire department and chairman of the board of water commissioners, in each capacity contributes two items of interest to the day's news today.

As far as the people of Putnam are concerned in the matter of water, it need not rain another drop this summer, the chief said, when asked about the extent of the city's water supply this afternoon. Putnam's supply of water for drinking purposes, the chief intimated, is inexhaustible, as it comes from the spring-fed lake at Roseland park in South Woodstock. In past years the water department during the summer time faced a pumping supply problem, but since additional filter beds were installed at the pumping station in Harrisville early this year, this problem has been eliminated. A water supply adequate for home use and fire protection is always available now.

As chairman of the board of water commissioners, Chief Thurston inferred that metal work being done on the million-gallon water storage tank on Oak hill would be completed by Saturday of this week, provided additional rain does not intercede to hamper progress.

And as chief of the fire department, Chief Thurston late this afternoon reported that it appears as though the fire record this week will go unblemished since not a single alarm has been recorded since Sunday. Chief Thurston was highly elated over this fact, since it is his ambition to establish a new fire record this year.

The absence of a quorum at the meeting of the members of the town school committee Tuesday evening necessitated the postponement of the session until a later date, Superintendent of School Farrin said today.

George R. Frink, who has been a patient at the Day Kimball hospital for the past week, recovering from a recent operation, was discharged today and returned to his home in South Woodstock.

It was announced this morning by Raymond E. Wing, county agent of the Windham County Farmers' association, that the annual field trip of the State Vegetable Growers' association would be held on June 16 and 17. A place to be visited on the trip will be the farm of H. F. Thompson, Seekonk, Mass. Mr. Thompson is a former professor of vegetable gardening at the Massachusetts Agricultural Experiment station. The visit to this farm will be made on Monday afternoon, June 16. Windham county growers planning to take part in the field trip are requested to communicate with County Agent Wing concerning transportation.

Of interest is the announcement by Mrs. Mary Eugbee Bishop, a member of the Elizabeth Porter Putnam chapter, D. A. R., that among sites of historical importance in the vicinity of Putnam, recently brought to the attention of the historian of the local chapter is the one-time house of James McNeil Whistler, foremost of America's painters, which is located in Pomfret on the Putnam-Hartford pike road.

Whistler's Pomfret home, one of the more beautiful residences in the Pomfret summer colony of homes, is now the rectory of the Church of the Most Holy Trinity and it is occupied by Rev. Frederick M. Cohoian, pastor of the church. The late Rev. J. J. Elty, for many years pastor of the Pomfret church, and an expert gardener, preserved the beauty of the Whistler home by his work in the flower gardens there and in the summer time when his efforts blossomed forth in the numerous gardens, hundreds of tourists mindful of the significance in America's history of the snow-white house of simple architectural lines, stopped at the home of the priest, where Whistler once drew his brush across canvases to produce his wonderful works of art which occupy prominent spots in many of the world-famous galleries, to walk among the blooming flowers that filled the air with their aroma of fragrance.

Rev. George J. Donahue, pastor of St. Mary's church in Greeneville, well known among the clergymen-authors, wrote several of his works while pastor of the Church of the Holy Trinity and resident of the Whistler house. The best known of Rev. Father Donahue's books written while at Pomfret is his volume, "Cardinal Newman."

Mrs. Bishop said today that a description of the Whistler home is being compiled and, when complete, will be sent to Washington for listing in the National D. A. R. library, there.

KEEPING CAULIFLOWER SNOW WHITE

Many gardeners have given up raising cauliflower in the home garden because they find that the cauliflower in the market has so much clearer and better complexion than those they raise at home. This need not be so with a little care. To bleach the heads and keep them that delightful creamy white that makes this vegetable so tempting in appearance, it is necessary to start as soon as the head begins to take definite form to protect it from the sun. This is done by tying the outside leaves loosely together at their tips and watching the growth of the plant to see that the developing head is kept shaded.

In cooking, the snowy whiteness may be preserved or even made to appear whiter by proper methods. Too often the cauliflower is overcooked and becomes pink in color, losing its snowy whiteness. It must be blanched and cooked in an open vessel to remain white. Let it boil three minutes then plunge in cold water until thoroughly cool. Return to the boiling water and fifteen minutes of actual boiling will finish the task.

For early cauliflower it will be necessary to buy plants at this season to be sure of a good crop. Start seed for the later crop. The cauliflower has one resemblance to the radish, it makes a fast, quick growth in cool weather and is inclined to languish in hot weather. For this reason it should be started early to make its growth in the cooler spring months or after to make its growth in the cool fall months.

It is also necessary for the protection of the heads to slay the insect enemies with great thoroughness right at the start. These are the cabbage worm chiefly. Slugshot pyrox, or other arsenate of lead mixtures will get them and should be applied before the heads start.

Care must be used in later applications not to get the spray upon the "curd" or white portion of the cauliflower.

There is no inherent difficulty in raising cauliflower. They require exactly the same treatment as cabbages with the exception of caring for the blanching of the heads so that they will be white and protected from disfigurement by insects.

NITRATE OF SODA A SLOW STARTERS' STIMULANT

Rapid growth in a garden is a sign of health and a promise of well-flavored vegetables. It is the slow-growing lettuce that becomes embittered. It is the turnip with unfavorable environment in its youth that becomes tough, woody and strong in taste. Even in well-fertilized gardens, a stimulant is something needed. Such a stimulant is nitrate of soda, applied between the growing rows. Gardeners call this a side-dressing. The nitrate of soda may be worked lightly into the ground, between the rows, at the rate of a pound or less to a hundred feet of row. If you want a really quick pick-up apply it dissolved, a good rounded teaspoonful to a gallon of water. It is a pretty sick plant that won't take notice when that solution strikes its roots. Nitrate of soda should never be allowed to strike the leaves. It burns them.

Side dressings of this sort are most commonly used on leaf crops; that is, lettuce, spinach, chard, celery, early cabbage and so forth. It is good, too, on any transplanted thing or on any crop which for some reason has been checked in growth.

EARLY SPRAYS FOR TOMATOES ADVISED

Healthier plants and more fruit will be the reward for early spraying of tomatoes for protection against the leaf spot disease which, if allowed to go unchecked, causes the leaves to drop prematurely with an accompanying loss in yield, says Dr. James G. Horsfall, plant disease specialist at the New York state experiment station at Geneva.

The leaf spot disease usually starts in the plant bed before the young plants are set in the field, but is not recognized until after the plants are set out, says Dr. Horsfall. Spraying the young plants in the greenhouse or cold frame with bordeaux mixture is recommended, therefore, as a timely and effective means of controling the disease satisfactorily.

"Two applications of a 2-4-50 bordeaux mixture, one about two weeks before transplanting and the second just at transplanting time, generally insure protection against infection and enable the plants to become well established in the field before infections from other sources can take effect," says Dr. Horsfall.

"These two early sprayings in the plant bed will go far toward giving commercial control of leaf spot. Subsequent spraying in the field, especially if made in the latter part of the season, tends to delay maturity, and hence is undesirable when the disease can be controlled fairly satisfactorily without it. If leaf spot becomes prevalent in the field early in the season, however, an application of bordeaux mixture should be made to check the disease."

ARE MAY AND JUNE CHICKS MONEY MAKERS?

Years ago, May and June chicks were "natural." We couldn't raise them earlier because we couldn't get them "out-of-doors." Cod liver oil and advanced nutritional knowledge have bridged this gap, so they can now be raised indoors, early and more artificially. The late chick has become out of fashion, out of date. Every chick has to be "early" and every argument possible has been marshalled out and into line against late chicks.

However, reason dictates this fact May and June hatched chicks will be money makers in November if they are given proper care, proper environment, proper feed and proper feeding. Perhaps those who are prejudiced against "warm weather" chicks will ask what is meant by a "program of proper care, environment, proper feed and feeding." Such general terms might well be questioned.

Proper care of late chicks means giving them the same care that is now given early chicks. Is that asking too much? Proper care consists of a plan of reasonable sanitation as to cleaning the house, cleaning drinking fountains, fresh water, dry litter and above all else, regular periodic attention to a particular program of care. Progressive feed manufacturers and agricultural colleges outline programs for the care of chicks. Adopt one of these plans and follow it religiously. Nothing is ever successfully raised without care no matter the season!

Proper environment of late chicks includes sufficient room with plenty of fresh air so they will not crowd and sweat at night, arrange separate from older chickens and clean new ground with shade. A field of half grown corn will provide shade and frequent cultivation will keep the ground clean.

Summer time offers inexpensive and ideal environment factors that are far superior to the confinement necessary to early brooding. All other things being equal, range raised chicks will be hardier than those reared in confinement.

Proper feed means feeding throughout the summer a quality growing mash and scratch feed, both containing a good variety of ingredients to supply all a growing bird requires for ideal development. Any concoction of a mash ration, any mixture of poor quality scratch grains will not do the job.

The soundest test of a good poultryman is whether or not he can raise a good batch of pullets year in and year out consistently. All of those who are poultrymen by this test are very particular about their rations, usually feeding the highest quality commercial rations on the market.

A May or June chick, fed a high quality mash and scratch ration will be full-grown, solid, well-feathered, vigorous in health, and laying marketable eggs in November. But it can't be done without good feed. It can't be done by feeding growing mash half of the summer and allowing the pullets to coast down hill during the other half.

Given proper care, environment, and feed, there still remains proper feeding. A good feed can be made ineffective by the use of poor feeding judgment. Two dairymen alternately feeding the same herd of cows the same feed vary in the amount of milk they produce. The variable factor is neither the cows nor the feed, but the actual feeding. Likewise with poultry, feeding practice is vital. A major demand is for a regular schedule of feeding. Again, many of the large progressive feed concerns and agricultural colleges outline plans of feeding, and it is a wise act indeed to adopt and follow one of these tested plans.

Yes, with proper care, environment, feed and feeding, May and June hatched pullets will be money makers in November.

ALL BEEKEEPERS MAY GRADE HONEY SAYS HAMBLETON

Many beekeepers mistakenly believe that they are forbidden to use the United States Standard Grades for honey unless they have special permission or unless a federal agent has inspected and graded their honey, says James I. Hambleton of the bureau of entomology, U. S. department of agriculture.

"It should be clearly understood," says Mr. Hambleton, "that anyone who complies with the U. S. grading rules for honey is entitled to use the United States grades and grading stamp. He may use the official grading stamps or may incorporate the stamp into his own label if he so wishes." A circular has been issued suggesting a way in which this can be done. This will be sent with other information on grading, upon application to the Division of Bee Culture Investigations, Bureau of Entomology, U. S. department of agriculture, Washington, D. C.

The process of grading extracted honey is simple, Mr. Hambleton says. The honey must be of good flavor, of proper density, and as clean as specified for the grade. When packed in opaque containers, the color of the honey must be marked on the grade label. Most beekeepers may have samples of the honey graded as to color, free of charge, by sending a 2-ounce sample to the state division of markets, the state specialist in beekeeping; or to the State Agricultural college.

USING THE CORNSTALKS

(Written Specially For The Bulletin)

I sometimes wonder what would happen if the Federated Daughters of Zion and the Amalgamated Mentors of Mortals and the Society for the Prevention of Pip should combine to prohibit people who don't know anything about farming from writing about it.

In the course of that snoopiness which these and other superiorly minded guardians of our welfare find necessary, it is strange that this field has been so long overlooked. It has been estimated that the amount of white paper spoiled annually by these know-it-alls would be sufficient to paste over half the roadside advertisements between Westerly, R. I., and Waterloo, Iowa. And that the ink wasted would be ample, if collected, to give a New York city alderman a bath.

A recent writer in a popular science magazine waxes sarcastic over the "fortunes that farmers throw away." Notably in corn-stalks. He says: "Corn-stalks are America's biggest crop except hay. These corn-stalks, hoed, fertilized and saved from insects, the farmer throws away. Only the fact that this has always been done keeps sane people from laughing at the absurd spectacle of millions of farmers carefully raising corn-stalks and doing nothing with them."

Y-e-a-h?

It may, of course, be possible that there are farmers whose idea of farming is to ride back and forth across the landscape on gasoline-driven tractors, inadequately plowing thousands of unfertilized acres and then "throwing away" the corn-stalks, after the unremunerative crop of stinted ears has been gathered. We have evidence that there are so-called farmers in certain states who send their bull-calves to the U. S. senate instead of to the abattoirs where at least tallow and glue could be extracted from them. It won't do to deny that there are fools on farms as well as in congress. But it is doubtful if they're quite as numerous or as dumb.

Our non-agricultural but highly scientific critic reports that corn-stalks contain three important substances, lignin, pentosan, and cellulose. He quotes another scientific gent as stating that "more than 3,000 separate chemical materials can be produced" from these three. Among them is "furfural," a solvent increasingly demanded in chemical industries; paper, either for wrapping or printing purposes; wall-board to take the place of lumber; insulating material, etc.

Now, it may be interesting for such "farmers" as have been in the habit of "throwing away" their corn-stalks to know that they can sell them to "furfural" factories or paper-mills. But all the farmers I happen to know anything about are and always have been as sedulous to save their corn-stalks as their ear-corn. Some chop them up and store them in silos; some dry them and barn them as carefully as their timothy or clover. They make an important part of the dairy ration. Their actual money value in the milk and butter they produce is wholly incapable of figuring, but it can be said with safety that it is a thousand times greater than any sum the "furfural" or wall-board factories would pay.

Nor is this by any means all of it. The rejected portions of the stalks go back on the land to replace its exhausted humus and help it produce future crops.

Instead of being "thrown away" and wasted, practically every ounce of the corn-stalk crop is used,—and used to the best advantage,—on any thriftily managed farm. Even on the average "corn-belt" ranch, where they don't cut the stalks, but break the ears and leave the ravished stalks to the weather, they are usually broken over and plowed under, the following spring, thus making a certain amount of humus.

Just what this humus is and just what it does and just how it acts we dirt farmers don't profess to know, and the scientific gents haven't thought it worth their while to inquire. But those of us who have had to earn our rations by first raising them, have long known that it is the most important factor in crop-production. You can stimulate a jaded soil with chemical fertilizers, just as you can temporarily brace up a tired body with brandy or a failing heart with strychnine. But the farmer who should rely wholly upon chemical fertilizers, no matter how artfully compounded, to keep his acres "in good heart," would, sooner or later, find them unresponsive.

You may measure your nitrogen by the minim and your phosphorus by the grain and your potash by the carat, to fit the scientifically determined needs of your crop or the similarly determined lacks of your soil. It will work for a while. But, if you don't supplement them with humus, your land will eventually cake and blister and turn desert.

It's right there that one of the chief values of such so-called wastes as corn-stalks and straw comes in. Plowed under and left to decay in the soil, they return cent. per cent. to the farmer in the humus which they supply. They're worth more to him than any money which any chemical works or paper-mill could possibly afford to pay.

Of course, if his only interest is in getting money to pay the installment on his radio or auto, a dollar in cash is more important to him than two dollars in invested capital. If he doesn't care a hoot about his farm, except as a something to exploit, he naturally will sell his corn-stalks off it, just as short-sighted people used to sell their hay rather than feed it out. Later, they usually sold their farms and were lucky if their road didn't run over the hill to the poor-house.

David Rankin of Missouri is the only farmer I ever happened to hear of who became a millionaire through farming. He used to raise corn and clover in 20,000 acre patches. But he never sold a penny's worth of either, as grain or hay. He fed them out on his farms, and sold the beef or pork while he kept the roughage to renew the soil.

Our scientific critic sneers at the economic folly of farmers who "throw away" their corn-stalks. Why, I know farmers who raise, every year, hundreds of acres of corn solely for the stalks to fill their silos with. Corn-stalks are really their most important crop. They don't even bother to save the few ears which may chance to ripen. There are strains of corn carefully bred to make big, juicy, succulent stalkage, without regard to ears. There are big industries engaged in making silos to meet the demands from such farmers.

They are not "throwing fortunes away," in the language of our scientific critic. Instead, they are making much better and more practical use of their corn-stalks than in selling them off the farm to make "furfural" or wall-board.

Of course, the "personal equation" enters into this as into most other matters. A farmer who is too selfish to care what happens to his farm; one who is too short-sighted to see around the corner of next week; one who is slip-shod in practice may look on the opportunity to sell corn-stalks to some factory as a gift of fortune. Nickels clinking in his pocket mean more to him than dollars invested in better soil. He is one of those who are convinced that farming is played out, and usually loud in his demands that government do something about it.

There's no use denying that a whole lot of critters who are listed in the census as farmers aren't farmers; aren't fit to be called farmers; haven't in 'em the makin's of farmers. They're just about the sort of stuff for Iowa and Idaho and Nebraska to make U. S. senators of, sleazy, slack-woven, shoddy-filled and skimpy in pattern. They're quite capable of throwing away corn-stalks or anything else which they can't eat, drink, or wear at the moment. Some of them would leave their own heads on the pillows, mornings when they get up, if the ligaments of the neck weren't stronger than their own convictions. In the language of the stock-market, they are long on gab and short on gumption. They can out-wail the lamentations of Jeremiah in the ears of sympathetic sewing-societies, but can't somehow manage either hoe or hose when Paul wants help in planting or Apollos in watering.

In other words, they're misfits. They might have made creditable butchers or bankers or tragedians or traffic officers or baseball umpires. They might have shone brilliantly in a golf course "gallery" whose function, as I understand it, is to toddle along behind a player and point out his numerous mistakes and shortcomings to the accompanying galleristas.

They're no more fit to be farmers than Al Capone is to be a Sunday school treasurer. There aren't a great many of them, proportionately. But they're so durned noisy that they produce a wrong impression of their numbers and their importance. According to the old saying, it's the wheel that squeaks that gets the grease and they can cut-squeak any cart-wheel in central Sahara.

There's a good deal of waste in farming operations,—too much of it. But it isn't nearly so deplorable on farms which turn their corn-stalks into ensilage or stover or humus as on ranches where machinery rules supreme. The big tractor plow is faster and easier, but it does not do as good work as the hand plow. The machine seeder sows quicker, and wastes more seed. The harvester "combine" covers more ground in a day than 100 men, and leaves ungarnered more grain than 500 would pass over.

The genius who would invent a gang plow that would turn six furrows at a time, and every one better than the oxen or mules could turn one, would do a greater service to farming than seven "furfural" factories in charge of seven scientific adepts.

But neither one would greatly advantage the chap who is more given to farming with his mouth than with his hands and brains.

THE FARMER.

CLASS OF 76 GRADUATED FROM GRISWOLD SCHOOLS

The graduating exercises of the class of 1930 Griswold public schools were held in Finn Opera house Thursday evening. The class of 76 members was seated in a tier at the rear of the platform, while at either side sat the school committee, Chairman Earle E. Gilbert, James H. Shea and Attorney Richard Dudkowski, the speakers, Rev. G. F. Goodenough and Rev. E. E. Scates and Supt. Chester L. Howe. The platform was artistically decoated with ferns, roses, peonies and iris. On the proscenium arch were shields in the class colors, black and gold, bearing the class motto, Rowing, not Drifting on one, and Class of 1930 on the other. The program was opened with a selection by an orchestra of pupils organized only a few weeks ago under direction of Miss Alice Brown. The young artists were: Piano, Rollin Tripp; violin, Helen Glowacki; cornet, Louisa Nowakowski; trombone, Edwin Walczak; clarinet, Stanley Stadnicki; drum, John Danieluk; triangle, Marjorie MacLean; tambourine, Mary Parzych; harmonica, Benjamin Cholewa; harmonica, Edmond Gaska.

The invocation was offered by Rev. E. E. Scates and was followed by the Swan Song, sung by the class; Rollin Tripp being accompanist for the evening. The salutatory was given by Joseph Luty and Mary Parzych delivered the valedictory, both spoken with dignity and confidence. They were coached by Mrs. Eloise Johnson. The address to the graduates was by Rev. G. F. Goodenough, his theme, The Open Eye, the Hearing Ear and Understanding Heart. "These are in you," the speaker said, "as your contribution to your education. You cannot grow without them. A teacher can choose on what you exercise them, and by that expert help save you time, trouble and expense. An alert mind is more important than a full mind. Keenness of observation, discrimination of values, eagerness for progress and a practical use of what you already know are the real foundations of character and life."

Earle E. Gilbert, chairman of the school committee, presented the diplomas, the D. A. R. prizes and American Legion medals. The first prize of three dollars in American History, given by the D. A. R., went to Joseph Luty; the second two dollars, to Raymond Cathcart, both Riverside grammar school pupils. The American Legion medal for perfection in history for the girls went to Mary Korzek of Glasgo. For the boys, it was a tie between Joseph Luty of Riverside and Edward Sibitchy of Glasgo, and each received a medal. The class sang Lillies, Miss Margaret Sobery having charge of the singing. The program was interspersed with orchestra selections. During the intermission there was an orchestra number and a song, Twilight, by the class. The second half of the program was a class play, The Man Higher Up, a comedy in three acts. The cast was; Cecil Arlen Lewiston, of the high school graduating class, James Wakely; Jonathan Lewiston, his father, Lewis Gill; Mrs. Jonathan Lewiston, his mother, Agnes Connelly; Margaret Lewiston, his sister, Charlotte Albertine; Grandma Arlen, Mrs. Lewiston's mother, Rose Samboy; George Brock, Cecil's intimate friend, Napoleon Carroll; Dolly Perkins, Etta Shea. A New Start

I will start anew this morning with a higher, fairer creed;
I will cease to stand complaining of my ruthless neighbor's greed;
I will cease to sit repining while my duty's call is clear;
I will waste no moment whining, and my heart shall know no fear.

I will look sometimes about me for the things that merit praise;
I will search for hidden beauties that eluds the grumbler's gaze.
I will try to find contentment in the paths that I must tread;
I will cease to have resentment when another moves ahead.

I will not be swayed by envy when my rival's strength is shown;
I will not deny his merit, but I'll strive to prove my own;
I will try to see the beauty spread before me, rain or shine;
I will cease to preach your duty and be more concerned with mine.

—P. J. Coleman in the Apostle

CLOSING QUOTATIONS WERE LOWER IN IRREGULAR SESSION OF MARKET

NEW YORK, June 12—(AP)—Trading in stocks followed a speculative pattern today. Prices declined sufficiently in the forenoon to carry several important issues to new lows for the year, but recovered in the afternoon, only to relinquish part of the rally in late profit-taking. Closing quotations were in the main moderately lower.

The Young plan bonds, offered at 90, were said to have been well taken and commanded a premium of about a point when admitted to unlisted trading privileges. Money renewed at 3 per cent but dropped to 2 1-2 the lowest in more than two months, and was available outside as low as 2 per cent. Repayment of loans was substantial.

Two successive cuts of quarter cent each were made in the price of copper, bringing the figure down to 12 1-2 cents.

The weekly Federal Reserve statement disclosed a shrinkage of $35,000,000 in the total of credit outstanding and also a moderate decline in discounts. Holdings of government securities gained $25,000,000.

A survey of the stock list revealed that about 160 stocks had made new lows. In this connection, however, it was pointed out that the entire list is now not far from the year's bottom and that each successive decline may be expected to uncover a rather large number of fresh minimums. Among the issues breaking through their previous low levels were American Telephone, New York Central, Chrysler, Auburn Auto, Studebaker, Baltimore and Ohio, Chesapeake and Ohio, Lackawanna, Lambert, Simmons, Bethlehem Steel, Gillette, Union Carbide, Sears Roebuck and Pullman.

The fluctuations of the so-called pivotal stocks were within a range of 1 to 4 points. United States Steel, for example, got as low as 161, but the appearance of prompt support, apparently from the large banking interests which were reported to have placed large orders for the stock at that figure, caused a prompt retreat by the short interest and it rallied to 165, closing 2 points lower for a net loss of half a point.

American Telephone sold down to 215, but recovered to 218 1-2. At the closing price of 216 1-2 it was 1 1-2 below Wednesday's final quotation. American Can broke to 129, moved back to 135 and closed at 132 off 2 1-2. New York Central's minimum was 82 1-2, its high 168 and its closing price 167 1-2, up 1 3-4. Standard Oil of New Jersey broke below 70, finishing at 71 for a small net loss.

Commodities again declined. Wheat averaged about a cent and a half lower and corn eased fractionally.

PRIZE ESSAYS ON "JOHN MASON" BY MT. PLEASANT ST. SCHOOL PUPILS

Two pupils of Mt. Pleasant street school were the winners of the first and second prizes offered by Israel Putnam branch, No. 4 Sons of the American Revolution, both writing upon the assigned subject of "Major John Mason."

First Prize Essay

The first prize of $10 went to Michael Kudravetz, whose essay was as follows:

Major John Mason, a colonial military commander of Connecticut, was born in England about 1600. Nothing definite is known of him until he served as lieutenant under Sir Thomas Fairfax in the Netherlands.

It is thought that Mason was probably one of the first settlers of Dorchester, Mass., in 1630. It is known, however, that in 1632 he was engaged in an expedition to capture a band of pirates whose leader was known by the name of Dixey Bull Mason; spent two months trying to capture them, but he did not succeed. Later the pirates dispersed. For this work the General Court ordered ten pounds to be paid to him. He was then known as Lieutenant Mason, the title of captain being conferred upon him later.

As he had been trained in warfare he was appointed with other experienced military officers to select a site for fortifications in Boston harbor, and he himself was given charge of the erection of the works on Castle Island, one of the most important points. By this time so firmly had he established himself in the public confidence that in 1635 he was chosen representative from Dorchester.

Following the settlement of Windsor, the Connecticut settlements were threatened by the hostile Pequots, the most powerful and warlike of the New England tribes. Their principal forts and villages were at New London and Mystic. The Pequots were the terror of all the Indians, and a constant menace to the whites.

The number of murders committed by the Indians increased until the whites in Connecticut began to think they must leave their settlements.

Finally an expedition was ordered by the General Court to attack and destroy the Pequots. The command was given to Captain John Mason and the 90 men were taken from the three colonies of Hartford, Wethersfield and Windsor.

Mason started on his expedition the 10th of May, 1637, accompanied by Uncas with 70 of his warriors. On the 17th he arrived at Saybrook fort, where Captain John Underhill offered his service with 19 men. Mason sent 20 men back to protect Hartford, and sailed to Narragansett bay, hoping by this to make the Pequots think he had given up the plan to attack them.

He reached his destination on the evening of Saturday. The Sabbath was religiously observed on board their vessels. A strong wind kept them from landing so that it was not until the 24th that the little army consisting of 77 whites, with 60 Mohegans under Uncas and 200 Narragansetts, continued their march toward the Pequot fort. The next day, they were joined by other Indians, making in all about 500 men. Under the faithful guidance of Uncas and another chief they approached the Pequot fort, built of trees sharpened at the top.

They arrived about two hours before day at the foot of the hill upon which the Pequot fort stood. The Indians were afraid to go any farther and the little party of white men made the attack alone. In the fort about 700 of the dreaded Pequots slept soundly, thinking that the whites had given up the expedition.

Mason had planned to force an entrance at the weakest point and the men were about to swarm over the fence when a dog betrayed them. The Pequots, half asleep and taken completely by surprise, were quickly overcome. Mason ordered his men to burn the wigwams and fort, and with a blazing brand of wood, started the fire himself. Within an hour, 700 men, women and children perished. Only seven escaped to tell the tale. Two of the whites were killed, and a number wounded. Mason himself was nearly killed by the arrow of a young warrior.

On the way back from the Pequot river, the company fell in with and dispersed a party of Niantic Indians. From then on the Pequots were hunted down until the tribe was destroyed. In recognition of his success, an order was passed by the General Court at Hartford that Captain Mason should be a public military officer of the plantations of Connecticut with a salary of 40 pounds per year. This position he occupied until within two years of his death, a period of about 35 years. He had no high title. He is best known as captain, though later he was given the title, major.

In 1641 it was ordered that Major Mason should have 500 acres of land for himself and his heirs, and later an island was given to him in Mystic Bay, also 100 acres of upland and ten acres near Mystic.

In 1671 Mason gave to the Indians a tract of land of more than 4,000 acres, usually called "The Sequestered Land." In 1675, Joshua, son of Uncas, the Mohegan sachem, gave by will to Major John Mason and 15 others a tract of land containing Windham, Mansfield and Canterbury. These gifts show the high regard in which he was held by both the Indians and the whites.

In 1659, Mason and others settled Norwich, and here the last years of his life were spent. He continued to hold various political offices until his health became so poor that he was obliged to refuse all the positions offered. He died on the 30th day of January, 1672, in the 72nd year of his age.

Now a monument in the first burying ground, just off the road from Norwich Town to Bean Hill, stands on the place where Major Mason lies buried. On it is carved the inscription, "Erected A. D. 1889 by the State of Connecticut to commemorate the Heroic Achievement of Major John Mason and his Comrades who near this spot in 1637 Overthrew the Pequot Indians and Preserved the Settlements from Destruction."

Second Prize Essay

The second prize of $5 was awarded to Virginia Woodmansee for the following essay:

Among those in the colonies who won the confidence of the people and raised themselves to positions of honor entirely by their own efforts was the great Indian fighter, John Mason. He was born in England about 1600, but neither the exact date of his birth nor his birthplace is known. The first that is heard of him is when he served under Sir Thomas Fairfax in the Netherlands, in the war between the Dutch and the Spanish.

It is supposed that Mason emigrated to this country about 1630, though he was not actually heard of on this side of the ocean before December, 1632. At that time he was sailing with John Gallop in search of the pirate, Dingy Bull, who had for some time annoyed the coast with small plunderings. He was then called Lieutenant Mason, but soon after was given the rank of captain.

Owing to his knowledge of military affairs he was appointed to plan the fortifications of Boston harbor, with the special duty of raising a battery on Castle Island.

In 1635 he was chosen representative to the General Court from Dorchester, but later in the same year he moved to the Connecticut valley, with a band of emigrants under the Reverend John Wareham to help in the founding of Windsor.

It was while he was living in Windsor that the Pequot war broke out. At that time Connecticut had only two hundred and fifty inhabitants and the Pequots, numbering about a thousand, had threatened to wipe out the little towns of the colony.

The General Court, therefore, ordered that an army of ninety men from the towns of Hartford, Wethersfield, and Windsor be marched against the foe, and Captain Mason was selected to command them.

On May tenth, 1637, the company set sail from Hartford down the Connecticut river in three small vessels with seventy friendly Indians under Uncas. After many difficulties the vessels reached Saybrook where they met the Mohegans who had left the boats to march overland. Then with the consent of Lieutenant Gardiner, who commanded the Saybrook fort, Captain John Underhill, with nineteen men joined the forces to take the place of twenty men who had been sent to protect Hartford. Here at Saybrook the expedition was delayed by contrary winds, and Mason, knowing that Pequot scouts were spying on them and would carry news of their movements, finally set sail for Narragansett Fort, hoping to make the Pequots think they had given up the attack. Here Narragansetts were added to their force. Marching overland they had almost reached the fort when the Indians fell back. The whites, therefore, made the attack alone. Taking the Pequots by surprise, they destroyed their stronghold and killed all but a few of the savages.

Indians from a fort near the Pequot harbor attacked Mason in revenge but Mason was again victorious. The remainder of the savages were hunted down and killed and peace was restored to the colonists.

Owing to his bravery and skill Mason became known as an Indian fighter whom the Indians feared and on whom the colonists depended for protection.

The same year Mason was appointed by the General Court the chief military officer of the state, at a salary of forty pounds a year, to train the young men annually for ten days. Some years later he was ordered to assemble all the train-bands of the colony once in two years for a general review. This office, the same as major-general, he held until his death, and appears to be the only person in the colony at that time with the rank of major.

When Saybrook fort became a part of Connecticut, the settlers requested that Major Mason be placed in command. This was done and Mason lived here for the next twelve years.

It happened that the people of New Haven wished to remove to a tract of land on the Delaware river and urged Mason to go with them. As their offer was liberal, Mason decided to go, but the Connecticut legislature refused to let him leave the colony. As there was no one to take his place, the settlement was never made.

In the years that followed, there was scarcely one in which Mason was not asked to go on some expedition among the Indian tribes to fight or to pacify their quarrels. For several years he was Indian agent, Indian umpire, and the counselor of the government in all Indian matters. He was particularly friendly to Uncas and on several occasions aided him in disputes with other tribes.

He was later chosen deputy governor, a position which he held for eight years, the last three of them being under the king's charter which united Connecticut with New Haven. For nearly two years Major Mason filled the office of governor in the absence of Governor Winthrop.

In 1659, Major Mason and Reverend James Fitch and a company of settlers from Saybrook purchased of the Mohegans for the sum of seventy pounds, a tract of land known as the "nine-miles-square." The settlement was made at Norwich Town and here the last twelve years of his life were spent. Near the end of his life he suffered intensely from an acute disease of which he finally died, January 30, 1671 or 1672.

Although there is no record telling where he was buried, there seems to be no little doubt that he lies in the Indian and Gager burial ground, first cemetery of Norwich. A monument was erected there in 1889 by the state of Connecticut to the memory of him and his comrades "who preserved the settlers from destruction."

Always ready to lead in necessary battle, a statesman capable of handling the affairs of the colony, John Mason was to Connecticut what Myles Standish was to Massachusetts and John Smith to Virginia. Norwich is honored that it can claim this great man as one of its founders.

North Carolina spent $20,818,866 for highways during the last fiscal year.

Water-borne commerce of Charleston, S. C., in 1929 amounted to 2,880,334 tons, valued at $180,545,167.

"I Had To Be Taking Some Kind of Laxative All The Time"

Friend Recommended Bon-Tone. Mr. Adams Bought Some. "I Feel Better In Every Way," He Says.

Mr. Erwin Adams, of 1229 Baldwin street, Waterbury, Conn., is amplaced their names on the list of other one of the thousands who have Bon-Tone boosters. Mr. Adams states:

"For several years I was troubled with constipation, and had to be taking some kind of laxative all the time. I had a tired, loggy feeling most of the time, and was more tired in the morning than when I went to bed. My appetite wasn't so good, and at times my food didn't seem to digest as it should. I tried several different kinds of medicines, but didn't seem to improve any.

"A friend of ours who had been taking Bon-Tone, recommended it to me, so I got some; and since taking six bottles of this remedy, I have got very good results. My appetite has improved; my bowels are regular; and I get up in the morning with more energy, and don't feel so tired as I did before. In fact, I feel better in every way, and will gladly recommend Bon-Tone to anyone."

There is a Bon-Tone Man in Norwich at Smith's Drug Store, to explain the merits of this wonderful spring tonic.

Bon-Tone is also for sale by all leading druggists everywhere.

DIXIE'S 'ONE-MULE' FARMS HIT AS WASTEFUL UNITS
CLEMSON COLLEGE, S. C.—(AP)—
The "one-horse farm," common in Dixie, is a wasteful economic unit, says J. T. McAllister, extension agriculture engineer at Clemson college.
"Great piles of plant food are going up in smoke on farms in the form of cotton or corn stalks because of the one-mule plow," he says. "With two-mule or three mule plows, this material would be turned under the soil.
"This is just one of the serious results that has come about by the use of so small a unit," declares Mr. McAllister. "Farm families depend for a living on the products raised with this one-mule outfit after one-half or one-third has been given to the landlord. There is no farm management program that will make such a system profitable agriculture."

EVERY PIECE OF PEANUT FOUND TO BE VALUABLE
OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla.— (AP) —
Every part of the peanut from kernel to tops is of some value, according to James E. Webster, of the agriculture chemistry research department of the Oklahoma A. and M. college.
Cured, the tops serve as hay; the nuts as stock feed for hogs, and the hulls also can be used as fertilizer, as a tin plate cleaner, and in compound, form wall board, cellulose which yields artificial silk, and explosive, a rare sugar.
The kernel may be eaten, converted into peanut butter or peanut oil. Other products include use in dynamite, linoleum, dyes, chemicals and candles.

40,000,000 TOURISTS SPEND $3,000,000,000
WASHINGTON —(AP)— Now is the season when one of the country's biggest business flourishes—the "vacation industry."
The motor army this summer will number more than 40,000,000 says Dr. Julius Klein, assistant secretary of commerce.
This tourist business, he says, has been established to be equal in monetary value to the gigantic iron and steel industry. The annual earnings has been placed at more than $3,000,000,000.

JEWETT CITY WOMAN AND GIRL HAD JOY RIDE WITH NEW LONDON SAILORS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, June 12—Mrs. William King, 22, residing at 18 Slater avenue, Jewett City and Doris Denmore, 16, of 18 Slater avenue, the same borough, were arrested in New London early today by Patrolman Louis Tooker, and upon complaint of the woman's husband, who charged his wife with the desertion of their child and enticing the Denmore girl from home. The charges of King, however, will not be substantiated to the extent of the woman being prosecuted for their commission, but there is a possibility that she will be charged with a more serious infraction of the law. Mrs. King and the Denmore girl left their homes last evening and joining two sailors, driving by automobile to Colchester and where they remained until the wee hours of this morning. King came to New London and requested the aid of the police in apprehending his wife and the girl. About 5:30 o'clock this morning, Mrs. King and Doris were found on State street by Patrolman Louis Tooker and when their identity was established the young woman and girl were arrested. They were taken to police headquarters and locked up. This afternoon Mrs. King and the girl were taken in charge by State Police Officer John Smith, who is making an investigation of the acts that transpired between the time the woman and girl left home and the hour when they were arrested in this city.

SAILORS PAY $100 EACH FOR DRUNKEN DRIVING

Joseph R. Gustafson and William H. Turgeon, sailors, the former a member of the crew of U. S. S-23 and the latter stationed at the submarine base, were in the police court today charged with driving while under the influence of liquor. Each was fined $100 and costs.

Gustafson pleaded not guilty, but the testimony of the arresting officer and others broke down his testimony in part, although the driver himself really brought about his conviction, for driving on State street last night Gustafson testified falsely. He was and passed to the left of a traffic signal causing the car to collide with two parked autos. Automobile Patrol Officer Augustus Ray decided that Gustafson was intoxicated and arrested the driver. Gustafson in taking the stand was emphatic in his being at total abstainer from strong drink and declared that he had spent the two hours previous to his arrest witnessing a motion picture performance. He vividly recited the theme of the picture in question and he certainly possessed knowledge of the plot and undoubtedly had witnessed it. But when Gustafson was positive that it was last night that he saw the screen exhibition he convicted himself, for the picture finished its run in New London last Tuesday night. Besides Officer Ray's testimony that Gustafson was intoxicated, Automobile Patrol Officer Clarence Martin and State Police Officer John Smith were at police headquarters when Gustafson was locked up and the officers corroborated the testimony of Ray.

Turgeon was arrested on Williams street, near Connecticut avenue last night by State Police Officer Smith, the arrest of Turgeon resulting when his auto left the concrete highway and crashed against a telephone pole. The auto was damaged and Turgeon received a lacerated face and head.

Vine's Case Tried

Edward S. Vine, 86 West Colt street, formerly employed as collector and driver by the Pequot Laundry company, was charged with embezzlement and conversion. Vine stole $150, which represented money he collected for the company and applied it to his own use and he also drove an auto owned by the Hire & Drive It, Inc., from the state and then abandoning it. The young man, who is but 22 and married, has reimbursed the laundry company and that charge was nolled. He has arranged to pay the owner of the automobile an amount satisfactory to the latter and on the conversion charge Vine was sentenced to three months in jail, but execution of the sentence was suspended and Vine was placed on probation.

Law Deals With Fighters

William Ives, Providence, R. I., laborer and Michael Dwyer, also a laborer, of Worcester, Mass., were jointly charged with intoxication and breach of the peace. Judge Daniel M. Cronin sentenced Ives to jail for 30 days on the former charge and a nolle was ordered on the second count. Dwyer, however, did not fare as well as did his companion, for the testimony introduced revealed that Dwyer was responsible for the fight of the two men, besides having committed another act of impropriety. He was sentenced to jail for a stay of 30 days on the first count and on the second charge a jail sentence of six months was the penalty. Ives and Dwyer were on Sixteenth street yesterday afternoon and both had been drinking freely. Dwyer went to the residence of Mrs. George Hart and requested food, his request being denied. A few minutes later when Mrs. Hart started through the street in search of her little daughter, Dwyer verbally abused the woman, besides kicking her dog. Dwyer also made an improper proposal to the woman, who was present today in court and testified as to Dwyer's conduct.

Fresh Youth Admonished

Rosario Rinato, 18, one of a gang of youths who have attempted to annoy the police on duty on Bank street, near Truman, of late was charged with breach of the peace. His case was continued until July 12 and in granting the continuance Judge Cronin made it plain to the youth that the disposition of the case all depended upon Rinato's future conduct. Rinato was in a parked automobile on Bank street, near Shaw last night and caused the horn to be sounded continually, to the disturbance of pedestrians and store proprietors. Patrolman Henry Sylvia ordered Rinato to refrain from the incessant blowing of the horn, but as soon as the officer had walked a short distance from the car, the sounding of the horn was continued. Sylvia gave Rinato another warning, but when additional blowing was started, the officer arrested Rinato.

Let City Have Their $2

Joseph Cobb, 154 Thames street, Groton; Joseph Johnson, 344 Abbott street, Waterbury; Harry S. Anderson, New York and Harold Rogers, 622 Main street, were charged with parking their automobiles on State and Bank streets longer than permitted by ordinance. None of the drivers presented himself in court and their respective bonds of $2 were declared forfeited.

Abraham Rakosky, of Ocean Beach, was arrested last night by Automobile Patrol Officer Elwood Bailey charged with failing to stop at an automatic danger signal, corner of Ocean and Glenwood avenues. He was not presented in the police court, being ordered discharged by Prosecuting Attorney Max Boyer.

J. NELSON WEYMOUTH MADE MANAGER S. N. E. T. EXCHANGE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, June 12—Edwin C. Ford, manager of the local branch of the Southern New England Telephone company, is to be retired July 1st. He will be succeeded by J. Nelson Weymouth, formerly of Norwich and more recently of New Haven who has been manager of the New London branch since 1886. Mr. Ford has not made definite plans for the future, but intends to continue his residence in this city.

The New Haven railroad carried many fight fans from Boston to New York this afternoon to witness the fistic encounter between Jack Sharkey and Max Schmeling. Besides her husband and daughter, Mrs. Noonan is survived by two sons, William Noonan, of this city and John Noonan, of Hollis, N. Y. Patrolman John Clifford shortly after 5 o'clock this morning found a horse roaming about Main street. Big Freighter Floated

The big Norwegian freighter, Dampfire, bound from Cape Breton, Nova Scotia, Capt. Holme, went ashore on the west side of Fishers Island this morning. She did not remain long, for she freed herself at high tide and proceeded undamaged to her destination. The Dampfire was making her way through Long Island sound at 8:30 o'clock, while a dense fog prevailed. The freighter got out of her course and grounded but a short distance from Fort Wright. Three hours later, when the tide was highest, the engines were started and the boat gradually entered deep water. The U. S. Coast Guard and the Merritt-Chapman-Scott Co. were notified of the grounding of the boat, which carries a crew of 19, but the services of the wreckers were not needed.

SUSPENSION LIFTED IN CASE OF SERGT. SMITH

Detective Sergeant Nelson S. Smith, held for trial on a charge of manslaughter at the next term of the superior court in connection with the fatal shooting of Gordon O. Sims, former automobile mechanic, by the officer on the night of May 20th, when Smith sent a bullet through the brain of Sims when he beat the officer who had arrested him on a charge of breach of the peace and then attempted to make his escape, has been restored to duty, through the lifting of the temporary suspension imposed upon the sergeant the night of the shooting by City Manager William A. Holt. The raising of the suspension was made today following Captain Charles A. Pinney requesting such action yesterday. In announcing his act, City Manager Holt stated that no disciplinary action, if any, would be taken against Smith until after the officer's case has been disposed of in the high court. In making the request of City Manager Holt for the lifting of the suspension, Capt. Pinney pointed out that Smith had been a member of the police department 16 years and that he had proven himself an efficient and capable officer. Capt. Pinney also brought out the fact that Smith had never been tried on charges.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre

Realism, in the sense of a strict adherence to thoroughly lifelike treatment, is the keynote of "The 3 Sisters," the all talking Fox Movietone feature which opened yesterday at the Breed theatre.

The picture is convincing, dramatic and extremely well done, born from a directorial and an acting standpoint. Louise Dresser gives an outstanding performance as the mother, and the "sisters," Joyce Compton, June Collyer and Addie McPhail, are all distinctive. Tom Patricola and Kenneth MacKenna head the masculine cast, with such sterling players as John Sainpolis, Clifford Saum, Paul Porcasi, Sidney DeGrey and Joe Brown in support.

Paul Sloane's direction is as perfect as that of his recent "Hearts in Dixie," and is largely responsible for the smoothness of the story, which is laid in a little Italian village during the late World war.

Broadway Theatre

Heart specialists in Norwich are due for a rush of business the next few days, when Charles (Buddy) Rogers plays his engagement at the cool Broadway, in his newest melange of laughs, lyrics, love and lingerie, yclept "Safety in Numbers," which starts with a bang tomorrow for a brief four days. Buddy is back to his boy characters again, bubbling over with sheer joy of living, more peppy and zippy than ever, as the Frisco heir of $25,000,000, whose guardian uncle sends him to New York to be taught the ways of the world by three "old friends." The "friends" turn out to be three alluring Follies girls, who of all people on earth should know all about the world and its ways. A modern story, with just enough of the spice of sophistication; dialog which crackles with humor; melodies fresh and different, with lyrics that sparkle with cleverness; and (this will please the ladies particularly) gowns and lingerie that out-Parises Paris. But above all is "Buddy," "America's Boy Friend," giving the greatest display of his effervescent pep-talents he has ever exhibited on the silverscreen. He sings, dances, plays the trombone, plays the piano, falls in love with five gorgeous charmers, writes a hit-song for the "Follies", sells it to a big Broadway producer, gets into a fist fight with a cab driver, loves some more girls, writes some more songs, sings and sings again. Buddy is at his blithesome best, and is ably assisted in merry-making by Kathryn Crawford, Josephine Dunn, Carol Lombard, Geneva Mitchell and Virginia Bruce on the feminine side of the cast, and Roscoe Karns, a typical hard-boiled taxi-driver, Francis Macdonald and Richard Tucker. The Broadway's always-excellent short featurettes will round out the snappy program. With today's showings, the engagements of Richard Dix and Lois Wilson in that roaring society comedy "Lovin' the Ladies," will come to a close.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

"Ladies of Leisure" an alluring production which deals with night life in New York starring Barbara Stanwyck, Lowell Sherman and Ralph Graves will be presented tomorrow at the Palace theatre where it will be shown through Tuesday of next week.

BARBARA STANWYCK in LADIES of LEISURE
A COLUMBIA PRODUCTION

Adapted from a stage play produced by David Belasco, it tells the story of an artist who believed that environment is a greater factor in our lives than heredity. He becomes interested in a girl of the streets whom he engages to pose for him. Unknowingly the girl falls in love with him and because he has treated her like a lady she becomes one and approaches his ideal of womanhood. One morning the boy's father goes to the studio and when he finds her there he insults her believing only the worst of her. This brings the artist to declaring his love for her but the interference of the parents soon separates them again. A thrilling climax ends the picture satisfactorily for all.

The double-feature bill combining "Soldiers and Women" with Aileen Pringle and Grant Withers, a story of a jealous woman living at the marine base in Haiti, and "Clancy in Wall street" which shows the funny side of the recent financial crash starring Charles Murray and a host of others, will be shown at the Palace for the last times today.

The Popularity Contest which has been the talk of the town will soon be drawing to a close. Those who are interested should avail themselves of the chance to cast a few more ballots before the end. If you have been going to the Palace regularly do not get slack for the finish and remember that extra votes are extra helps for the girl whom you would like to have win the contest. Tonight 4,000 will be awarded to the young ladies of the Palace Contest from the stage. All the young ladies of the contest will be present, and it will be a wonderful chance for you to help your favorite win. Be present and see that your girl gets the extra votes.

THINGS TO BE SEEN AT THE CIRCUS

Sparks Circus, one of the foremost amusement institutions in the entire world, arrived in Norwich aboard special trains early this morning, for two exhibitions, the matinee at 2:30 p. m., and evening performance at 8 o'clock. As quickly as the show trains arrived, the unloading operations began. The big tents will be erected at the fairgrounds.

Sparks Circus has a personnel numbering more than 650 persons, and it is almost a municipality within itself, as the big show carries its own doctor, dentist, postmaster, police department, veterinarian, commissary and other requisites of a community. The show carries 400 horses and has three herds of elephants, as well as herds of camels, zebras, and other wild and domestic animals.

Doors to the double menagerie open at 1 and 7 p. m. There will be no street parade today, as this traditional feature has been abolished by the Sparks Circus, owing to the magnitude of the show, which necessitates every minute of time being devoted to the preparation for the performances. With its three rings, hippodrome track, steel arena and elevated stages alive with acts every minute of the two-hour program, the Sparks show is said to be presenting its greatest performance in the history of the show.

Under arrangements made by a prominent Norwich woman who has volunteered to direct the effort of a tag day for the Salvation Army is to be put on here Saturday.

It is expected that about 50 women will be engaged in the tag day for the financial campaign for the benefit of the budget fund of the Salvation Army and that their presence upon the streets in the business part of the city will give opportunity for many to help and contribute in large or small amounts, all of which will be welcome.

Cards are to be placed in the store windows announcing the tag day.

BERKELEY SCHOOL MAY SELL ITS LITTLE CHAPEL

The Middlesex superior court, through Judge John Rufus Booth has granted permission to the trustees of Berkeley Divinity school to sell the little chapel which occupied 25 feet of the school property on Main street, Middletown. But the sale must be conducted under the direction of the superior court and the proceeds must be used as the court orders and in accordance with the trust terms.

This decision was handed down in the action begun by the trustees against Attorney General Benjamin W. Alling, as the law requires. He represents the general public interest in the trust which Mary W. A. Mutter created in 1862, a trust which the then officials of the school solemnly promised to maintain.

Under the terms of the trust Mrs. Mutter gave the school the chapel with the understanding that it was always to be used for religious purposes. There was no reversion clause in the trust. But there was a provision that if the trustees at any time failed to maintain the chapel for religious purposes they must pay to Trinity college, Hartford, the sum of $2,000.

Touching on this penalty, Judge Booth points out that the trustees of Trinity college were not made a party to the action. He holds that the forfeit in no way interferes with the sale. Any action with reference to it rests between the school trustees and the college trustees.

This action was brought to the court under a provision in the law enacted in 1921, which made it possible for the superior court to consider changing such trusts as might be affected by changing conditions. The trust was observed until Sept. 26, 1928, when services in the chapel were suspended, the school having been moved to New Haven to become linked up wth Yale university.

The trustees have been active in negotiations with other parties believed to have some claims on other parts of the school property. Releases have been granted by many. There is a motion on the short calendar in which the trustees ask for defaults against all non-appearing defendants. It is believed that the trustees will be able to clear the title and so make be able to clear the title and so make it easier to sell. Several offers have been made for it. The present cost of maintaining the property in taxes alone is close to $9,000 a year.

EDUCATION COSTS ARE 26 PER CENT. OF TAXES

The cost of public, elementary, secondary and higher education in Connecticut is only approximately 26 per cent. as large as the amount of taxes collected from the people of the state by federal, state and local governments, the National Education association finds in an analysis of education costs and tax collection figures.

Only 12 other states report education expenditures smaller in comparison with tax collections than Connecticut, according to the association's study.

Using the year of 1928 as the basis of its analysis, the Education association found that the costs of education in Connecticut totaled $35,181,656 in that year as against $134,601,824 collected within the state as taxes by the federal, state and local governments. A comparison of these figures revealed that the education cost was just 26.14 per cent. as large as tax collections.

The cost of education in New England as a whole in 1928 was approximately 25 per cent. as large as tax collections and the cost of education in the nation as a whole was 26.4 per cent. as great as tax receipts.

Davis and Miss Florence Fellows who have recently resigned as teachers in the local public schools, after many years of efficient and faithful service, a delightful farewell party was held recently by the faculty and supervisors at Broadway school, at the attractive cottage owned by Miss Luella Wilson, at Attawan Beach, Black Point. On behalf of those present, Miss Mary Mullin presented a brooch to Mrs. Davis, and a black and white cameo to Miss Fellows. Has Very Rare Stamp

Frederick Roessler of 400 West Main street has recently come into possession of a rare stamp, the 5 cent issue of 1847, which carries the head of Benjamin Franklin and is of a bluish color. Philatelists place a valuation many times the face value upon a stamp of this issue.

RECEPTION FOR TWO MISSIONARIES GIVEN AT NORWICH TOWN CHURCH

From 8 to 10 Thursday evening in the chapel of the First Congregational church, Norwich Town, members and parish friends assembled for the reception to the two returned missionaries, Miss Gertrude Avery, who served five and one-half years under the missionary board in India, reaching her home in Norwich Town a few weeks ago, and Miss Ruth Beebe, of Trinity school, Athens, Alabama, who is spending the summer vacation at her home in Norwich Town after a year's absence.

The reception was under the auspices of the woman's department of the league of service, Miss Susan C. Hyde, general chairman of the reception committee. Miss Bernice Underwood was in charge of the musical programme. The Norwich Christian Endeavor union orchestra played during the evening. Mrs. Charles Schwenk soprano was the vocal soloist. In the receiving line were Miss Gertrude Avery and Miss Ruth Beebe, the two honor guests, Rev. Gurdon P. Bailey, Senior Deacon and Mrs. Dwight W. Avery, parents of Miss Avery, and Deacon and Mrs. Clyde M. Beebe, parents of Miss Beebe. The two young women were each presented a hot house bouquet by the Drop-in class of the Sunday school. Under the direction of Mrs. Charles P. Learned the chapel was artistically decorated with a profusion of red and white peonies, red and white roses, iris, bachelor buttons and other spring flowers arranged in decorative baskets, jardineers and vases.

The programme opened with numbers by the orchestra while the guests passed before the receiving line. Among the 150 present were relatives and friends from Hartford, Hanover, Danielson, Willimantic, Occum, Norwich and Norwich Town.

Refreshments of punch, ice-cream, cake and fancy wafers were served under the direction of Mrs. David M. Dean, chairman, assisted by Mrs. John L. Browning, Mrs. James F. Connolly and Mrs. Michael Buckley. The waitresses were Misses Lucile Browning, Rose Durr, Mabel Corrigeux, Marion Buckley and Mrs. Frederick Ross. Miss Sadie J. Dawson and Bernice Underwood poured punch. Individual tables on which were yellow candles were arranged in the chapel and auditorium.

Rev. Mr. Bailey referred to long time ago when Miss Avery was commissioned to go to India, learn their life and take some of our life to them. She has crossed the ocean, travelled many miles, carried on the work there and eventually returned home on this long journey, having seen much of the world. It is a joy he said, to have her with us after more than five years absence, to remain among us for a year or more.

Very fitting words were expressed in behalf of Miss Beebe, who has faithfully performed her duties in the faculty in the Alabama school. Miss Beebe must have made good else she would not have returned south for eight years successive service. A most hearty greeting was extended both young women.

Many specimens from India brought home by Miss Avery were on display.

Miss Avery spoke briefly in response, saying it was a great pleasure to come back and see all. "I have anticipated my home coming for some time, but the realization has been greater than the anticipation." She further spoke in a most interesting vein of her work while located at Ahmednagar, a city much like Norwich for its Indian history, though not like Norwich for beautiful foliage. It is a dry, dusty city. Miss Avery outlined her work in the girls school, where there were 400 pupils. Ahmednagar is noted for being an educational city. She also related many of the things she was most interested in during her absence and held the close attention of her listeners.

Miss Beebe gave an instructive talk of her work in the south and of the many accomplishments among the people she is associated with, and thanked the friends for their support and interest. Both young women were aplauded at the close of their talks.

Prior to these talks Rev. Mr. Bailey offered prayer. Mrs. Schwenk sang in beautiful voice the following numbers: In Dreams Alone, by Ernest Phelix Potter, a former Norwich resident; Over The World to You, Leland Clarke; Kashmiri Song, Amy Woodforde Finden; Fiddle and I, Arthur Godeve. Two more very fine numbers by the orchestra, brought the delightful programme to a close.

GOLDEN WEDDING DAY FOR UNCASVILLE COUPLE

Mr. and Mrs. Austin Judson Perry, lifelong residents of Uncasville, celebrated the golden anniversary of their marriage on Monday. They proved a most agreeable and competent host and hostess on the preceding afternoon to a group of relatives and friends gathered to celebrate the occasion.

The gathering was a complete surprise to the honored couple and was held on the lawns and verandas of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Perry's home in Uncasville, where Mr. and Mrs. Austin Perry are staying at present.

After congratulations and fond greetings were exchanged there was singing of the mellow songs of the days when Mr. and Mrs. Perry were in their "teens." Then followed refreshments of ice cream and cup cakes, and two large wedding cakes. One cake was made by Mrs. Perry, after the recipe followed by her mother at the time of the wedding 50 years ago; the other cake was made by Mrs. Bingham, older daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Perry, and was suitably decorated for the occasion. After this came the presentation of a purse of money to Mr. and Mrs. Perry, to show the loving esteem in which they are held by the relatives and friends.

Guests were present from Uncasville, New London, Norwich, Stonington, North Stonington, Mystic, New Haven, Putnam and Westerly.

The guests, numbering a round hundred or thereabouts, departed after a very pleasant afternoon expressing hope for many more years of wedded life for Mr. and Mrs. Perry.

Mr. Perry is the oldest child of the late Lorenga Eunice (Hewitt) and Almon Franklin Perry of Uncasville. He comes from a long line of noteworthy ancestors, such as Charles The Great, king of the Franks, or better known as Charlemagne, emperor of the west 742-814 A. D., and John Carver, founder and first governor of Plymouth colony in America.

After study at the Uncasville school, Mr. Perry started to learn carpentry. Later he became a member of the firm of Perry and Hewitt which continued for several years, or until Mr. Perry's younger brothers were old enough to become partners in the concern. Then followed the firm of Perry Brothers, which comprised the five brothers, all following in their father's lifelong occupation. Of more recent date Mr. Perry has been employed by the government at Stonington shipyard, and later in the formation of forts at Gull island. Mr. Perry has been a good husband and father with a heart overflowing for all those with whom he came in contact.

Mrs. Perry was before marriage Miss Rose Westphal, daughter of the late Ann (Gavitt) and Charles Westphal of Uncasville. As a young girl Mrs. Perry acted as organist in the Uncasville Methodist church.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry were blessed with three children, a son, the late Ellsworth Perry, and two daughters, Mrs. James Bingham and Mrs. William Richmond. There are 12 grandchildren.

RADIO TRAFFIC TALK WARNS AGAINST OVERCONFIDENCE

Do you know that thirty-five persons will be killed and more than one thousand three hundred injured by automobiles in Connecticut during the present month? Do you know that there will be about 2,500 accidents? Do you know that these figures mean that an average of at least one person will be killed, and more than forty injured each day, and that during the month about one in every 80 cars in the state will be in accidents?

These estimates of the casualty and accident rate for June were made by the Connecticut department of motor vehicles. They were announced Thursday afternoon from WTIC, the Travelers station at Hartford, in a talk which was one of a series designed to impress all participants in traffic with the seriousness of the accident situation and the importance of safety precautions. The predictions are based on the records established by motorists in the state thus far this year and in other years.

Reckless driving will cause a great many of the accidents according to the department's statement. However, many of them will be caused by acts of inadvertance about which there is some doubt as to whether or not the operators were reckless. Underlying this is the fact that most operators have supreme confidence in themselves and their ability to operate successfully. The fact that an operator is good, that he can steal in and out of traffic and get to his destination promptly and well makes him more and more inclined to think that he is an outstanding example of the perfect driver.

With so many operators, it is obvious that there will be many cases of over-confidence and often results will be disastrous. If every driver would at once consider and determine whether or not he is over-confidence, whether he sometimes commits driving acts which make other people look at him with reproach, and whether he is always safe, not only so far as his own driving affairs are concerned, but with regard to other people, there might be a very marked difference in results.

The willful reckless driver forms only a small percentage in the total of offenders. There are many more who are over-confident, intentionally or unintentionally discourteous, or who fail to anticipate what the other fellow is going to do.

Why not have a self review? A few moments thought given to driving each day by everyone to whose attention the necessity is brought will result in better driving, less danger and more expedition. All of this will be to the glory of transportation, and to all the things which transportation means to civilization.

HUNTINGTON HOME ROSES RARE SIGHT THIS WEEK

This week the roses at the Eliza Huntington Memorial home, 99 Washington street, are a sight on which flower lovers are feasting their eyes. The vines and bushes were cut back last year, so that this season they are wondrously prolific in their blooming. Especially are they beautiful along the rose walk in the attractive grounds of this fine old mansion, and the eight members of the household find great pleasure in the varying hues and types of the flowers.

Mrs. Frank Drisler, matron at the home, has returned after a visit at her home in New York.

HOOVER REFERS TO SENATE REQUEST FOR NAVAL NOTES

Asserts That the Senate, Through Two of Its Members Upon the Delegation, Has Had a Practical Participation In Every Step of the Making of the Treaty—In a Letter to Senator Borah, Secretary Stimson Said the Executive Branch Did Not Intend to Define the Duty of the Senate Nor the Scope of Its Powers—In a Statement to the Press the Chief Executive Spoke Up For the London Naval Limitations Agreement.

WASHINGTON, June 13—(AP)—President Hoover spoke up for the London naval limitations agreement today in a statement to the press as the senate foreign relations committee prepared for a vote on the pact next week.

Without direct reference to the opposition in the senate which has become manifest in recent days, the president said "the real issue in the treaty is whether we shall stop competitive naval building with all the destruction and dangers to international good will which continuation on these courses implies."

In two brief sentences of his last paragraph, he disposed of the senate committee's contentions for the papers exchanged among the powers before the conference.

"The senate through two of its members upon the delegation has had a practical participation in every step in the making of the treaty," he said. "There is not one scintilla of agreement or obligation of any character outside the treaty itself."

A more definite reply to the committee's resolution asserting its right to the papers was made earlier in the day by Secretary Stimson.

In a letter to Chairman Borah, he acknowledged receipt of the resolution and said the executive branch did not intend to define the duty of the senate nor the scope of its powers. He maintained, however, that the treaty must be "measured by the language of the document" and made no move to turn over the papers sought by Senator Johnson, republican, California.

Mr. Hoover's sudden declaration in behalf of the London agreement followed an address last night by Secretary Stimson supporting the pact and denouncing its foes. The double pronouncements from the administration were regarded as answers to the opposition which has included high ranking navy officers.

Mr. Hoover in his statement took note of the dispute over the limitation provided by the treaty on eight-inch gun cruisers for the American fleet and called attention that "our naval advisers are sharply divided." The navy general board has condemned this limitation severely.

Accepting the controversy over the confidential papers as settled, Chairman Borah of the foreign relations committee called a meeting for Monday and predicted final action on the pact some time next week.

Senator Johnson indicated no move to carry further the fight for the papers. He said, however, in commenting upon the Stimson letter "we may accept as settled now the rights of the senate in the consideration of treaties as defined in the resolution of the committee on foreign relations."

Senator Moses, republican, New Hampshire, who in the committee debate led the demand for adoption of the resolutions asserting the committee's rights to the papers, was called to the white house today by President Hoover. It is known the treaty was discussed but beyond that there was no intimation of what was said.

Senator Shipstead, farmer-labor, Minnesota, a member of the committee, has insisted the papers be turned over before action is taken upon the pact but there appears not to be a majority of the committee willing to pursue this course.

REPORT SLAYER OF LINGLE HAS BEEN SEEN IN ST. LOUIS

CHICAGO, June 13—(AP)—A report that the slayer of Alfred "Jake" Lingle, Tribune reporter, was seen in St. Louis yesterday was received by Chicago police today as they continued their onslaught on the underworld, arresting more than a thousand persons.

The St. Louis story, relayed by police there, came from Melvin Pryor, itinerant painter, who said he talked with Lingle's slayer, just before the shot was fired, and then saw him again yesterday at Grand and Olive streets in St. Louis.

Although the Chicago authorities were greatly interested in the report and asked St. Louis police to drive Pryor through the streets in the hope that he might see the alleged slayer again, they allowed no letup in their drive against the hoodlums which followed the slaying of the veteran crime reporter and the attendant public clamor for action.

Alderman Arthur F. Albert today threatened to take his demand for a change in police administration to the city council.

A letter sent to the mayor by the alderman demanded that Police Commissioner William Russell, intimate friend of the slain reporter, and Chief of Detectives John Stege be granted long furloughs.

CHINESE NATIONALISTS NOT SEEKING A TRUCE

SHANGHAI, June 13.—(AP)—Repudiating suggestions that it was seeking a truce with rebel armies, the nationalist government military headquarters today declared unrelenting warfare against northern and southern forces challenging its existence.

President Chiang Kai-Shek, far from yielding to rebel demands for his resignation, has taken command of nationalist forces at Hankow. Government military authorities said he would smash the Kwangsi province rebels from southern China within ten days.

This done, they said, Chiang would resume vigorously the campaign against the northern coalition rebel armies in Honan and Shantung provinces. Hostilities in the latter region were virtually at a standstill after a month of fighting. Unable to penetrate further southward, the northerners rested with the Yellow river at their backs.

From Hankow came reports that the nationalist concentration of troops in that area was complete and a drive against the Kwangsi rebels was expected to begin momentarily.

PREDICTS ULTIMATE REPEAL OF PROHIBITION

CHICAGO, June 13—(AP)—Clarence S. Darrow, famous criminal lawyer, speaking before the Chicago Press club today, declared that "prohibition is developing in America a sadistic national trait which loves to inflict and witness cruelty."

Discussing recent gangster slayings here, Darrow asserted that "Chicago's gangland atrocities are supported by prohibition and will be continued until the nation becomes weak and submissive or indignantly tears prohibition from the statute books.'

Basing his prediction on legal history of many nations, Darrow predicted ultimate repeal of the prohibition laws, declaring that 'tyranny by means of law has never been successful in the face of mass rebellion.'

ANOTHER THAMES BODY RECOVERED AT GREENWICH

GREENWICH, June 13—(AP)—The body of another victim of the freighter Thames disaster was found washed up on the shore at Field Point Park here today. It has not been identified. Sixteen men perished in the burning of the Thames April 24, and seven bodies have been recovered.

GORVERNOR TRUMBULL DECLARES WORKS UNFAIR

HARTFORD, June 13.—(AP)—"Dr. Works is unfair," Governor John H. Trumbull, chairman of the state board of finance and control, said this morning with considerable emphasis, when queried about the statement of the retiring president of the Connecticut Agricultural college that the progressive development and expansion of the school is blocked by the board and by the state republican organization. Yesterday, Dr. George Alan Works' resignation was announced, and the governor said it was a complete surprise to him.

The governor declared the board of finance and control "has never hampered or curtailed the college" other than to "keep it within the appropriation made by the legislature." If Dr. Works wishes to make a state university out of it, or even to expand in lesser degree but beyond a straight agricultural curriculum, "that is a matter solely for the state legislature," said the governor.

As to the educator's intimation that the finance board has a hand in the situation which has influenced him to accept a position elsewhere, the governor declared, "Dr. Works is unfair. We have not limited him in any way."

"There is nothing to that statement," the governor said, with the board of finance angle in mind. "The board approves their plans. We simply keep the college under the appropriation. We haven't dictated, in any way, how they shall spend their money."

Dr. Works never conferred personally with the governor, the latter stated. He has seen the college head at finance board meetings when Dr. Works has been present regarding requests, but the last time the governor saw him here was some time ago.

"As I recall it, we acceded to his request at that time."

NEARING CRISIS IN INDIAN RESISTANCE CAMPAIGN

BOMBAY, India, June 13.—(AP)—Massing of troops here began today when it became evident that events in the Mahatma Gandhi civil resistance campaign were working rapidly up to a great crisis.

The Bombay government this evening announced that a battalion of Mahrattas were being summoned from Poona, 500 strong, and other detachments of troops from other quarters in a mobilization that would enable the local authorities to cope successfully with the increasing seriousness of congress demonstrations.

The announcement indicated that the authorities were determined not to have a repetition of yesterday's disorders when 25,000 demonstrators violated the anti-assembly act and held a meeting after the police discreetly withdrew.

Open defiance of Viceroy Lord Irwin's taxation, picketing and other ordinances, leading items in the disobedience program, led the government to order immediate steps for their strict enforcement.

Events of the week-end were awaited in Bombay with keen concern.

NO ONE KNOWS TRUE STORY OF THE AMERICAN FLAG

NEW YORK, June 13—(AP)—The legend that Betsy Ross helped design the American flag and made the first one is "just a sweet story and nothing more" to Col. James A. Moss of Washington, president of the United States Flag association.

Mr. Moss, here on a visit, said today—the eve of Flag day—that "no one will ever know exactly what the true story of the American flag is or who first made it."

The legend is that Betsy Ross, attractive young Philadelphia flag maker, was called into conference by George Washington, Robert Morris and General George Ross; that all four designed the American flag June 14, 1777, and that Betsy Ross made the first one. Mr. Moss says records show Washington was not in Philadelphia during the month of June.

COMMUNISM ENCOURAGED BY AMERICAN EMPLOYERS

WASHINGTON, June 13. — (AP) — Charges that "so called one hundred per cent American employers" were encouraging communism were made today before the house communist investigation committee by Edward F. McGrady, legislative representative of the American Federation of Labor.

While McGrady was discussing activities of communists in strikes in New York city and Gastonia, North Carolina, the house appropriated from its contingent fund $25,000 for the expenses of the investigation after a short debate.

In his testimony McGrady told the committee the investigation should be directed into the source of the communists money. He said they subsidized fourteen daily newspapers.

Some employers of labor, he asserted, used the communists, to split organizations of their employes. Communists, he said, promoted strikes without providing means for feeding the strikers, and by their activities caused the citizenry to turn against them.

In the fur workers strike in New York city, he said, the communists gained control of local labor organizations and hired "the spawn of the gutter" to beat members who criticised the conduct of the strike. He said women were hired who were as bad as the men and wers given razors to slash women workers as they went to their work. Homes were invaded, women and men assaulted by the hired sluggers, he said.

The committee head Robe Carl White, assistant secretary of labor, in executive session on Russian entries into this country and on the deportation laws.

DIVERGENT VIEWS ON BISHOP CANNON CASE

WASHINGTON, June 13.—(AP)—The only possibility of further action against Bishop James Cannon, Jr., for his defiance of the senate lobby committee seemed tonight to hinge on a decision by Vice-President Curtis whether he is required by law to report to the district attorney the churchman's refusal to answer questions.

A report of the examination of the bishop will be presented to the senate next week by the lobby committee and Senator Blaine, republican, Wisconsin, contends the vice-president then will have to submit the matter to the district attorney for possible contempt proceedings.

A totally different view, however, is taken by Chairman Caraway of the lobby committee. He maintains the bishop had not legally refused to answer, because the committee decided it had no authority to question him about his 1928 anti-Smith activities.

Vice-President Curtis declined to comment.

Meanwhile, Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, told newspaper men today he did not intend to introduce a resolution in the senate to ask for specific authority to investigate political activities.

Walsh said he thought such a resolution should be offered but that if he did it he would be accused of attempting to persecute the Southern Methodist churchman. Walsh is a Catholic and Bishop Cannon has charged his investigation was a "Catholic and wet persecution."

NEW AMERICAN MINISTER RECEIVED IN COPENHAGEN

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, June 13.—(AP)—King Christian today received Ralph H. Booth, new American minister to Denmark, who handed the king his credentials and introduced Ernest Ives, the legation secretary. Both men were later received by the queen.

Mr. Booth and Secretary Ives were brought from their hotel by the king's court marshal in a state carriage.

Later the new American minister received the representatives of the Danish and foreign press at an informal gathering at his hotel and expressed pleasure at meeting them. In the course of the interview, Mr. Booth paid a compliment to the public spirit of Detroit, praising it as a model city.

All the newspapers gave Mr. Booth an unusually hearty welcome.

Mrs. Booth and Miss Booth arrived in Copenhagen this evening from Switzerland.

MAN KILLED BY TORNADO IN SOUTHERN MINNESOTA

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 13—(AP)—One man is reported to have been killed, several injured and considerable property damage done in a series of tornadoes in southern Minnesota late today.

W. Drappe, a section foreman for the Chicago Great Western railroad, was reported killed at Randolph, Minn., about 35 miles south of here, and many buildings there were damaged. Three were reported injured. A call for doctors and nurses was received at Hastings.

CONFESSED EMBEZZLEMENT OF $60,000 SINCE MAY, 1929

CLEVELAND, June 13—(AP)—Whitmore L. Pinder, 37, assistant manager of the Wade Park branch of the Cleveland Trust company, today confessed, according to bank officials, that he had embezzled $60,000 from the bank since May, 1929. The loss is covered by insurance, according to Russell V. Bleeker, attorney for Lloyds.

Bleeker said Pinder had spent the money in the stock market.

Fog Cause Of Two Marine Accidents

Freighter Grounded and Two Tankers Collided Off Ambrose Lightship.

NEW YORK, June 13—(AP)—Fog which blanketed the Long Island and New Jersey's coasts today caused two marine accidents, one freighter running aground and two tankers colliding off Ambrose Lightship.

The banana-laden Norwegian freighter Stavangefen, inbound from [illegible] was found hard aground in the mud and sand off Fire Island this morning, without a radio. She apparently had lain there for some hours before being discovered.

The coast guard cutter Seneca, two coast guard patrol boats and a destroyer stood by her during the day and hoped to drag her clear at high tide tonight. It was believed the freighter was undamaged, as the bottom was soft.

Further out, 11 miles south of the lightship at the entrance to the harbor, the Gulf Refining company tanker Gulf of Mexico was in collision with the Pan-American tanker Franklin K. Lane. A message from the Gulf of Mexico's captain to the line's offices here said boat proceeded after the accident, indicating there was little damage to either.

The Gulf of Mexico was inbound from Port Arthur, Texas, making slow going through the fog and the Franklin K. Lane was outbound for Aruba, Venezuela.

GERMAN REPARATIONS BONDS OVERSUBSCRIBED

PARIS, June 13—(AP)—Political and financial circles today expressed great satisfaction at the success achieved by the Young plan annuities issue, the first slice of which has been oversubscribed in the principal European markets as well as in neutral countries where it was offered.

Two important consequences of the success of the loan, it is felt here, are that it definitely takes the reparations question out of politics and places it in the financial field as the Young plan sought, while at the same time it will release for other purposes in a short space of time considerable sums of money which were withdrawn from general circulation pending the launching of the loan.

For instance France's share in the proceeds, exceeding 3,364,000,000 francs will be used to retire government bonds thus making that amount available for current needs while cutting about 170,000,000 francs on the annual interest charge.

The rapidity with which the public took all that was offered and its apparent eagerness for more were regarded as an excellent augury for the success of other issues of the annuities bonds which will be marketed later.

French subscriptions exceeded the $100,000,000 allotted to Paris before noon while reports from Berlin indicated subscriptions of double the $9,000,000 Germany was to take. The $60,000,000 apportioned to London was all subscribed before one o'clock when the list was closed.

The American portion of $98,000,000 which was offered yesterday in New York was oversubscribed before noon.

CREEK INDIAN NATION ASKS $150,000,000 OF U. S.

TULSA, Okla., June 13—(AP)—Petitions in which the Creek Indian nation asks $150,000,000 from the United States for 28,875 acres of river bed lands, in the Arkansas, Cimmaron and South Canadian rivers, today were in the mails for filing in the United States court of claims at Washington.

If attorneys for the tribe win the suits, 20,580 Oklahoma Creek Indians would share equally in the judgment.

The value of the river bed lands, which are claimed as a part of the grant made to the tribe in 1832 by President Fillmore, is listed at $20,000,000 for oil rights, $100,000,000 for sand and trave rights, and an undetermined amount for power and irrigation rights.

LEVITT IS PROMOTING IND. REP. STATE TICKET

BRIDGEPORT, June 13—(AP)—The Bridgeport Telegram will say tomorrow that William J. Pape, publisher of the Waterbury Republican and American, one of the best known newspapermen in New England, is to be the nominee for comptroller of Connecticut on the independent republican slate headed by Professor Albert J. The group of republicans headed by Professor Levitt intend to challenge the control of the Roraback machine in the republican party of the state. In order to bring this issue forward effectively a complete state ticket is being put into the field with the idea of putting anti-organization primary tickets in every district in Connecticut, if possible.

Maj. Segrave Killed Testing Speed Boat

He Had Been Internationally Famous For Holding the World's Motor Car Record.

WI[illegible]RE, Eng., June 13.—(AP)—M[illegible] Henry Segrave, whose p[illegible] was speed, today lost his life [illegible]ing his newest toy, a motor-[illegible]pable of racing 100 miles an [illegible]

[illegible]e distinguished Englishman, internationally famed for holding the world's motor car speed record and known to thousands for his sterling sportsmanship, met disaster when Miss England II, a $125,000 craft, overturned upon the bosom of the beautiful Lake Windermere, England's largest inland water body, and sank.

Sir Henry's mechanician, E. Halliwell, disappeared as the spill occurred. His body was not recovered. It was supposed to lie tonight in the depths of the sylvan lake, in the torn hull of the speedboat.

J. Willcocks, another mechanic, was rescued at the time Sir Henry's unconscious form was taken from the lake. Willcocks was reported severely injured.

Major Segrave's hurts, a broken arm, a broken rib and a fractured thigh, were not considered critical at first, but he failed to rally and, with Lady Segrave at his side, died two hours after the mishap.

His craft, which in the last few days had three accidents, remained afloat with her bows crushed by impact with the water for half an hour before going down. Miss England II recently broke a propellor while going at top speed.

Lady Segrave some time ago induced her husband to abandon automobile racing, after he had won the world's motor car speed crown at Daytona Beach. She feared the risk was too great. He could not, however, resist the lure of speed and turned to fast boating.

He built the craft wrecked today with the intention of competing for the international trophy at Detroit this summer. Tests showed him her pace could be tuned to 100 miles an hour. He felt certain of victory.

Major Segrave was born in America, 34 years ago, of an American mother. His father was C. W. Segrave, pioneer of motoring in Ireland. He was knighted in 1929 for his victories in the United States.

He was a member of the royal air force in the World war and was wounded several times.

His monoplane "Segrave Meteor," today was making its trial test at East Yorks, preparatory to entering the king's cup race, when the Windermere fatality occurred.

Don't Stub Your Toe!

One Dark night—so the story goes—a certain monarch placed a large boulder in the middle of the road. Thousands of his people, thereafter, severely stubbed their toes or troubled to walk around. At length, one lusty youth—wiser than the rest—seized the stone and heaved it from his path. And where it had rested he found a bag of gold.

Are you stubbing your toe? Are you overlooking any bags of gold? How about the advertising in The Bulletin? Do you read it—consistently? It is a bag of gold to many readers.

This advertising is news about the very things that interest you most—articles that will save you money, lessen your work, or add materially to your comfort and well being.

Thrifty men and women read advertising. To them it is a plain, every day business proposition. It tells them where they can buy exactly what they want at the price they can afford. Advertising pays them. They make it pay.

It will pay you, too. Read it!

TARIFF BILL PASSED IN THE SENATE BY VOTE OF 44 TO 42

Final Roll Call Showed 39 Republicans and 5 Democrats Voted For the Bill—Negative Votes Cast By 30 Democrats, 11 Republicans and One Farmer Labor Senator—Its Adoption In the House Is Confidently Predicted Today After Two Or Three Hours of Debate.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—(AP)—The 18-months-old tariff bill neared the white house tonight after the senate, by a vote of 44 to 42, had given its approval to the final draft of the Hawley-Smoot measure.

The republican-dominated house will take up tomorrow the conference agreement adjusting the differences between the two branches and adoption is confidently predicted after two or three hours of debate.

President Hoover, who initiated the legislation, will receive the measure early next week. Although he will seek counsel of experts and send the bill to the various departments interested in its administration before acting, his signature is regarded as certain by administration leaders in congress.

That the bill will be made an important issue in the coming elections was seen today as the leaders of all three senate factions assailed and defended it before almost a full floor attendance and capacity audiences in the galleries.

The final roll call, taken after three hours of debate, showed 39 republicans and 5 democrats for the bill. Thirty democrats, 11 republicans, and the one farmer-labor senator, Shipstead, of Minnesota, combined against it. The two-vote margin for the bill represented the position of the entire membership, as every senator not voting was paired.

The dramatic end of the long senate fight through the special and regular sessions saw Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the democratic leader, denounce the measure as a "disappointment" even to its supporters; Senator Borah, of Idaho, the republican independent leader, asserted it failed to meet the party pledges and would be useless to agriculture, without the debenture, and Senator Watson, of Indiana, the majority chieftain, champion it in a vigorous hour and a half speech.

Ripping into the bill's opponents, the republican leader waved his arms and pounded desks all around him as he termed the opposition attack the "same old argument" used against every tariff bill.

He assailed Henry Ford and Alfred P. Sloan, president of General Motors, for opposing the measure, asserting the "motives of these international financiers and industrialists are obvious, and portend only unemployment or cheapened labor in this country."

Watson conceded business was depressed, but predicted the nation would be on the "upgrade financially" within 30 days from enactment of the bill and in a year's time "we shall regain the peak of prosperity and the position we lost last October."

Senator Robinson said the measure was "a disappointment to its supporters" and "instead of promoting the prosperity of agriculture it perpetuates and intensifies the inequalities and discriminations between agriculture and other industries.

Senator Borah contended whatever benefit the farmers would receive under the bill would be more than offset by raises in industrial rates.

"How are you going to fulfill the pledge made at Kansas City to restore agriculture to an equality with industry without the debenture?" he asked. "If you raise agricultural rates and correspondingly raise industrial rates you get nowhere."

Watson had the galleries and both sides of the chamber in an uproar as he sent verbal shafts toward the democrats. Reading from Calhoun's speeches the Indianan smilingly asked, "Doesn't that sound familiar?"

Senator Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, demanded "tell us what happened to Senator Grundy."

"James J. Davis is every bit as much for protection as Mr. Grundy," Watson retorted.

Chairman Hawley, of the ways and means committee, was greeted with prolonged applause when he told the house of the senate action and said he would call up the measure tomorrow.

Both Senators Smoot, republican, Utah, and Simmons, North Carolina, chairman and ranking democrat on the senate finance committee, were lauded by their colleagues for their untiring efforts in connection with the long and weary fight.

TWO INDICTMENTS RETURNED AGAINST DR. W. F. DOYLE

NEW YORK, June 13—(AP)—Dr. William F. Doyle, successful pleader for permits before the city board of standards and appeals, today was indicted by a federal grand jury on two counts alleging perjury and falsification of income tax returns.

Dr. Doyle, who is alleged to have collected $2,000,000 in eight years through his practices, also is under a thirty day contempt of court sentence for refusal to tell the grand jury with whom he split his large fees.

The indictments returned today charge him with perjuring himself in connection with his income tax returns and with filing false returns.

Several investigations of the board are being conducted as a result of the information of Dr. Doyle's practice brought by Federal Attorney Tuttle. The inquiry was set in motion by statements of Mrs. Lottie Cutler of Passaic, N. J., made while testifying in a bankruptcy hearing, that she paid $10,000 to secure a permit from the board for a gasoline filling station on property she owned. She said Dr. Doyle got $5,000 of it.

POPULATION OF R. I., NOW EXCEEDS NORTH DAKOTA'S

WASHINGTON, June 13—(AP)—The second shift of states in population ratings came with North Dakota's 1930 census report of 681,273, which put her lower than Rhode Island on the list.

The first reported change was when the District of Columbia passed New Hampshire for the first time in history.

Rhode Island, smallest state, this year proved she was still big enough to stage a comeback. In 1910, Rhode Island was passed by the comparatively young state of North Dakota. Simultaneously, South Dakota outstripped Rhode Island, in 1920, North Dakota was 36th state, South Dakota 37th, and Rhode Island 38th.

But during the last decade, Rhode Island gained 13.3 per cent over her 1920 population of 604,397; North Dakota gained but 5.3 per cent over her 681,273. They now stand: Rhode Island 685,017; North Dakota 681,273.

It remains to be seen, when South Dakota reports, whether Rhode Island will top both or will be sandwiched between the two Dakotas.

PROFITS OF RACKETEERS IN CHICAGO $5,785,000 A WEEK

CHICAGO, June 13—(AP)—The Chicago Daily News today published the result of an investigation into racket profits here and said the total was $5,785,000 a week.

"This is the war chest" said the News, "whence comes the money that corrupts politicians, police and prohibition agents."

Thirty-nine racket murders thus far this year and finally the slaying of Alfred Lingle, Tribune reporter, prompted the newspaper's investigation.

The weekly profit figures announced by the paper were:

Beer, booze, alcohol, $3,510,000.

Gambling houses and handbooks, $1,250,000.

Questionable resorts, $1,000,000.

Labor rackets, bombings, arson and kidnapings, $25,000.

The paper claims the figures to be on a conservative basis.

"There are 6,000 speakeasies operating normally in Chicago," says the News. "At election times when votes and campaign contributions are needed, the number goes skyrocketing up beyond the 10,000 mark. As high, according to some prohibition officials, as 12,000.

"Including the 6,000 speakeasies there are some 15,000 places in the city which are outlets for alcohol. Drug stores which peddle gin, cigar stores which peddle gin, beer flats with gin."

The paper estimates the alcohol consumption at 75,000 gallons a week and the total weekly booze bill, exclusive of other rackets at $3,510,000.

The coming Sunday will be observed as Children's day at the Brooklyn Congregational church, at 10:45. There is to be a pageant and other features certain to make the exercises of more than passing interest.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Grandmaison of Newmarket, N. H., are visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Ellison of North Main street, their visit here incident to the graduation of their granddaughter, Miss Florence Ellison, member of the class of 1930, Killingly high school.

PUTNAM

BRILLIANT DISPLAY OF FIREWORKS AT POMFRET

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, June 13—A crowd estimated at close to 2,000 swarmed onto the campus at Pomfret school in Pomfret Center, Thursday evening, at the conclusion of the class day exercises, to witness the most gorgeous fireworks spectacle presented by the school in recent years.

At 6:30, two hours before dusk, automobiles began to pour out of the tributary roadways onto the Putnam-Hartford pike road, to form a convoy Pomfret-bound. An hour later every available inch of parking space within a half mile of the school was at a premium. A squad of state officers of the state police barracks at Danielson were posted at vantage points along the highway to safeguard traffic. The state patrolmen handled the situation most efficiently.

The pajama parade of the student body was about the campus, with a stop at the home of every master.

The conclusion of the parade saw the beginning of the elaborate display of fireworks. Forty-eight bombs, in honor of each state in the union, were fired into the air in rapid succession and upon bursting with a deafening series of reports that were heard in this city, shed a panorama of colors that illuminated the entire campus During the bombing, one rocket which soared many hundred feet into the low-hanging starless sky, upon bursting sent out a conglomeration of sparks which took shape in the form of a huge star. A few seconds before the star faded out, a flaming ball came into the picture and began to descend gently under a tiny parachute attached to which was an American flag fluttering in the light breeze.

There were many beautiful ground pieces, the concluding numbers being a farewell in fire to the graduating class which read, "Good Luck, Class 1930." Good night was fittingly bade the vast host by the final piece, which sputtered a few seconds and finally bloomed forth the words "Good Night" and dispersed the assemblage.

Miss Sarah C. Crosby of Thompson was elected president of the Woman's board of the Day Kimball hospital yesterday at the annual meeting of the association, which was held in the chamber of commerce rooms on Union street. Mrs. George Sampson of this city was named first vice-president and other officers elected were: Mrs. Silas M. Wheelock, second vice-president; Mrs. Andrew V. Frost, recording secretary; Miss Mary E. Wheaton, corresponding secretary; Mrs. George A. Twigg, treasurer.

The home of the late George A. Hammond, on Oak hill, has been sold to Mrs. Martha W. Budlong of Providence. The transaction was negotiated through Judge F. F. Russell, executor of the Hammond estate. It is not known whether the new owner will occupy the residence or not. The Hammond house was a palatial and imposing residence in its day. It is situated on Oak hill and commands an excellent view of the entire city. In recent years and since the death of Mr. Hammond there has been little or no care devoted to the house or its spacious grounds and the one-time beautiful effect has become clouded with the uncut lawn and the faded and chipping paint on the house.

Today was Friday, the 13th, and to all those respecting superstitious gestures, the so-called "jinx" was supposed to have roamed. However, the gods of ill luck had played no part in the city's daily routine. The officials of the city court were given a holiday when the blotter at the police station was without entry at 9 o'clock this morning and the new sheet remained without a blot until late this afternoon.

Gerald Marcy of Worcester Tech has completed the year's study there and has returned to his home on Grand View to pass the summer holiday.

Graduation exercises at the Tourtellotte Memorial high school in North Grosvenordale were held last evening and were attended by a number of local people.

The reception and dance of the class of 1930, Woodstock academy, held Friday evening in the Hall Memorial gymnasium concluded the commencement week's festivities. The affair, one of the most colorful of the week, was largely attended by Woodstock and Putnam people.

Alfred Bardier of Providence street was in New York Thursday, where he attended the championship bout between Sharkey and Schmeling.

Assistant Superintendent William E. Sault of the New Haven division of the New Haven road, whose headquarters are in this city, is at his home in New Haven where he is recovering from a recent illness.

JEWETT CITY

FINN BROS. GIVE UP STORE AFTER 53 YRS. IN BUSINESS

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, June 13.—The recording of the leases today marks the passing of the business establishment of Finn Brothers. On the 23rd of the present month the Atlantic & Pacific company will move into the premises now occupied by Finn Brothers in the Finn block, vacating their present store in the Maynard block. Arremony & Son will then rent the whole street floor of the Maynard block, which will double the firm's space and frontage. The firm of Finn Brothers is the oldest store in the borough still doing business with the same firm name under which it was established 53 years ago. The business was begun by the two older brothers, James and John. They started in a small way in the frame house near Ashland bridge Business increased to such extent that a transfer was made to a Main street store, in the double house now owned by Dennis Barnett. It was while there that James H. Finn became postmaster, and the postoffice was kept in connection with a general store, for years.

In 1897 the present Finn block was built. The store has been 33 years in the location which the A. & P. Co. is to take over. Daniel F. Finn is the sole survivor of the original firm established over a half century ago. The older residents, who have known and patronized this store for so many years, are speaking of the passing of a local enterprise, the business integrity, honest dealing and quality merchandise which figured as outstanding assets in its mercantile success.

and while the guest is enjoying "three squares" a day, "mother" is more than busy in various ways.

If there is any work "mother" does it, but if there is any glory, of course dad gets that.

And so, mother, isn't it right and fitting that you are sure of a new dress which is both cool and comfy?

We have some nifty little dresses of cotton which are as attractive as any silk dress (even more attractive than some of the cheapest-of-cheap silk dresses which are so widely advertised at "two-for" or "three-for"—a price which isn't even self respecting).

$1.98, $2.98, $3.98, or $4.98 are the prices.

And then we have some smart new silk dresses, some of them with a jacket to match, at $10.50, $13.50, and $16.50, which are all that a good dress should be.

They are so good that we don't have to apologize either for them or for the price.

Said the Diamond to your Hand

I DON'T care whether it is a dainty little lady's hand or a regular he-man fist, I do know that a Diamond would look well on it and you'll agree to that.

Now I'm Going to Tell You How You Can Have the Diamond and You'll Agree to that, too.

Don't touch the money you have saved — nor bring a lot of money with you. Just come in and pick out the Diamond you want, pay a very small sum down and out of your future earnings, pay the balance in weekly or monthly amounts that can be spared with comfort.

Certainly, that hand of yours won't be without a Diamond long, and it shouldn't be when owning one is made so easy.

REDUCE THE ACCIDENTS

Do you know that 35 persons will be killed and more than 1,300 injured by automobiles in Connecticut during the present month?

Do you know there will be about 2,500 accidents?

Do you know that these figures mean that an average of at least one person will be killed, and more than 40 injured each day, and that during the month about one in every 80 cars in the state will be in accidents?

These questions which are asked by the motor vehicle department are deserving of serious consideration. They are estimates based upon past performances. They are put forth with the knowledge that they can and should be reduced, that it lies within the power of the auto drivers to effect substantial reductions and that there is need of the motoring public being made to realize the responsibility resting upon each individual in accomplishing it.

While the department admits that many of the accidents will be due to recklessness, it is also apparent that many of them will result from carelessness. The deaths and accidents will for the most part be avoidable and it rests with the auto drivers to see that they are prevented.

Toward the close of last year a determined effort was made in Rhode Island to keep the fatality record within the figures of the previous year. In a similar way, it was set forth how many deaths could be expected before the close of 1929 unless greater care prevailed. It was emphasized daily with the result that the figures of the previous year were not exceeded. It showed what could be done when proper care and thought was given to safe use of the highways. There were deaths and there were accidents after the effort to keep down both was started but the anticipated number was prevented.

Connecticut is not waiting for the year end; it is beginning to inspire more care earlier in the year in the hope that the seriousness of the situation will be so impressed upon the minds of auto drivers as to make a substantial reduction in both fatalities and accidents. It is certainly time that we began to reduce accidents of all kinds on the highways instead of increasing them each year. Every move for increased safety is to be commended. Why not lend your assistance now?

CONNECTICUT APPLES

There is much to welcome in the announcement by the federal farm board that it is going to increase its efforts for the development of cooperative marketing associations in New England with the apple growers particularly in mind.

This is a step which will be regarded as much needed. That New England can and does grow fine apples is no secret. The difficulty is to get them. Seeking native fruit in the market is like looking for a needle in a haystack. Those who handle fruit maintain that it is impossible to secure it. They are able to obtain most anything that is grown in the way of apples from most anywhere in the country, but they find great difficulty in securing Connecticut or New England apples.

That the method of marketing the fruit is at fault has been previously set forth. There has been a failure on the part of apple growers in this part of the country to adopt the methods employed elsewhere. There is no effective marketing system. It is a case of everyone for himself, with the result that they do not get very far in competition with the better organized system in operation in other parts of the country. The lesson that has been set for years by the apple growers of western states hasn't been employed seriously enough in New England.

When the plea is put forth that there should be a greater demand for New England products by New Englanders, there should not be a failure to include apples in the list. We hear much about New England apples being just as good, if not better, but there doesn't appear to be a sufficient insistence in the demand for them to actually satisfy the buyer. He may ask for them but he is obliged to take something else, something that is made attractive but doesn't taste as good, something that commands a fancy price but doesn't satisfy.

What we need is more Connecticut apples for the Connecticut apple eaters. Other New England states will echo the same desire. If the farm board can help us to get them through developing cooperative marketing associations, may it get every possible encouragement by growers and by buyers.

THE FAIRFAX'S SPEED

It is easy enough to indicate what ought to be done in an emergency at sea before it happens or after it is all over. Whether it can be carried out in the stress of the situation is a question.

From the inquiry that is being made concerning the crash of the Fairfax and Pinthis off the Massachusetts coast in a fog, it becomes evident that a most unusual situation prevailed. But it is also apparent that when navigating in fog it is possible for much to happen. It calls for the exercise of every possible care in order to meet the uncertainties which are shut out by the impenetrable blanket. This calls for the regulation of the speed to the point where emergencies will be the least serious.

In the testimony given by officials of the Fairfax, that vessel was within between 150 to 300 feet of the tanker before the latter was seen. It was parently impossible to prevent a collision, but while the coasting vessel had been proceeding at half speed and with the engine stopped at previous time after leaving Boston it was going at 11 knots when the tanker was seen. That was within two and a half knots of the vessel's full speed. The means employed to prevent a collision after the tanker was sighted was all that could be expected, but the speed was such and the distance so slight that prevention was impossible.

While testimony was to the effect that it would have made no difference had the Fairfax been going at half speed, it is quite apparent that it would have given a decidedly different impression to the situation. It would have indicated that more satisfactory measures for the prevention of what actually occurred were being taken, and even to one not versed in the navigation of a ship it would appear to be easier to stop a ship going about seven knots than one going 11, while the impact in the former instance would be lighter.

Pushing through fog at a too rapid speed involves many chances in spite of all the aids that are furnished to the navigators. It has been the cause of too many serious marine accidents.

FLAG DAY

By proclamation of Governor Trumbull, today is designated as Flag day and set aside "as an occasion to emphasize the history and significance of our country's flag; to acquire a knowledge of its proper use and a respect for its traditions; and to recall with pride its honorable place in the forward march of civilization."

Well may we give thought to the national emblem and its proud history and well may we pause for the consideration of the words of Calvin Coolidge concerning the American flag. Back in the years when he was governor of Massachusetts he wrote:

"Works which endure come from the soul of the people. The mighty in their pride walk alone to destruction. The humble walk hand in hand with Providence to immortality. Their works survive. When the people of the colonies were defending their liberties against the might of kings, they chose their banner from the design set in the firmament through all eternity. The flags of the great empires of that day are gone, but the Stars and Stripes remain. It pictures the visions of a people whose eyes were turned to the rising dawn. It represents the hopes of a father for his posterity. It was never flaunted for the glory of royalty, but to be born under it is to be a child of a king, and to establish a home under it is to be the founder of a royal house. Alone of all flags it expresses the sovereignty of the people which endures when all else passes away. Speaking with their voice, it has the sanctity of revelation. He who lives under it and is loyal to it is loyal to truth and justice everywhere. He who lives under it and is disloyal to it is a traitor to the human race everywhere. What could be saved if the flag of the American nation were to perish?"

Flag day, especially, we should be mindful of what the flag has meant for so many years and what it holds in store for the future. It stands for a nation that assures life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, that has provided great institutions and ideals and that has become a leader in the world.

GETS THEM NOTHING

While the foreign relations committee is proclaiming that its purpose in seeking the papers, which the secretary of state has declined to turn over to them because it would be incompatible with public interest, is to keep clear its claim that it should have all documents that entered into the negotiations of the London treaty, it appears to be a continuance of that pronounced effort for months to embarrass the administration. It has the support of the democrats and the insurgents. That tells the story clearly. Further than that, it is the resort of the few who are opposed to the treaty to obtain a foothold upon which to base further opposition to the treaty.

It is recognized by the committee that it does not lie within its power to demand the papers which it is considered ought not to be made public. It made the request of the president for them and it was furnished with all of any vital consequence. There were others of a nature which should not be made public by this country and which this government could not hand out and be fair to the others. Such is fully understood by any who have a knowledge of matters and it is well known by the senators involved.

Through their insistence upon keeping their claims straight, they have adopted resolutions, which got majority support in committee, to the effect that they believed the rights of the senate entitled them to have all the papers. That secures for them no authority by which they can obtain them. They have expressed themselves, but so has the president through the secretary of state, and it is quite certain that the resolution will bring about no change of view in the executive department. It gets them nothing, not even sympathy, and to most minds there has been set forth no reason why it should.

EDITORIAL NOTES

It's Flag day. Yours should be flying with the rest.

Nothing ever quite wore out its welcome like the present United States senate.

The man on the corner says: If you're not knee deep in June you are certain to get there soon.

Now that a sea serpent has been reported by a Gloucester schooner captain, business ought to be good at the New England shore resorts this summer.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

There is one point on which public opinion ought to make an emphatic declaration, because it pertains to a public nuisance. I refer to the scattering of litter in public places. Possibly it may not be a menace to public health, but there are other things to be considered in the life of a community as well as its healthfulness, although this is supremely important. This matter was brought vividly to the writer's notice on Memorial day when he saw the littered condition of Chelsea parade at the conclusion of the exercises. There might have been some excuse for the litter had there not been ash cans provided within easy reach for all such refuse. It is expensive to go over this ground with rakes in order to make the premises look decent. A little thoughtfulness would have avoided all this.

Every structure conceived by the genius, and erected by the energy, of man, is not necessarily of permanent value. There is, of course, a perfectly good reason for this. Man is all the time increasing in wisdom and the knowledge of the truth. Buildings adapted to the requirements of one generation are not always adequate for the succeeding one. What man today would be satisfied to live in an Indian wigwam? What changes have been made in church architecture during the last half century? The plain New England meeting house has outwardly little in common with the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. One of the most radical changes is the new Manhattan Towers, a literal skyscraper, which is to house the congregation of the old Manhattan church.

Much is being said in the newspapers, periodicals and other sources, on the importance of condensing on the part of public speakers. A certain minister was so much impressed with the idea that he began to compress his sermons. When this became noticable, a sharp-tongued spinster of his flock remarked that in so doing the minister squeezed enough gas out of his sermons to run his automobile. Some feeble-minded people did not believe this, but the top-notchers did, and among the latter was the minister's largest giver, the proprietor of a gas filling station, who was so indignant at the minister that he withdrew his support. Some thought that this was persecution and rallied around the minister, and more than made good what he had lost. It is not stated that after this experience he compressed any more of his sermons, but it was quite plain that he took longer and more frequent automobile trips.

As one looks back over any considerable period of time is there anything more conspicuous than the contradictions in human nature? The writer's attention has recently been called to a pungent article on Roger Williams. While the article doesn't say anything particularly new, it does put the old question of consistency in a powerful light. There were many noble qualities in the old Pilgrim fathers that we cannot underrate. Their courage in standing up for what they considered to be right was most praiseworthy, and yet one wonders at their perverse inconsistencies. They left the old world for some place where they could worship God according to their own consciences. But is it not most amazing that they would not tolerate those who differed with them? Roger Williams believed that all men should be free to think for themselves and for such audacity he was banished from Boston and set up a colony where there should be liberty of thought and speech.

A phase of work is now being earnestly considered by our churches that was very sadly neglected until quite recently, and that is religious education on a broad scale. The time was when the Bible was read in our common schools, for the most part without comment and much less explanation. It is not easy to see where this injured anybody. At length the Bible was taken out of our schools and the young had practically no instruction in sacred things apart from the inadequate work of the Church school. This was inadequate chiefly because only one hour a week was devoted to it. Now every city and large town has its council of religious education and the training of the children in morals and religion is now regarded just as important as mathematics or language. The vacation schools, now so common are, along this line.

Speaking of this comparatively new work of religious education reminds one of the numerous paths to learning which we of this generation enjoy, but of which those of an earlier generation knew very little. Before me on my study table lies a photograph of a beautiful waterfall in California which the sender could see from a hotel window. This relative of mine is on a sight seeing tour in the western part of the country. How many thousands are doing the same thing today! Wealth and better traveling conditions make this possible. Is it not a very important means of intellectual develoment? It has a broadening tendency and also gives a better understanding of one another by breaking down the barriers of narrow provincialism. One reason why Europe respects us more than formerly is because she knows us better from first hand knowledge. Nothing will make war harder than by knowing one another better.

A good illustration of the above is the greater respect the nations have for our national flag than formerly, and it is quite appropriate to make some allusion to our national emblem on this very day, June 14, 1930, a date that has become nationally known as Flag day. Every school boy is acquainted with the fact that on June 14, 1777, the Continental congress adopted the stars and stripes as the flag of the United States, and thus it has remained unchanged for 153 years, with the exception of having a new star added as a new state has been admitted into the Union. It is interesting to see the earnestness of the younger generation as it salutes the flag on public occasions. Beyond all question the Boy Scout movement has had much to do in building up in the hearts of the young generation an affection for "Old Glory."

KIMBALL BIRD SANCTUARY, NEAR WESTERLY, NOW SWARMING WITH SUMMER WARBLERS

This month sees the last stage in the migration of summer warblers, which are now busy nesting. The high wave of migration for this section was noted on May 22 and 23 at the Audubon society's official observation post for the transition, or Alleghanian, bird-life zone in which eastern Connecticut is included. This observation post, known as the Kimball Bird sanctuary, is situated on Watchaug pond nine miles east of Westerly. The report of the observer at this point reads:

16 Warblers Within Arm's Reach.

"My experience Thursday and Friday (May 22 and 23) especially Thursday morning, was that wonderful experience with the warblers that comes once in a lifetime. I was so thrilled I was speechless. At one time there were 16 warblers, five species, within arm's reach. The lovely Wilson warbler with the shining black spot on the top of its head, I could have touched with my right hand.

"The magnolia was the only one that sang. The others were very busy eating aphids on the gray birches.

"Friday morning I saw three Canadian warblers down near the pond. As I was watching them closely, a bird, in general appearance black and white, flew to a small bush near me. Turning to look at it more carefully, I saw its throat and breast were a lovely yellow and belly white; a yellow-throated warbler?

"There were many black-poll warblers which sang quite a little, the Canadian only a few times. Mr. Forbush gives the best description of the song. My list of warblers on May 22 was 16 species, while on May 23 it was only 10. The waxwings came May 23, also the first veery (Wilson's thrush). The list of species up to date so far this year is 110.

"For some unknown reason, the robins have chosen to build in the burned pine thees. There are now four robins that have built in them. On May 24 the quail came to the feeding station out by the cellar door, and fed on the ground under the feeder. This morning they came into the back yard of the bunglow but not to the feeder.

"One evening the last week, 18 male and one female cowbirds were eating together under the dining room window."

Yellow Throat a Pioneer.

Commenting on the Audubon report in the Providence Journal, Alice Hall Walter writes:

"The unusual warbler with the yellow throat seen at the sanctuary May 23, if a real wanderer of that name from the south, would make a record for this state, although a few of this species in years past have been casual visitors to Massachusetts. In the case of such an observation, one can only set down as accurately as possible every item not only of the strange bird's plumage, but also of its actions, hoping to verify every detail later.

"It is regarded as the best policy to add an interrogation mark to such a field observation, unless two or more trained observers are on the spot and have the opportunity to watch the bird, or unless the bird is taken or picked up dead, as happens sometimes, when an unquestionable identification can be made in a museum.

"At least 24 species of warblers have been identified in the sanctuary the last few years, and three records of interest like that of the yellow-throated warbler, which must stand in a list by themselves by reason of extreme rarity, might be suggested as possible, but not indisputable. In keeping records of birds, especially of transients in any locality, never set down a species on the regular list unless identified beyond all doubt, is the advice of the most experienced ornithologists."

Summer Birds of Southern Connecticut.

Herewith is a descriptive list of the birds peculiar to southern Connecticut and the lower Hudson valley, as given in Ralph Hoffman's "Guide to the Birds of New England and Eastern New York," published by Houghton Mifflin and Company, Boston and New York. The book is obtainable at the Otis library.

The figures at the left indicate the length of each bird in inches. A robin is 10.00 inches long; an English sparrow is 6.33 inches.

Black.

8.50. Only near New York city, or Long Island Sound; purplish or greenish at close range; feathers of upper parts tipped with buff; bill yellow.—Starling.

Brown or Brownish.

6.00. (Not found north of Rhode Island.) In salt marshes.—Seaside Sparrow.

5.75. Upper parts brown; throat and breast dusky; always in flight. —Rough-winged Swallow.

5.50. (Rare in southern Connecticut.) Skulks in bushes; whistles loudly; conspicuous whitish line over eye.—Carolina Wren.

Gray or Grayish.

6.28. Near water; under parts streaked with black; tail constantly wagged.—Louisiana Water-thrush.

5.51. Back greenish-gray; head striped with black and buff.—Worm-eating Warbler.

Yellow, Orange or Chestnut, with Black.

5.67. In wet woods and in laurel; back of head and throat black; forehead and cheeks yellow.—Hooded Warbler.

5.40. In wet woods; line over eye yellow; side of throat black.—Kentucky Warbler.

4.80. Top of head and under parts yellow; line through eye black; wing-bars white or yellowish-white.—Blue-winged Warbler.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Canterbury Roads

Mr. Editor: As a resident of Canterbury the letter in Saturday's Bulletin threatening a law suit against our town interests me. I have been waiting for one of our town officials to answer the letter as it is their duty to do. Like many other towns in this state, Canterbury has an intolerable road situation which is much more fully recognized by its own residents than by anyone visiting its graveyards once or twice a year. If a law suit would solve the problem all well and good, but any right thinking person will know that this would not improve the roads nor give an aggrieved person any satisfaction and could become a long drawn out suit to end in the state supreme court as a test case.

The fault is not with the town of Canterbury, whose taxes probably are higher than in any other town in the state. This town has made its mistakes in road repairing in past years as most other towns have, expending its alloted road funds for temporary instead of permanent work. We are now steadily going about the task of filling in and graveling the worst of the roads to the fullest extent of our meagre resources.

All this of course does not give the writer of the letter in question the satisfaction for his irritating experience last Decoration day. Perhaps we can all seek relief at election day by voting for a candidate for the governor's office who is interested in our cause. I take my hat off to Governor Roosevelt of New York who is at present actively engaged in remedying the country road situation in that state, a problem very similar to our own.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, June 13— Seeking the stuff of poetry, you scarcely would turn to the files of the Army war college. As an institution it has not much to do with romance.

It is a university of war, a place where professional soldiers already tested in important commands gather to weigh and ponder the grim realities of combat, to plan and prepare for future possibilities.

Yet here is an excerpt from a war college lecture during the tenth year following the close of the war:

"The American effort in the world war took little root in the imagination of our countrymen. The censorship did its work thoroughly and well.

"It was a war of another age than the one in which our fathers fought. It was fought far away and in a foreign land. It furnished no legendary heroes, no Jeb Stuarts, Phil Kearneys, Custers, Hancocks or Phil Sheridans.

"The purple mists of song and story have not yet begun to lend their generous inaccuracy to its deeds. Perhaps they never will. . . .

"But a thousand memories throng the hearts of those of us who had a part in its accomplishments, and to those of us in middle life or later, nothing else will ever seem quite so much worth while. Much was expected of the American Expeditionary Forces, and they made good."

Words Of A Fighter

The words fell from the lips of a busy man, a professional soldier in the fighting, a captain of industry in the peace times that followed.

They were spoken by James G. Harbord, twice Pershing's chief of staff, once chief of the Service of Supply in France, and between-times, battle commander of the second division at Belleau Wood.

War college lectures as a rule do not become available as a part of the printed literature of the land. Their only circulation is within the military family.

But this particular lecture was a thing apart. It was a narrative, by the one man who stood closest at Pershing's side in those days "over there."

Symposium By Dawes

It was that special quality of Harbord's no doubt which drew the attention of former Vice President Dawes to his lecture. Dawes, himself touched by a gift for musical expression and composition, also shared those memories.

So it happened that it was Dawes who drew together this and other addresses of Harbord's in a little personal history of the A. E. F. And in his foreword to the volume, General Dawes says it should help a reader to measure the "accomplishments" of that army.

It certainly should.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Peter Is Given a Scare

Most people like a little joke,
But some, alas, it doth provoke.
—Jerry Muskrat.

Starnose the Mole abruptly bade Peter Rabbit good by and disappeared into one of his numerous tunnels. He had remained out an unusually long time for Starnose. Perhaps it was because he had had an unusually big worm. He needed it. Starnose has an unusually big appetite. You know, food makes what we call energy. The more energy one uses, the more food is needed to make new energy. The members of the Mole family are full of energy. Such workers as they are! And it isn't easy work. No, indeed, it isn't easy work. It is hard work. Digging is always hard work and the Moles are the greatest diggers of whom I know. They eat in order to dig and they dig in order to eat; for it is to find the worms that much of their digging is done.

After Starnose had disappeared, Peter sat close to the edge of the bank of the Smiling Pool and back to it. It was very warm. Peter began to grow sleepy. It was very nice over there by the Smiling Pool; it was very pleasant. Over in the alders, Redwing the Blackbird was singing. Peter always did like to hear Redwing sing. In the Smiling Pool itself some of the Frog folk were singing now and then. Over on the far side of the Smiling Pool Grandfather Frog was saying, "Chug-a-rum! Chug-a-rum! Chug-a-rum!" in a great deep voice.

Peter's eyes kept shutting. Then he would open them with a start, only to close them again. In a little while Peter was actually asleep. Of course, it was a very light sleep, for Peter is far too wise to ever sleep heavily. Jerry Muskrat came swimming along with nothing in particular to do. He looked up and saw Peter sitting on the bank. Jerry stopped swimming and floated for a few minutes, looking very hard at Peter. Then Jerry grinned. Once more he began to swim. He swam until he was right back of and below Peter. He looked up at Peter's back. Then he grinned once more. What do you think he did then? He dived, and as he did so he brought his tail down hard on the water. When that tail slapped the water it made a sudden sharp noise. Peter's eyes flew open. At the same time he came to life in other ways. He bounded away, lipperty-lipperty-lipperty-lip, and was well out in the Green Meadows before he really knew what he was doing. All he knew was that he had been frightened by a sudden noise. Now he stopped and looked all around. He looked back toward the Smiling Pool. Nowhere could he see anything that was cause for fright.

He hesitated a few minutes. Then very slowly he began to make his way back toward the Smiling Pool. Every few steps he would stop to sit up, look and listen. So at last he got back to the place where he had been sitting. He looked all over the Smiling Pool. It was as peaceful as it had been before he dozed off. Apparently there was nothing and there was no one to account for the sudden fright Peter had had.

"I must have dreamed it," thought Peter. "That's it; I dreamed it. That's what comes of dozing off in broad daylight."

Just then Jerry Muskrat started to swim across the Smiling Pool toward where Peter was sitting. "Hello, Peter!" said Jerry. "Where did you come from?"

"I've been here a long time," said Peter.

"My mistake," replied Jerry. "I sure thought I saw you coming from over there on the Green Meadows. It must have been some one else." Jerry's eyes were twinkling as he said this. Peter turned his head to look back. Jerry's tail struck the water again—slap!—and Jerry disappeared beneath the surface. Peter jumped and all but jumped right into the Smiling Pool.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

Honesty

Honesty may be defined as good intention to all men, faithfully executed without considerations of policy or personal advantage. The old man in Maine who said to his son John, when he was going out into the world to make his fortune, "John, honesty is the best policy, I've tried both," could hardly be called a good advice. Such honesty is worth very little in a test.

How many ways we may show honesty and dishonesty in our daily lives, not only in business dealings and the property of others, but in our every thought and deed. And above all we should be honest with our Heavenly Saviour. He who has given us our all. All that we are and all that we have we owe to Him. Even the air we breathe. Life itself is a gift from Him to be used for His glory. Can we claim to be honest if we fail to render faithful service? How can we face our Master if we have proved false to this great task, as the Saviour said we should.

If we are honest with God it will be impossible to be dishonest with man. We all admire a person we know are just what they appear to be. The motto: "To be not to seem" covers so much. If this could be our goal, how different would be our lives. How much happier and how much happier would be the lives of those we come in contact with. Our lives would be not only a blessing to ourselves, but to others.

Stories That Recall Others

Retrieved

Marjorie's wrist watch of none too great cost in the first place, had refused to run finally, and her mother, thinking it would not be worth the cost of repairing, presented it to little brother, John, who was delighted. In a few days she noticed that Marjorie was wearing it again, and asked what had happened.

"Well," rejoiced Marjorie, "John wore it and banged it against a few things, and it started running!"

Old Stuff

Tom had been hearing Kipling's "Just So Stories" for the first time, and his imagination had been stirred and his vocabulary considerably enriched.

A cake of mother's baking had not come up to the usual standard and had been removed from the table almost untouched after two meals. The next day when ice cream was served for dessert, Tom looked about the table inquiringly. "And what," he asked, "has become of that Neolithic cake?"

A History Of Connecticut Industry

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

Cameron Electrical Mfg. Co., Ansonia.

The Cameron Electrical Mfg. Co., at Ansonia, where commutators or every electrical use have been made for the past 26 years, is adequately equipped with the most modern facilities and in the basement of their factory is a stock-room in which is at all times upwards of 100,000 pounds of copper bars of 1200 different shapes, used for commutator segments.

Because commutators are so necessary their production has grown to become one of the important branches of the electrical industry and because of the demand for these devices, several organizations have been established to manufacture them. Realizing that the production of commutators was a highly specialized industry and that there was a need for independent producers of these devices, The Cameron Electrical Mfg. Co., founded in 1902, has grown during the past 26 years, until today it is recognized in the electrical industries as one of the leading organizations of its kind.

After a few years in business the original H. P. Cameron organization was taken over by a group of men headed by John T. Kent, president and treasurer; John B. Davidson, vice president; and John Elliot, secretary. Twenty-two years ago the new Cameron organization moved from the original small factory into the plant it now occupies, on Main street in Ansonia.

Mr. Davidson first came into the business of manufacturing commutators as mechanical engineer of the group that took over the original Cameron business. Later he was made vice president and general manager, and in subsequent reorganizations became president and treasurer of the present company.

With a background of engineering and electrical training and at all times being in direct contact with all manufacturing operations, Mr. Davidson has seen his organization grow from a small factory employing some six or eight men and producing a small number of commutators a day to an institution of prominent importance in the industry, employing as many as 125 workmen and manufacturing upwards of 300,000 commutators annually.

To do this, Mr. Davidson points with prode to the fact that the business has been builded upon a reputation for quick, prompt service and quality products. This has only been possible because of the extensive facilities of the company and because it is a hard and fast rule of the Cameron company that it always have on hand sufficient materials from which to supply any average demand for any kind or type of commutator.

From time to time there have been changes in the personnel of the organization, until today John B. Davidson is president and treasurer; Irving Whiting, vice president; John Elliot, secretary; and George B. Andrews, general manager and assistant treasurer.

SPARKS CIRCUS PRESENTS ALL-STAR PERFORMANCE

Sparks circus came to the city Friday and gave two performances at the fairgroundds that had the top-notch marks of quantity and quality that deserve to make its 40th annual season on the road its most successfu. There wasn't a weak spot in the whole aggregation that performed under the big tent and everybody got his money's worth in clean, exhilirating entertainment, snappy music, side-splitting clown acts, and thrills of all kinds.

To begin with there was the menagerie, showing, camels, elephants, zebras, ponies, monkeys, tigers and lions, among which was presented the unusual opportunity to see five tiger cubs, some only a month old, a baby camel and a baby zebra.

Then there was the band, something distinctly different from the ordinary combination of blatant horn blowers, for they were a real group of musicians whose playing was a pleasure to listen to and they had the added novelty of a calliope accompaniment throughout the show.

From the time the performance started there were no idle moments in the three rings and the big steel cage which provided the special arena for the two fine trained wild animal acts, displaying a group of lions which were matched by an equally well trained group of tigers. Sleek, intelligent horses, every one in the pink of condition, trotted through their evolutions in the two circular rings and up in the air a dozen trapeze and ladder balancing acts were performing at the same time.

Combination pony and dog acts, high and broad jumping gray-hounds, trained pigs, chariot racing dogs with monkey drivers, were some of the fine animal specialties, not forgetting the elephants of which nine were seen performing at once, with their lady trainers, closing with a grand massed salute in front of the central seats.

The Nelson family of acrobats were a star attraction as were the Aerial Walters in some breath-taking high horizontal bar and trapeze work with a lot of good comedy.

One of the high spots of the show was the display of champion dancing horses, beautiful animals with women riders, whose cleverness matched their beauty, and sharing the honors with them were the jumping horses, one of which takes the bar through a blazing line of fire.

Along with the main show were the numerous side shows and the Wild West performance which followed the main show and make the Sparks circus a truly worth while show.

GIVES 9TH BROADCAST IN SERIES BY NORWICH COMMERCE CHAMBER

The Doctor an' the Schoolmaster gave the ninth of the Norwich broadcast series Friday night from 10 to 10:30 from WTIC, Hartford. Here is what they said:

ANNOUNCER: Two old friends, the Doctor and the Schoolmaster, return for another visit at this hour, under the sponsorship of the Merchants' Bureau, chamber of commerce, Norwich, Connecticut, the "Rose of New England." This program is the ninth of a series of programs in which Norwich has extended to the world a cordial invitation for a visit this summer.

Norwich is the shopping center of eastern Connecticut. The location of our city, about midway between New York and Boston, enables more than 200 mercantile houses to offer the best quality of merchandise. Norwich is also an important wholesale distributing center, having a total of 44 wholesalers who estimate a trading population of 158,000.

While the territory is largely industrial in character, nevertheless, Norwich is an important agricultural district. The offices of the New London County Farm bureau are located in the city, and seven rural delivery routes extend to the outlying districts from the local post office.

Within the town of Norwich there are 75 miles of improved streets, of which 46 miles are within the city limits. There are excellent police and fire departments. Norwich has two daily newspapers, the Norwich Bulletin and the Norwich Evening Record.

The city is an important banking center, with two commercial banks and three savings banks. Local families, who wish to own their own home find assistance at the Norwich Building and Loan association. Thirty-one churches, representing 12 denominations extend a cordial invitation. As to hotels, there is the new Norwich Inn, the Wauregan hotel, which maintains a dining-room and coffee-shop service, also the Auditorium and Del-Hoff hotels.

This evening, our two friends are on the Thames river, in a row-boat. The Doctor is attempting to row, when he thinks of it. The Schoolmaster has a small portable radio-set in the stern of the boat, which is giving him some trouble. The net result forms our program for this half-hour.

SCHOOLMASTER: You're a dead loss as motive-power, Doctor! Whenever you start to talk you stop rowing!

DOCTOR: But I've been doing both. So far, you haven't got a single whistle out of that box of yours, and heavens knows you've talked enough!

SCHOOLMASTER: I'll have her going in a minute. And you'd better watch your oars. We've been aground three times since we set out. And after all the help you got from the Thames National bank.

DOCTOR: What has the Thames National bank got to do with my running aground. I'd like to know?

SCHOOLMASTER: Well, it has. When the Thames bank was first organized, their charter bound them to maintain a depth of at least ten feet in the channel of the Thames river, at common and ordinary tides.

DOCTOR: Funny how those old-time legislatures used to take a fiendish delight in making new banking concerns dig out rivers!

SCHOOLMASTER: Thames national is a hundred and five years old today. If human beings were only like banks, doctor, what a world this would be.

DOCTOR: You mean financially of course.

SCHOOLMASTER: No physically. At a hundred and five years of age, a human being isn't a very prepossessing sight. But banks! Ah me! The older they get, the more they delight the eye, with white marble, mahogany, mosaic floors, electric lights. And their years add to their strength.

DOCTOR: A man with such artistic leanings as yours must find a great delight in entering a bank.

SCHOOLMASTER: I wonder what would happen if William Greene, their first president, and Lyman Brewer, their first cashier, could stroll into the Thames National bank today? They'd be a pair of surprised men, don't you think?

DOCTOR: It's a very difficult thing to surprise a banker.

SCHOOLMASTER: But look at the change! The Thames bank was organized in 1825. Their capital stock was only $200,000. Compare that with the one million, one hundred thousand of now. Just a hundred and five years ago, Sunday, June 8th, 1825, the bank commissioners held their first meeting. Some ten or fifteen days later, they met again at Kinney's hotel.

DOCTOR: Kinney's hotel must have been a busy place in those days.

SCHOOLMASTER: It was busy that day for four hours. In that time about $800,000 worth of stock was taken up in subscriptions. The bank was chartered at the first meeting of the stockholders. On the 30th of this month, is the 105th birthday of the Thames National bank.

DOCTOR: Congratulations will be in order, I suppose.

SCHOOLMASTER: The bank has one account with another bank in New York city which has been running over a hundred years. In 1861, at the outbreak of the Civil war, the bank loaned the state of Connecticut a hundred thousand dollars. And it was doubtful at that time whether there would be a government in existence when the amount became due.

DOCTOR: And they say banks don't take chances.

SCHOOLMASTER: No government, no bank! But both came through nicely. There was a consolidation in 1929 with the Banker's Trust company. The new name is the Thames Bank and Trust company. But that doesn't alter traditions nor history. In another way, doctor, banks are something like humans. Old friends are the best.

DOCTOR: Got something at last on that box, did you?

SCHOOLMASTER: Yes, but I don't know how I did it. I'm trying to get WTIC, at Hartford.

DOCTOR: I was just mooning over history, professor, during that number. Dreaming about how it all began, in 1644, there were only three colonies in what we now know as Connecticut.

SCHOOLMASTER: Hartford was one, of course. I recall that much from my history. Wasn't New Haven another one?

DOCTOR: Yes, New Haven was one. Hartford, of course, was the capital of the colony known as Connecticut. The third was the little colony of Saybrook. The territory in the original grant for these three colonies had very optimistic boundaries.

SCHOOLMASTER: Whatever they may be.

DOCTOR: What would you say of a colony, or three colonies, whose territory was 60 miles wide and 3,000 miles long?

SCHOOLMASTER: Nonsensical.

DOCTOR: Benjamin Franklin expressed much the same sentiment, a century later, when Connecticut claimed parts of New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio. Their grant of land extended from the Narragansett river on the east to the Pacific ocean on the west.

SCHOOLMASTER: Quite a stretch of territory. And if the Pacific ocean hadn't been there they might have gone on indefinitely.

DOCTOR: You've heard of John Winthrop the famous governor of Massachusetts Bay colony. His son, John, Junior, was selected for governor of the new colony. At that time, he was 29 years old. The new colony was named Saybrook, after the two leaders, Lord Say and Sele and Baron Brook, of Warwick hall.

SCHOOLMASTER: So that's how it got its name.

DOCTOR: Two years later, in 1637, Colonel George Fenwich arrived at Saybrook with his wife Lady Alice and took young Winthrop's place as governor. During that same year some of the residents of Saybrook were murdered by the Pequot Indians. And that is where Major John Mason enters the story. The settlement appealed to Hartford for assistance and Major Mason was sent down to handle the job.

SCHOOLMASTER: I remember. You mentioned it before.

DOCTOR: Only last time I got sidetracked on the story of the Dutch sailors rescuing the two English girls.

SCHOOLMASTER: You're easily sidetracked doctor.

DOCTOR: Mason came down with 40 Indians and 90 Englishmen prepared to wipe up the country with the tribe of Pequots. A portion of the tribe was at their village at Mystic. Mason decided to attack here first but he fooled them into security by sailing past Mystic into the country of the Narragansetts.

SCHOOLMASTER: Seventeenth century strategy.

DOCTOR: The Pequots concluded he was afraid to attack and were at their ease. Mason doubled back and made the attack two hours before dawn. At first, he met with stubborn resistance. In a few hours, he gave the order to fire the village and fort. Between six and seven hundred Indians were killed. Not a half-dozen remained to carry the news to the main body of the tribe at Pequot. Those few managed to escape.

SCHOOLMASTER: A very thorough job.

DOCTOR: When Sassacus, the great sachem of the Pequots, heard of the disaster, he fled the country. His tribe were thrown into a panic, set fire to their village and ran in all directions. Most of them were captured and sold into slavery, but many were killed. Sassacus finally managed to reach the Mohawks, in New York state. They killed him and sent his scalp to Hartford. After that, Connecticut was a better place to live in.

SCHOOLMASTER: In other words, Major Mason made it safe for democracy.

DOCTOR: Of course. Uncas and his Mohegans remained. Eventually, they were given a 5,000-acre reservation at Montville. In 1774, there were about 800 Indans in this county. At the 200th anniversary of Norwich, 60 Mohegans were guests of General Williams.

SCHOOLMASTER: When did that occur?

DOCTOR: In 1859. Norwich was founded in 1659. And seven years later the state was divided into four counties. New London county lost much of her territory that time. But enough of it was left to make twenty-one towns. Most of them are named after places in England whence came their original settlers.

SCHOOLMASTER: That seemed to be a general custom of all pioneers.

DOCTOR: There's the town of Preston for instance. Do you know who settled and named it? Captain Josiah Standish son of the famous Miles Standish. We have one town named after Ben Franklin. Bedyard is named after the martyr of Fort Griswold and

PONEMAH MILLS TREASURER AMUSED BY FORD RUMOR

J. Arthur Atwood, treasurer of Ponemah Mills, Co., at Taftville, chuckled heartily over the wire Friday night when told by telephone of rumors that Henry Ford was making offers to buy the Ponemah mills. Mr. Atwood was reached at his home in Wauregan.

Mr. Atwood was told that the rumor current in Norwich Friday was that Henry Ford had made an offer of $3,000,000 for the mill but that the officers were holding out for $4,000,000.

The idea apparently amused him greatly, for his response was a good natured chuckle. "I don't believe Mr. Ford is buying any cotton mills just now," he remarked. "That's the first I've heard of it."

SCHMELING IS NOT RECOGNIZED AS CHAMPION BY NOTED SPORTS LEADERS

NEW YORK, June 13—(AP)—After sweeping Max Schmeling into the world heavyweight championship by unanimous consent, despite his feeble showing and the delirious ending of his battle with Jack Sharkey, the fight writers, donors of trophies, masters of boxing commissions and the common customers swept him right out again today.

There was an almost complete change of opinion manifest among those who at first declared that despite his victory on a foul in four rounds the German youngster won the official decision over Sharkey before a multitude of the faithful in the Yankee stadium last night and therefore was entitled to the heavyweight championship for which both men were fighting. Calmer judgment, in the cool and quiet of another day switched the fistic leaders to the view that no one was entitled to any honors on the basis of what happened in the stadium ring.

On one point there was unanimity of opinion—Schmeling was incapacitated by a left hook that landed fully six inches below the belt-line and the punch was unintentional. That blow destroyed what promised to be a fine heavyweight fight, and added another to the already long list of unsatisfactory endings that threaten to choke boxing to death in New York state.

William Muldoon, aged member of the state athletic commission, declared that Schmeling's name would not be engraved on the Tunney-Muldoon trophy, emblematic of the heavyweight championship, because of the foul. Other members of the committee agreed with him. The commission deferred action on the situation until the regular meeting Tuesday but Chairman James A. Farley indicated the young Teuton would not be recognized as the successor to Gene Tunney. Stanley Isaacs, president of the National Boxing association, decided upon a poll of members before settling Schmeling's status.

Despite the clamor and general opinion that Sharkey, because of his lack of control against both Phil Scott and Schmeling in his last two fights had disqualified himself from title consideration, Madison Square Garden set out early to arrange a return engagement. Sharkey was eager but the Teuton decided that he would not fight again until next June except for a possible bout in Germany. He will leave for the homeland in August after an exhibition tour.

Official figures disclosed that the customers paid for far more than they received in the way of entertainment Thursday night, gross receipts were $749,934 and the net $711,664. In the total attendance of 79,222 were 74,153 paid admissions. Schmeling and Sharkey each received checks for $177,917. Adding in moving picture and radio rights, the Garden and the milk fund, twin sponsors of the show, profited by about $144,500 apiece.

Sharkey, as is his custom, was on his way back to Boston two hours after the fight but Schmeling visited around the garden. He still suffered from pains in the groin and appeared wobbly. He told his mother in Berlin that about the fight by trans-Atlantic phone this morning.

"I have been hit foul before and never complained," he said, "but this one was too much. The punch was too strong. Sharkey was slowing in the fourth round. He seemed discouraged. I wish I could have won some other way. I fight him again next year.

"I am very unhappy about it. I don't know your American rules so well but I hope I can prove I am Der Weltmeister, the champion."

MONTVILLE INDIES BLANK NEW LONDON BANKERS

Ed Barrow, business manager of the Yankees, declined to comment one way or another on the case but intimated that Perry's announcement had not been authorized by the club.

The Shymas baseball team of Taftville will take on a team that is rated as a fast semi-pro team when they cross bats with the U. S. S. Wilke of New London today at the Providence street grounds, Taftville. The sailor boys are coming to town with a fine record, holding wins over some of the fastest clubs around the Whaling City and of having lost a 9 to 8 verdict to the Polish A. C. of Norwich which is formed of semi-pro ball players. The manager of the navy team, in sending his lineup stated that he is certain that the winning streak of the Shymas will come to an end in this afternoon's game. The following players will represent the Shymas in this game: Ulewicz 3b, Bunk 2b, Wilke 1b, N. Lemieux ss, J. Raymond cf, A. Lemieux lf, Burelle c, Benoit rf, while the pitching will be done by Dudeck and Raymond.

AMERICANS NEED THREE MATCHES TO WIN CUP

WIMBLEDON, Eng., June 13—(AP)—By winning only one of three matches in the first day's play for the Wightman cup, America's national women's tennis team left itself a difficult task for tomorrow if the trophy is to be taken back to the United States by Helen Wills Moody and her team mates.

It was Queen Helen, of course, who won her match in the expected manner, 6-1, 6-1, from Joan Fry. But her fellow-Californian, Helen Jacobs, lost to her English nemesis, Mrs. Phoebe Watson, at 2-6, 6-2, 6-4, and the youthful Sarah Palfrey and Edith Cross were beaten by Joan Fry and Ermyntrude Harvey of England by exactly the same scores.

As a result, the Americans must win three of tomorrow's four matches. Mrs. Moody is considered certain to account for one of them. Miss Jacobs, meeting Miss Fry, will have a chance to atone for her defeat by M. S. Watson today; and then either the 17-year old Boston girl, Miss Palfrey, must win her match against young Phyllis Mudford, or Mrs. Moody and Miss Jacobs will have to win in doubles, a feat no American combination has been able to accomplish since 1927.

NO FAVORITES IN AMERICAN DERBY TODAY

CHICAGO, June 13—(AP)—Fourteen speedy three year olds were named today to start in the $50,000 American Derby at Washington Park tomorrow with no outstanding favorite in the list unless it be Gallant Knight, second to Gallant Fox in the Kentucky Derby.

The field for the one and one quarter mile race includes five invaders from the east; Snowflake, Dark Sea, Ned O., Horn Pipe, and Zenofo; and two xtremely doubtful starters, Flyer and General Jackson. Tannery, Gallant Knight, Michigan Boy, Plucky Play, Reveille Boy, Portmanteau and Alcibades, all western hopefuls, complete the field.

Gallant Knight, Barnard S. Jones' winner of the Fairmount Derby and runner-up in the Kentucky Derby, appears to be the probable choice if the track is fast, while Michigan Boy, winner of the Louisiana Derby, may receive support if the track is heavy.

R. E. MITCHELL TO COACH AT KILLINGLY NEXT YEAR

Raymond E. Mitchell, a former star athlete of Westerly high school and a graduate of Springfield college, class of 1930, will be the athletic coach of Killingly high next year. School of Design and played on the basketball and baseball team for two years. Then he entered Springfield college where he made the freshman varsity football and track teams. He was a member of the varsity cross country team for three years, the track team two years and played on the class football and basketball teams. He also assisted in coaching Westerly high each year before returning to college in the fall.

YALE'S STAR PITCHER NOT IN CONDITION

NEW HAVEN, June 13—(AP)—Roswell H. (Hoppy) Rudd, Yale's star pitcher, was left behind tonight when the Yale baseball team entrained for Princeton for the second game of the three game series tomorrow.

The athletic association announced that "lack of condition" would keep Rudd, a senior, out of the remaining games this year. He has been troubled with a bad arm.

Rudd, who was ineligible in his sophomore and junior years, has been the mainstay of the Eli team this spring.

Ned Jennison will twirl in his place. Yale won the first game with the Tigers and hopes to end the series tomorrow.

Circus Day. How we used to thrill when the circus came to town. It was an event in our young lives which no matter how old we get we never forget.

Remember how we used to set the alarm clock for early in the morning so's we could see the circus unload? Remember how the first one up would round up the others and we'd go out in the cool gray dawn to the railroad station?

Next to Fourth of July the day the circus came to town was the big event of the summer. Remember how we'd pester the circus men for jobs so's we could get tickets and how we got under foot and came almost getting run over by the big circus wagon?

Remember when Fred Church pulled under the canvas on the lion's cage and the lion roared at him and Fred ran all the way home without stopping. How we kids laughed.

Remember the time Earl Sargent got the job carrying water for the elephants and how one old elephant after he had drank enough water just sprayed him with it. Poor Earl got soaking wet and his mother wouldn't let him go to the circus. That was tough luck but we all told him how good the show was and he tried to lick us all.

And the steam piano. Was there ever sweeter music than that? Remember how we would walk all side of it during the street parade and how deaf we were afterward?

Then after the circus had gone, remember how we used to practice the wild west rope throwing with mother's clothesline. Every one of us was going to be a circus man or lady when we grew up.

Remember how we'd try the acrobatic stunts on an old mattress with sofa pillows stuffed into our clothes where they'd do the most good?

Gee, wasn't those the happy days?

MOOSUP, June 13.—Moosup defeated Plainfield 4 to 3 last evening on the Carpet grounds at Moosup in one of the most exciting games of the Eastern Connecticut twilight league tilts. MOTION PICTURES AGREE WITH VERDICT OF REFEREE

NEW YORK, June 13—(AP)—The Schmeling-Sharkey bout, with all its boos and squawks, was moved today from the Yankee stadium to a Seventh avenue theatre but even the clear cut pictures and new fangled sound recording devices could not disguise it. It was the same old bout.

Crowds thronged the theatre all day, most of the customers with a question, "Was it foul?" After looking at the reproduction of the closing scenes of the fourth round a great majority of the crowd voted in the affirmative.

"That judge says it was a foul," Joe Jacobs said over and over again from the stage, as he did from the ring. Johnny Buckley was heard in rebuttal all day and half the night, "No foul, No foul."

The pictures seemed to agree with the official verdict.

ACADEMY PLAYS FINAL GAME OF SEASON WITH NAUGATUCK TODAY

PROBABLE LINEUP

N. F. A.	Naughatuck High
Arico, 1b	ss, F. Balinsky
Reardon, 2b	rf, Maranillo
Gibbs, ss (C)	cf, Solowocki
Fontaine, c	2b, A. Balinsky
Breen, 3b	3b, Spyrzenski
Weisgraber, lf	c, Smith
Pepin, cf	lf, Stapleton
Geer, rf	1b, Walsh
Greene, p	p, Murray

Game starts at 3 p. m.

The Academy will ring down the curtain on its 1930 baseball season this afternoon at the campus in tackling a formidable Naugatuck high nine. The game will start at 3 o'clock. Naugatuck comes here after having trimmed New Britain high last Saturday, 10 to 5. New Britain, it will be remembered beat the locals two weeks ago.

Today will mark the final appearance for five of the above regulars, who will probably form the starting Wildcat lineup today. They are Capt. Chubby Gibbs, shortstop; Bud Fontaine, catcher; Art Breen, third base; Butsy Weisgraber, left field and Hack Pepin, center field. In addition to these Ed Flather, utility outfielder, also dons his Academy suit for the last time today as all six will be graduated next Tuesday.

The Academy meets Naugy today in a revengeful frame of mind for this game in addition to providing an opportunity to make up for some of the five reverses suffered this campaign, also sees the Wildcats facing one of their two scholastic conquerors of the 1923 campaign. This team turned the trick in the closing game of the year, winning 4 to 2. The Academy had the game apparently sewed up until the seventh inning when the visitors put on a bunting attack that threw the Red and White all out of gear and forced them to submit to an unnecessary defeat. The other team that beat N. F. A. last year in the high school games was Harding of Bridgeport. The locals have beaten Harding this year and now wish to make it 100 per cent in revenge by winning this one this afternoon.

Boots Greene is expected to carry the N. F. A. mound burden today. After relieving Butsy Weisgraber in the abbreviated Hillhouse tilt last Saturday, Boots turned in an impressive performance and with any kind of a break should be able to send Naugy home beaten and give a nice taste to the finishing-up of the season.

KRESS' SINGLE IN 11TH WINS GAME FOR BROWNS

ST. LOUIS, June 13—(AP)—A single by Ralph Kress, Brownie shortstop, his first hit of the game, broke up a pitcher's duel and gave St. Louis an eleventh inning 1 to 0 victory over the Boston Red Sox here today. It was the second win for the Browns of the series.

Rip Collins turned in a four-hit game for his fourth victory of the season as he held the Red Sox powerless. He overshadowed Gaston's fine pitching, who let the Browns down with seven hits.

YANKS TAKE SLUGGING MATCH FROM TIGERS

DETROIT, June 13—(AP)—The New York Yankees won a slugfest from the Detroit Tigers 10 to 9 today. The victory gave the Yanks the odd game of the three game series.

Pipgras, Gomez and Sherid took turns on the mound for the Yankees but the Tigers found the trio for 15 hits while the New Yorkers got to Whitehill, Page and Sullivan for 14 blows. Of the collection of Yankee hits a home run by Sam Byrd with two on in the sixth proved the most valuable.

Babe Ruth had a perfect day at the plate, getting a double in his one official time at bat. He walked three times and sacrificed another.

INDIANS SHOW LITTLE MERCY TO CHAMPIONS

CLEVELAND, June 13—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians delivered the Athletics a terrific 15 to 2 wallop today and replaced them in first place in the American league.

They drove their southpaw Nemesis, George Walberg, to cover under a veritable barrage of base hits. Eddie Rommel, who followed Walberg, was quite as unsuccessful. Connie Mack sent in five substitutes in an effort to stop the onslaught.

Wesley Ferrell pitched one of his ordinary good games for the Indians. It was his tenth victory of the season. Three of the Indian runs were scored on a smashing homer by Dick Porter in the seventh with two on base.

The game concluded the series with the Athletics, which the Indians won, three to nothing. The score:

WESTERLY

ST. JOHN'S DAY OBSERVANCE TO BE HELD WED., JUNE 25

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., June 13.—Narragansett commandery, No. 17, K. T., of Westerly, Em. Sir Francis M. Johnson, commander, is making plans for an observance of St. John the Baptist day, June 24. As Wednesday is the regular day for the conclaves of Narragansett commandery, the observance this year will be held by the Westerly Sir Knights on the afternoon and evening of Wednesday, June 25. It is expected that there will be over 100 swords of Narragansett commandery in the short street parade which will follow a chicken supper to be served in the church school rooms of Grace M. E. church. The Templar parade will be headed by two motorcycle policemen and the Westerly band, Charles O. Gavitt, leader. Lines will be formed on High street and proceed through Grove avenue, Granite, Broad, West Broad streets to Elm Tree inn and countermarch to Dixon square and High street to the Commandery asylum, Masonic hall. Fourteen years ago Saturday, June 24, 1916, when the present commandery treasurer, Lewis Stanton, was commander, Westerly saw one of its largest St. John's day Templar parades, with over 500 swords in line. A Knight Templar band of Providence headed the line and St. John's commandery, No. 1, K. T., Providence; Milford, No. 11, K. T., Milford, Mass.; Woonsocket, No. 24, K. T., Woonsocket, R. I.; Bristol, No. 19, Attleboro, Mass., came to Westerly by special steam train from Providence and were met by Narragansett commandery of Westerly and Palestine commandery, No. 6, K. T., of New London, for a lengthy parade. Buildings and residences were elaborately decorated. Special electric cars were taken to Watch Hill and nearly a thousand Templars dined at the Ocean and Watch Hill houses.

Specially invited guests to take part in the parade at 7:30 include: Em. Sir Clinton G. Nichols, commander, Washington commandery, No. 1, Hartford; Em. Sir W. Avery Gallup, and council, Columbian commandery, No. 4, Norwich; Em. Sir Henry E. Hudson and council, Palestine commandery, No. 6, New London; Em. Sir Ansel A. Packard and council, Cyrene commandery, No. 8, Middletown; Em. Sir Russell Potter and council, St. John's commandery, No. 11, Willimantic. Rhode Island Templars' invitation will be further extended to Em. Sir Horace G. Belcher, commander; Sir Forrest E. Dean, generalissimo; Sir Alpheus S. Place, captain-general, and Em. Sir Frank S. Congdon, prelate, all members of Calvary commandery, No. 13, of Providence, the mother commandery of Narragansett, of Westerly.

At the conclusion of the parade, Templar degree work in the asylum, which was begun by Narragansett commandery officers at 4 p. m., will be resumed. Conclaves will not be held during the summer months. The committee in charge of the arrangements consists of Sir Fred W. Harvey, captain-general, chairman; Em. Sir Francis M. Johnson, commander, ex-officio; Sir George E. Leonard, generalissimo; Em. Sir Arthur N. Nash, master of ceremonies; Em. Sir David A. Lowry, assistant master of ceremonies; Em. Sir Arthur E. Thompson, Sir J. Russell Oppy, senior warden; Sir Ronald C. Dove, junior warden; Sir Samuel Bailey and Em. Sir Carl E. Burdick, recorder.

Healed At Last By Resinol

"I was a sufferer for weeks from a severe sore on my body which itched and burned intensely. My nights were really impossible. I tried every local remedy I knew as well as prescribed treatments, electricity, etc., but the condition continued to grow worse, and I was about to go to the hospital. Quite by chance I learned of and tried Resinol Ointment. The relief was immediate, and after a few applications the place healed perfectly." (Signed)—

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY
In Memoriam

Fallen—so soon!
While youth and hope and love were brightly burning,
Gone from us, ere had blossomed into noon
Life's radiant morning!

Fallen—no risen!
As Judah's prophet through the light ascended,
Burst from the shadows of earth's dismal prison,
In vesture splendid.

Thou poor bereft
Companion of her griefs and her rejoicings,
Are not the clouds that closed beneath her cleft
With tender voicings?

Let me draw near,
I would not thy great grief presume to follow;
I know how cold must seem the stranger's tear,
How vain and hollow!

But as a friend
Who one morn met her in youth's fairy portal,
I would bow down to see thy loved ascend
To life immortal.

'Tis memory's part
To seek her mounds upon the earth's cold bosom,
And on the grass above each pulseless heart
Lay down a blossom!

Ah, drear eclipse!
Yet, sad survivor, be no doubting Thomas!
Know 'twas God's holiest angel touched her lips,
And called her from us!

She is not dead;
She is eternal (evil evanescent)
And she thou mournest a halo round her head,
Is ever present.

She is not "gone,"
She is but changed a thing of heavenly vision,
That she may grow, and help the loved ones on To heights Elysian!
—From Danbury Jeffersonian.

Written upon the death of Mrs. Nancy Bowen Barrows of Rockville.

The Housekeeper's Soliloquy.

Here's a big washing to be done—
One pair of hands to do it—
Sheets, shirts and stockings, coats and pants;
How will I ever get through it?

Dinner to get for six or more,
No loaf left o'er from Sunday;
And baby cross as he can live—
He's always so on Monday.

'Tis time the meat was in the pot,
The bread was worked for baking,
The clothes were taken from the boil—
Oh dear! the baby's waking!

Hush, baby dear! There, hush-sh-sh!
I wish he'd sleep a little
Till I could run and get some wood
To hurry up the kettle.

Oh, dear! oh, dear! if P—comes home
And find things in this pother,
He'll just begin and tell me all
About his tidy mother!

How nice her kitchen used to be,
Her dinner always ready
Exactly when the noon-bell rang—
Hush, hush, dear little Freddy!

And then will come some hasty words,
Right out before I'm thinking;
They say that hasty words from wives
Set sober men to drinking.

Now, is not that a great idea
That men should take to sinning
Because a weary, half-sick wife
Can't always smile so winning?

When I was young I used to earn
My living without trouble;
Had clothes and pocket money, too,
And hours of leisure double.

I never dreamed of such a fate
When I, a lass, was courted—
Wife, mother, nurse, seamstress, cook, housekeeper, chambermaid, laundress, dairy-woman, and scrub general, doing the work of six,
For the sake of being supported!

Tears and Laughter

I have seen the tears that a strong man shed,
What agony, when he cries;
You cannot, cannot comfort him,
Lo, alone his own heart dies.

Many times I have seen the eyes of youth
Blurred from much long weepings;
Because of love they grieve, and I
Grieve not, because of reaping.

But once, when I saw a woman crying,
Sobbing because she lost her mate;
How helpless was I to comfort her,
When I had received the same sad fate.

But what is there more beautiful,
When tears turn into laughter?
For tears, you know, so often do,
After some great disaster.

SOME ECONOMIES

Dear Social Corner: I wonder how many others find they have many stockings with good feet but the tops badly torn. I didn't like this waste so I cut off the top at the knees or slightly lower and with pink or blue crochet cotton, crocheted around the tops using a shell stitch, two doubles in one place, a space of about a quarter of an inch and two more doubles, repeating all the way around. Turned this down one inch and crocheted around doubled top in the same manner. This makes a very pretty half sock.

A friend was telling me of another economy which interested. She saves all the buckles from her little son's worn out knickers and when making wash dresses with belts she enamels or lacquers a buckle any shade to match the dress and puts on the belt. They hold real well and look very neat.

Meat Loaf Roast: Four tablespoons quick cooking tapioca, uncooked; 3-4 cup tomato juice or meat broth, 1½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon parsley, finely cut; 3-4 pound (2½ cups) cooked meat, ground (veal, pork, ham, etc); dash of cayenne, dash of black pepper, ½ teaspoon onion, finely chopped. Combine tapioca, tomato juice, salt, cayenne pepper, onion, parsley and meat. Mix well. Shape into loaf in roaster or large pan. Bake in hot oven (450 deg. F.) 30 minutes; then decrease heat to moderate (350 deg. F.) and bake 30 minutes longer, basting frequently during baking with mixture of 1 cup hot water and 4 tablespoons butter. Serve hot or cold. Serves six.

KEEPING THE CHILDREN HOME

Dear Corner Friends: Keeping the children at home and happy in vacations is a problem. Why not turn the back yard into a play place? Swing a couple of auto tires from the trees, on ropes, instead of merely having swings with seats. Make a little sandpile for the babies. Turn a piano box or two upside down and let the older children make a house. You will be surprised how the children love to stay home!

With hot, thirsty days just ahead I would like to share a money saving scheme of mine. When lemons are only 35 cents a dozen, I put up the juice of several dozen according to the following proportions: One cup of sugar, one cup water, 2-3 cup lemon juice. Dissolve sugar in water, add lemon juice, boil five minutes, strain and seal hot in fruit jars. When wanted add six parts ice water to one part syrup. As this syrup keeps a very long time it is a real economy when the price of lemons soars sky high.

AN IDEA FOR OTHERS

Corner members and Writers: I have found many useful ideas on the Corner page and wish to offer a suggestion which may be helpful to other readers, especially pianists. We all know how the middle page of music sheets get mixed up with other music, etc., and, besides being provoking to the player, makes an untidy looking music cabinet.

I've remedied this very simply: I just cut two slashes ¼ inch long and ½ inch apart in the middle of the music on the folded side. Bend flap over to back and paste down, or better still, put a piece of stick-em paper over it. In this way the middle is securely held, does not interfere with any notes, and is never missing.

It's surprising how neat the music cabinet looks now.

I hope this idea will be useful to others as it has been to me.

Lamb Salad: Mix two cups of diced cold roast lamb, one cup of thinly sliced celery and three-fourths cup of asparagus tips. Add a few grains of pepper, one-eighth teaspoon of salt to 2 tablespoons of salad oil and one tablespoon of vinegar. Beat well and combine with lamb. Moisten with cream dressing and serve on heart of lettuce. Garnish with hard-cooked eggs, asparagus tips and celery curls.

CHATTY LETTER FROM BALSAM FIR

Dear Social Corner Friends: Well, how is everybody? Well, I hope. It has rained all day and some lonesome, I'll say. It is evening and most too late to go out so I will chat with you, dear people. We have been having some very warm weather and somehow, the heat takes hold of me. I am getting ready to open a novelty shop. Some job but they are pretty and something new. Wish you all could see it.

Jane of R. I.: I have mislaid your nice letter and have not been able to find it, but will say here that Jefferson is very near Augusta, 40 miles from here. I have never met anyone by the name you mention.

A whippoorwill is singing and they are coming quite near the house. We have not heard any so near by since the state road was built.

Crimson Rambler: I would love to call you up but have no idea where you are or the name of the people you are with.

Pal of Long Ago: You will hear from me some time.

Not far from my home out in the blueberry patch, is an oak tree which was struck by lightning not long ago. It is two and a half feet through at the ground and the limbs are eight feet from the ground. Well, the bark was torn off that tree, as nice as though a man had done it, all the way around it and carried away. Very few pieces were left on the ground. The trunk of that tree is split in all ways. Pieces are split into squares, yet firm. They cannot be moved. It is split the whole length with a crack wide enough so you can look through it and yet the upper part of that tree never was injured. It does beat all what lightning can do.

Not far from it is a white pine from which the lightning tore the bark on one side. I went with friends to Portland that same evening and when we were at South Gray stopped at Stonehaven for gas. A flash of lightning seemed to be nowhere but around the car. Our chauffeur got a slight shock and if I ever wished I was home it was that night.

Bay State: I was pleased to hear from you.

Meadow Lark and Lowthorpe: That sure was a nice letter.

Brave: I hope you are much better.

The summer places are all doing business and several new cottages are being built. Camp Gregory (a boys' camp) is opening earlier (two weeks) this year.

J. E. T.: Your letter was fine. I mean to write oftener but I am busy, so forget my duty.

Best wishes to all. BALSAM FIR

CHATTY LETTER FROM E. L. M.

Dear Social Corner Members: What a nice rain we have had and it was so much needed, too. How the weeds will grow now! We will have to keep busy.

Pernickety: I enjoy your letters, I, too, have been fooled more than once in tending some plant that turned out to be a weed.

Not long ago I had lunch at a roadside inn which looked so attractive. There were several small tables and chairs painted green. White curtains with cretonne overdrapes were at the windows and several wall vases that were made from plain vases covered with the fancy linings of envelopes were filled with wild lupin and lady slippers, something I had not seen in years. There are so many wild flowers that equal the beauty of the cultivated ones.

Recently I enjoyed a trip over the new road to Voluntown. What a fine thing it is for the people who travel it. I then went on to Plainfield and we went into a cemetery to see the stone at the grave of Burton Cady, having heard so many speak of it. As a child, I remember hearing a member of the family tell of the dances they had attended when Mr. Cady was in his prime. We then came back through Canterbury to South Windham.

When we were eating our lunch on the lawn at the Westminister church I thought of you, Round Robin, as I believe it's familiar ground to you and Clip, too. We looked in the church windows and the floral decorations were very pretty. I only wished we had been in time for the services. Apparently the church grounds have been used as a public thoroughfare to get onto another road, but a fence had been erected to stop that and the deep ruts were being filled.

Golden Glow: Did Mr. G. G. tell you I called. Glad you had a day off.

Stranger in the City: Wish you would write some more about the park. Three weeks ago I was at Roger Williams park. The early flowers were beautiful. There were so many kinds to be blooming so early. The immense tulip beds were lovely. The ground of one was covered in pansies, the other with for-get-me-nots. In the distance it looked like a blue mist. We enjoyed seeing the animals. The monkeys were still in a building and they are such funny things. The older people as well as the children like to watch them. I like to see the bears, too. One building was filled with guinea pigs of all sizes. The seals attract much attention but they make such an awful noise. I don't care for them. The peacocks and pheasants were beautiful with their many colorings. The elephant was new to me, not having been there when I was last there. She had her dinner while we were there. About two quarts of potatoes, two loaves of bread, a head of cabbage and a banana. She is 26 years old.

Ravena: Hope you see everything when you go again.

Beers: Is your pen name a family name? I saw a large stone with that name on it in the cemetery where Mr. Cady was buried. Suppose you will be taking week end trips without number. Do be generous and tell the rest of us about them. For those of us who can't take them the next best thing is to hear about them from those who have.

Now on next Tuesday the 17th Club No. 6 will hold its last indoor meeting for the summer in Mechanics' hall, Westerly. Ignats is to be the hostess. As this is her first time at it we hope to have a good number present so she will feel repaid. So come all who can and bring something good to make dinner and will you bring something to read, write or sing to help out on the program this time as those who usually take charge of that are so busy this month they cannot put as much time into it. They have entertained you for many months, so now is your chance to help them. The picnics will come next and no entertainment is needed. E. L. M.

BUTTERFLY DELPHINIUMS

Dear Social Corner: My gardening adventures would become stale if it were not for the fun of trying new things every season. Butterfly or Chinese delphiniums made their appearance in my garden four years ago. The catalogues describe them as ever-blooming bushy plants that blossom the first year from seed and are hardy perennials. The foliage is fernlike and the deep blue flowers are desirable for cutting.

I planted a part of a package of seed in the spring and a number of plants came up. One day while I was away the hired man was sent out to hoe the vegetable garden. Perhaps he was anxious to make a hit with the cook, for he tried to hoe around my flowers. This was all right for the asters but alas for my baby delphiniums! He must have thought they were weeds for he dug them all up. But I discovered his mistake in time to rescue several plants. These grew and later I had the joy of seeing them bloom. They were all that the catalogues said about them and more. The dark blue flowers made me think of large violets.

Two of these plants survived the winter and were lovely all the next summer. They grew about two feet high and were a mass of blue when in full bloom. The flowers were smaller than they were the first year. However, they made up for this in quantity of blossoms. I cut them back so they would not go to seed and later they bloomed again and were full of birds when hard frosts came.

The second summer I planted the rest of my first package of seed and raised several more plants. Are you wondering why I didn't use the whole package at one time? The answer may be that some of my ancestors were Scotch. Well, I have found that under favorable conditions a small amount of seed will produce all the plants I want. And if the first attempt is a failure I still have seed left for another trial.

Last year I raised some white butterfly delphiniums from seed. I do not consider them as desirable as the blues for all have a greenish tint. I have never yet seen a pure white delphinium. One catalogue lists a scarlet kind that is similar to the butterfly type. My blue and white ones are full of birds now. I have a bed of 20 plants in front of a bed of golden coreopsis. This spring I learned something new about my favorite delphiniums for I found some self-sown seedlings. I let a few seeds ripen so as to have some to share with my friends.

One reader asked about raising delphiniums from seed. The large kinds are not hard to raise and the catalogues state that they will bloom the first year if started real early. But I have also read that these plants are not at their best until two years old. Last spring I bought a regal delphinium plant and it did not bloom. It is now a fine large plant and budded. My chief objection to the large delphiniums is that they require staking. I am going to divide my Bells Donna and Bella Mosum delphiniums this fall. Does anyone want a root?

GATHERING SNAKE SKINS

Dear Social Corner Members: I wish to thank the sister who send the packages of magazines to the Bulletin office. I have just come in from a walk around the lots with Lassie, our collie puppy and introducing her to the woodchuck holes, making her acquainted with the baby turkeys and chicks and also looking for a big shiny black snake I saw and nearly stepped on it before I saw it one day last week. But as I neared its day-house today, I discovered glistening like a long rope of silver, the skin that the black snake had shed. It is the most perfect one I ever saw. I was afraid the owner of that skin was close by so I took a stick and very carefully and gingerly worked that skin out of the bushes and brought it in the house and it measured exactly four feet and ten inches. The skin is perfect from tip to tip. I'll get it all ready, nicely coiled in a work basket or something to have some fun with some people who are snake-shy. I know Stranger-in-the-City remembers the other one I had that seemed so natural.

Zuleika's letter about flowers was most interesting.

Well it's time for the mail now, so will close, as ever. OMAHA BEE.

RECIPE FOR YEAST FROM POTATOES WANTED

Dear Social Corner Friends: As I was reading Amby's nice letter about the use of vinegar it brought a memory of what my mother used to do when we were feverish was to wet our heads in vingear and warm water. Some simple remedies are very effective.

How to make yeast cakes: Soak a cake of yeast bought at the store until thoroughly dissolved in about one pint of luke warm water. Stir in sufficient flour to make a stiff batter and let rise four or five hours. When light, stir in as much dry cornmeal as you need to make a stiff dough, roll quite thin, cut in pieces about two inches square, and spread to dry. They dry better if made in warm weather. When making bread of these, use part sweet milk with water.

I certainly hope Try Again is feeling better and Ma of Green Gables is on the gain. I heard this week that Roberta was feeling much better. We miss Ann Tenna's letters.

I have knowledge that there were few letters this past week and I have faith there will be more this next Saturday coming.

I wish someone would send in how to make yeast out of potatoes.

SUGGESTION FOR BRIDES

Dear Editor: As our Corner page looked rather slim last week, I am sending a list of days for brides to choose upon which they will marry.

Marry on Monday, a bridegroom gay.

Marry on Tuesday, you will stray far away.

Marry on Wednesday, labor hard and long.

Marry on Thursday, you have judged him all wrong.

Marry on Saturday, your heart will be gay.

Marry on Sunday, strange happenings foretell, God's day for a bridal does not auger well.

Months: Marry in January, first days of the year, a bridal you'll choose that means many a tear.

Marry in February, short month, though it be, will bring you great blessings and a proud family.

Marry in March, when winds howl and blow, will bring you a life mate with heart pure as snow.

Marry in April, the month sure of showers, means fickle devotion where jealousy towers.

Marry in May, the month of bad luck, you must fight a sharp tongue with heart full of pluck Marry in June, month of fragance and bloom, both your lives will be free from worry and gloom.

Marry in July, when the year is half spent, a hot-tempered mate never bringeth content.

Marry in August, month of harvest at hand, count blessings for riches with love at right stand.

Marry in September, fall month of decay, you'll surely know sorrow and hair turned to gray.

Marry in October, month of beauty and charm, no bridal in these days can be followed by harm.

Marry in November, in days of gratitude, count blessing, cherish love, lest thy hold they elude.

Marry in December, month of joy and mirth, be content, for thy mate is the best upon earth.

Strawberry cream pie (for Helena): One quart strawberries, 1 cup sugar, 3 tablespoons cornstarch, whipped cream. Method: Arrange largest berries on a baked pastry shell, mash remaining berries and stir into them, the sugar and cornstarch mixed well together. Cook in a double boiler two minutes after it thickens. Let cool and pour over the berries in pie crust. Let stand in refrigerator until very cold then spread whipped cream on top and serve.

Am glad to see Primrose's fine letter of recent date is bearing fruit. May we not have some more letters from Club 4 members in our Corner page soon. We miss Daisy Dean, Twice Twenty, Rural Aunty, Free Air, Bug, and all the other able writers who used to cheer us along our way, before our Kitty Lou was called from us. Am sure you will all have something to write about before July 4th.

Auntie Jane: The "special plant" you gave me is in blossom, a sure-enough Social Corner yellow flower like a large buttercup, but foliage like a fuchia. What is its name?

Fred's Wife: Your idea for pasting wall paper on window shades is a good one. And Norma's idea for placing a lace medallion over a rent in best linen tablecloth is fine.

I wish to thank ye editor for May basket surprise in the form of a yellow cheque. Sympathy to those in sorrow or trouble. ARIES.

SAVING TIME

Dear Corner Friends: Sister Rhody's letter was indeed illuminating. It proved that busy homemakers are really busy even if they can find plenty of time to time themselves at their forty-seven-eleven tasks. My goodness, where would lazy housekeepers find the time? They can't even find time in which to do the tasks! But their time record sheets would be graphic descriptions just the same even if they were blank.

When Mark Twain was a boy at school, the teacher told the class to write a composition about "Laziness." Twain handed in a blank paper.

Now I ask you, "Wasn't that the most graphic way of describing it?"

No doubt these time records, like everything else nowadays, are a means to time saving ends. What are we going to do with all this time after we've saved it? Anyway, who can, for instance, take one hour of today's 24, save it and use it tomorrow or the next day? Can we in truth save time?

No Sister Rhody, I haven't started that time record yet. In fact I'm still waiting for the government to send me one. But when it comes I'll be a sport and put down everything, yes even to the last lazy second. You see I'm one of these time misers too.

CLUB 6 MEETS JUNE 17

Dear Editor and Members: Next Tuesday, Club No. 6, will meet in Mechanics' hall, Westerly. One of our new members is to be hostess at this meeting and Ravena and I are arranging a short program. As there are to be some contests please come equipped with pencils; we will furnish the paper. We hope there will be a good attendance as this will be our last indoor meeting. Oh, yes, and anyone having anything they would like to read, please bring it.

The kiddies are counting the days now until school will be out. Only one more week after this. It is so hard to try and study when all outdoors is calling. I don't imagine the last two weeks have amounted to much as far as education is concerned. And then this daylight time upsets them. People say if children are brought up properly the change in time makes no difference. They will go to bed when they should regardless. It will take several of those people to convince me. No child old enough to voice a protest is going to bed an hour earlier on Sunday night, because some fanatic wants the clocks changed the night before. If put to bed they either cry or else proceed to tear things to pieces and otherwise raise the dickens. They can't make up that time in the morning as school starts an hour earlier and in some rural districts it is really a shame to see the kiddies starting from home when they should be just getting up. The clocks may be set ahead, but it is something else again when you attempt to set ahead the bed time of children. Let's hear what others have to say about it.

E. L. M.: Don't worry, it will be all right.

Coonie: Stove works fine. Haven't started the radio yet. Sometimes I wonder how I kept house before you moved.

Ravena: Are you still living after that strenuous week?

Hope to see you all at Mechanics' hall next Tuesday
RAVENA. (No. 6).

THE BENEDICT ARNOLD HOUSE.

To Editor and Sisters of the Corner: I saw something in The Bulletin a while ago about the Arnold house and as I had a photograph of it and the history which I had copied, when I lived in Norwich, thought it might interest some and as our page was not very full last Saturday thought I would send it.

The house in which Benedict Arnold was born stood about half way between the older part of the town and Chelsea society. It was demolished in October, 1853, but a few years before was in a good state of preservation and exhibited in many parts tokens of the mischievous boyhood of Benedict in whittlings, brands and hatchet cuts upon the beams, planks and doors. The letters B. A. and B. Arnold were stamped upon it in various places. This house had a variety of occupants after the Arnolds left it. It was sold March 3, 1764, by Benedict Arnold of New Haven to Capt. Hugh Ladlie of Windham with the home lot of 5½ acres for $700. Capt. Ladlie's wife fell into a state of deplorable insanity which rendered confinement necessary misfortune, with its attendant circumstances being probably exaggerated by rumor, obtained for the house a notorious and superstitious reputation. In the year 1775 Dex. Wm Philips of Boston, the father of Lieut. Gov. Philips, removed his family to Norwich, and occupied the Arnold house till after the British retired from Boston. Its next occupant was Mr. Malbone, of Newport, who also came to Norwich to seek a refuge from the bustle and violence of war. The misfortune of this family and the seclusion in which they lived rather added to the fearful character which the house had acquired. It was said that seven of the names and all nearly connected had died within the short period of 18 months. About ten years before the family removed to Norwich, that is in 1767, the brig Dolphin of Newport owned by one of the Malbones and commanded by another took fire off Point Judith as it was returning from Jamaica and was entirely consumed. Such was the violence of the flames and the rapidity of their work that all communication was cut off between the deck and the cabin and in the latter, three ladies and two children perished. Those on deck escaped in boats. This and other misfortunes connected with the family had made the name almost ominous of calamity. The house was afterwards occupied by Col. Moore from New York, the father of Richard Channing Moore the revered bishop of Virginia. The Moore family was large and their dwelling had the reputation of being the seat of hospitality and festive enjoyment.

Col. Moore died at Norwich, June 19, 1784, his remains were removed the next year to New York and entered in Trinity church yard. Two of the sons, John and Benjamin Moore, remained several years longer in Norwich, the latter as a practitioner in physic. In 1790, John Moore was living in the Arnold house and the census returns show that his family consisted of ten persons. He was then a prominent merchant of the place, but removed about 1793. The occupants of the Arnold house were so often changed that public rumor ascribed it to the supernatural sounds and sights with which it was visited. After a short experience the bewildered residents were glad to escape from the haunted premises. At length it was left tenantless for a short time and then purchased and repaired by Oriah Tracy of the firm of Tracy & Coit. The house had now a native occupant, the beams and rafters, the garden and groves were apparently appeased. The spell was broken. Mr. Tracy remained in possession for a period of 40 years, not however without an alarm from the invisible world, though of a different nature from the sights and sounds that had dismayed the former inhabitants. On a warm summer's day, Sept. 2nd, 1809, a thunder bolt descended upon the house shattering the windows and the mirrors and breaking a passage out through the wall. This electric shock was perhaps necessary to purify it thoroughly from the Arnold taint—history of Norwich. CAPRICON, (Club 4).

NICE TIME WHEN CLUB 2 MEETS.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: I want to tell you who did not or could not attend the last meeting of Club No. 2 what a nice time and dinner we had. There was as usual the pleasant meeting and greetings, then the nice dinner of baked beans, boiled ham and salads of different kinds. All were good. Then there was music and some dancing by two sisters, so we had a very nice day. I forgot to mention the cakes and pies.

Necia: I was glad to see you there.

Balsam Fir: Thanks for nice card; will answer soon.

Pernickety: Your garden must look lovely. Would like to see it. Please tell where to find it and perhaps when out riding we might stop and have a look. Hope the sick are improving. Best wishes to all.

FLOWER GARDENING.

Dear Social Corner Friends: It surely didn't take long to read the letters last week. This being a rainy morning I thought it a good time to write letters. I am so sorry E. L. M. is giving up her post for I know there is no one who can be any more faithful than she has been.

I don't know, but some one has answered O. D.'s question before but there are both kinds of delphiniums haddy and annuals. I spent most of my evening in my flower garden. Some one wrote a while ago about no system to their garden. They should see mine. I have tried to crowd in every kind of flower I could get and it is hard to tell which from tother and everything is surrounded with petunias that came up from last year. I have given away many of them and I still have hundreds left. I have several new plants this year that I don't know what they are only from pictures in the seed book, so I am anxious to see what they will be like. I have an amaryllis which I was told would bloom along in September, but it has a large bud on it now and will soon be open. I wonder if any one could tell anything of their nature. Hoping every one is enjoying the summer weather as much as I do. I remain,

HOW MY GARDEN GROWS.

Dear Social Corner: Isn't this a splendid rain? We surely needed it to make the gardens grow. The last few hot days have baked the ground and wilted the flowers as well as making them grow rapidly. I went out to see if the rain was doing any damage just now and found that two or three bachelor's buttons were knocked over but the rest of the things were standing up straighter than ever. These bachelor's buttons(plants, are huge over-grown things anyway—I have picked several blooms with stems 15 inches long.

Just at present my color scheme is good but in another week you'd shudder at the sight of the color combinations. Now, on the right side of the main path there are two clumps of pale yellow iris in bloom, a large clump of lemon lilies in full bloom and then a larger of the iris nonorabilis—yellow and bronze—that blends perfectly with the yellow of the lilies. Beyond this is a plant of white sweet rocket loaded with blooms and a very tall, very fragrant lavender iris. All very well now, but—next week the oriental poppies will be in bloom and how all those colors will swear!

Picked the first thrift blooms today although they have been in bloom for nearly a week. The stems are about 12 inches long and remind one of the rubber covered wire used in making artificial flowers. The heads of bloom are like clover and the individual flowerets are like other statice. So far just two colors have opened—a white and a pale pink. There is a very slight fragrance.

There is still enough of the columbine blossoms left to make a background for my beds of lavender iris—I counted 40 blooms of iris this morning in the clear lavender—and my one and only painted daisy makes an interesting spot with its twelve white blooms.

This rain will make it easier to transplant from my seed beds. I set out the hollyhocks, the cosmos and some of the babies' breath two days ago but it was such a lot of trouble getting the ground wet enough so they would live. I have a fine stand of tiny hardy pink plants from seed Sister Rhody gave me. I hope they'll grow because I love them. My bed of old-fashioned clove pinks is in full bloom now—I wonder how many blooms can be in a four square feet of space?

My poor hardy phlox are sick and their leaves are curling. I shall have to get the sulphur out and give them a dose—sprinkled on those sick leaves.

Some of my tall delphiniums are budded and the butterflys are growing taller and taller each day. When they are in bloom you can come and see them, for you'll be so interested in their loveliness that you won't notice the rest of the garden at all! As ever. PERNICKETY.

MAKING A BATHROOM STOOL

Dear Corner Sisters: As there were not many letters in the Social Corner last Saturday will try to help out a little this week.

This is a rainy Monday, but I attended the commencement exercises at Storrs and yesterday heard an excellent baccalaureate sermon by Rev. Raymond Calkins of Cambridge, Mass. Ninety-seven were granted B. S. degrees at the 47th annual exercises held this morning.

The first time that I visited the college was in 1893 when President Koons was here.

I am still wondering who "Woodside" is and would like to hear more from her. It is hard for me to guess who is who.

Cretia: I am wondering if you are well and would like to see some more of your nice writing.

Fred's Wife: Think I shall try your way of fixing curtains by pasting pretty wall paper on them. They must look like new.

I found an old four-legged stool in the garret which I painted with two coats of white enamel paint, except the top, which I covered with a round piece of chintz left from the bathroom curtains. I put in only just enough tacks to hold it. Then I took a long strip of the cloth about three and one-half inches wide, bound each long edge and made box pleats which I fastened so as to leave a heading. I tacked this pleating all around the seat with brass headed tacks. The figures on the chintz were blue, pink and yellow. After binding one side with bias binding which was blue, there wasn't any for the other side, so I used a piece of pink binding which had been left when making aprons. The effect was better than if I had used blue for both sides. Now I have a good stool for the bathroom. The walls are painted white and I hope to get a stencil pattern to make a pink and blue border.

With best wishes for all.
ROSARY, (Club 1).

POETRY

Spring Morning

When I woke this morning, lo! the sun was shining,
Gone were all the storm clouds, dark,
of yesterday;
Gloomy, heavy weather, sorrow and repining,
All had taken wings and flown away.

When I woke this morning, all the birds were singing,
Singing and rejoicing, as they'd never heard of storm;
In the high blue heavens flying wide,
and winging
Onward in the sunshine, bright and warm.

When I woke this morning, blossoms, sudden throwing
Upward from their earthy beds, turned joyfully to me,
Lifting fragrant faces, as if they would be showing
How like to a heavenly place the happy earth could be.

When I woke this morning in the sunny weather,
Then I knew that Heaven had nothing else in store,
If through life eternal we were all together,
And spring mornings lasted evermore.

—Margaret H. Tomkins, in Detroit News.

Flag O' My Land

Up to the breeze of the morning I fling
you,
Blending your folds with the dawn in the sky;
There let the people behold you, and bring you
Love and devotion that never shall die
Proudly agaze at your glory I stand,
Flag o' my land! Flag o' my land!

Standard most glorious! Banner of beauty!
Whither you beckon me, there will I go;
Only to you, after God, is my duty;
Unto no other allegiance I owe.
Heart of me, soul of me, yours to command,
Flag o' my land! Flag o' my land!

Pine to palmetto and ocean to ocean,
Though of strange nations we get our increase,
Here are your worshipers one in devotion
Whether the bugles blow battle or peace,
Take us! make us your patriot band.
Flag o' my land! Flag o' my land!

Now to the breeze of the morning I give you
Ah! but the days when the staff will be bare!
Teach us to see you and love you and live you,
When the light fades and your folds are not there.
Dwell in the hearts and your folds to command,
Flag o' my land! Flag o' my land!

—T. A. Daly.

GIVES 9TH BROADCAST IN SERIES BY NORWICH COMMERCE CHAMBER

Sprague from the Rhode Island governor who established a cotton mill there.

SCHOOLMASTER: What about Voluntown?

DOCTOR: That goes to show the art of coining names isn't any modern accomplishment. Voluntown was so named because it was land given to volunteers of the Natragansett war. Griswold, of course, was named after Governor Roger Griswold.

SCHOOLMASTER: How about Lisbon? How do you account for that?

DOCTOR: The name of Lisbon is a dark secret. Apparently, it was named after Lisbon in Portugal, but why, no one knows. Montville got its name from Raymond Hill, the highest point of land in the county. The names of three of the towns are taken from the scriptures: Lebanon, Bozrah, and Salem.

SCHOOLMASTER: How big a place was Norwich about the time of the Revolution? Do you happen to know?

DOCTOR: 2,327.

SCHOOLMASTER: What a head for figures!

DOCTOR: Second largest city in the state! Only New Haven stood ahead of us. Farmington was a close third and New London fourth. I don't know where Hartford stood.

SCHOOLMASTER: I think I know, doctor. In fact, I believe I have them right here.

DOCTOR: You're improving with that set. That was a good number! How about the coffee and sandwiches now? I brought along some hot coffee in a vacuum bottle.

SCHOOLMASTER: That isn't a vacuum bottle. That's a Thermos bottle. There is only one.

DOCTOR: I don't see the difference, professor.

SCHOOLMASTER: The difference can't be seen. It's a matter of experience. After you've handled several you'll know. The name Thermos is a symbol of high merit and quality. By the way, doctor, I see you have one of the new ones, with the Bakelite drinking cup. There's a capheaf of an improvement!

DOCTOR: Is it? I couldn't tell. I told the clerk to give me the best and this is what I got.

SCHOOLMASTER: You're familiar with the tip-tops on other vacuum bottles, aren't you? Have to put your handkerchief around 'em to drink anything hot. Not so with the bakelite cup. It's a heat insulator in itself, as convenient as a tea-cup. I'm going to take a new Thermos home with me.

DOCTOR: Speaking about heat, professor, did you know they've got an automatic gas furnace on the market now? Burns gas and does it automatically. You light 'er up in the fall and she burns until you turn it off in spring. Some sort of a doodad.

SCHOOLMASTER: (Interrupting) I guess you mean a thermostat control, don't you?

DOCTOR: You know what I'm talking about, then!

SCHOOLMASTER: Sure, the Richmond Heatomat, no ashes to carry out, no coal to carry in, no three-a-day slavery. The thing works automatically within one degree of any temperature you set it to. You've heard of the Richmond Radiator company!

DOCTOR: Of course! They're a Norwich concern!

SCHOOLMASTER: There isn't a plant in America that covers such a period of development as Richmond Radiator. They began on common stove and cooking ranges, shortly after the close of the Civil war.

DOCTOR: Seems to me there was a man by the name of Richmond at the start.

SCHOOLMASTER: Apollos Richmond, of Brooklyn, Connecticut. He came to Norwich and started the Richmond Stove company. Shortly afterward, hot-air furnaces were added. In 1887, the hot-water and steam boilers came in. I couldn't begin to tell you of the developments since 1887, but the present company dates from about 1912.

DOCTOR: This plant here, as I understand it, is the boiler plant.

SCHOOLMASTER: I'll say it is. Mostly for use in residences, but what an assortment! 30 different sizes for steam and hot-water service. Sectional steam and water boilers in 54 sizes. And in addition, there's their pet boiler, "The Model," which is made in 38 different sizes. Richmond Radiator can supply a steam or hot-air boiler for every kind and size of building.

DOCTOR: Yes, but I'm struck with the idea of the Richmond Heatomat. If a man feels a little chilly, he can walk into the other room, and press a button.

SCHOOLMASTER: Yes, and turn on the heat.

DOCTOR: You certainly turned on heat enough. We've gone a long way in music since Yankee Doodle. But do you know, when you mentioned Richmond Radiator company you reminded me of the fact that the site of their plant was once covered by a ship-yard. For that matter, Norwich was busy dreaming of a colonial navy long before the battle of Lexington.

SCHOOLMASTER: Seems odd to me that a city like Norwich, so far inland, should have figured so prominently in marine affairs.

DOCTOR: It's the truth, just the same. Before the Revolution had begun, Connecticut had three state vessels. And we finished up with a navy of thirteen. There was the schooner "The Spy," which was commanded by Robert Niles, of Norwich. He made the first capture of an enemy vessel, the brig Nancy, the boat full of molasses.

SCHOOLMASTER: Yes, and you told me 18 gallons of molasses. Do you want to know how much molasses was on that boat, you fake historian!

DOCTOR: Eighteen gallons! Did I say eighteen gallons? I should have said 18,000 gallons!

SCHOOLMASTER: You'd be a fine one to send after lemons!

DOCTOR: Never mind the sarcasm when I'm on a serious subject. Then there was the brig "Defense." Went into commission at New Haven in the second year of the war, 1776, with Seth Harding as captain, a Norwich man. So were Henry Billings, his third lieutenant, and Josiah Burnham, his master.

SCHOOLMASTER: Seems as though I've heard the name Harding in some other connection.

DOCTOR: Don't doubt it! Remember me telling you about the six gigs owned in Norwich during the early part of the war. Well, Nathaniel Backus sold his gig to Seth Harding. Harding was the man who superintended the building of the frigate "Confederacy," 32 guns, built right here at Norwich. Harding was her first and only commander. The Shark was built here, too.

SCHOOLMASTER: What was the Shark, if I may ask?

DOCTOR: The Shark was a galley, now how much do you know? And the ship "Oliver Cromwell," was commanded by Captain William Coit, of Norwich. Later, he had command of a privateer sleep, the "America," and he captured two British boats down in the West Indies.

SCHOOLMASTER: Norwich men seemed to have been right up in the lead in the Continental navy!

DOCTOR: I haven't begun yet! The ship "Governor Trumbull" was built at Willet's ship-yard in Norwich, in 1777.

SCHOOLMASTER: Another one, eh?

DOCTOR: They built dozens of 'em here! Henry Billings of Norwich, was captain of the "Governor Trumbull." Hezekiah Perkins, another Norwich man, commanded the brigantine "Hancock." There was Joseph Williams and Jabez Lord, both of Norwich. And both captains, one time and another, of the Sloop "Lydia."

SCHOOLMASTER: I suppose you can keep on with the roll-call all night.

DOCTOR: Pretty near! Peter Richards of Norwich was captain of the brigantine "Marquis De Lafayette." And I ought to mention William Wattles, of the Sloop "Nancy," although later in the war he commanded the privateers "The Thetis," the "Phoenix," and the "Young Cromwell."

SCHOOLMASTER: I've heard the name "Whattles" before.

DOCTOR: In connection with the Huntington family. He sailed ships for the family for years. He was a Norwich man, so was William Loring, captain of the Sloop "Olive." Another one was William Reed, commander of the Sloop "Turn of the Times."

SCHOOLMASTER: Very appropriate name for a war-vessel in the Revolution, "Turn of the Times."

DOCTOR: And Norwich men did a lot of turning, too!

SCHOOLMASTER: Funny thing to me, doctor, with all the maritime tradition of Norwich behind you, the course of this boat is so erratic. Evidently, nothing was handed down to you!

DOCTOR: Never mind me! Your job is to coax a tune out of that thing you brought with you. Let's have something with the ocean in it!

SCHOOLMASTER: Doctor, I had a book presented to me this afternoon, a book that I'm very proud of. Here, what do you think of it?

DOCTOR: What is it? Oh, yes, the "Journal of Madam Knight." Why, that's the same woman I was telling you about several weeks ago!

SCHOOLMASTER: The same one, the lady that traveled alone from Boston to New York on horseback, in 1704. I'm interested in the journey, but more especially in the book. Madam Knight never thought her little diary would run through three editions. The first was printed in 1825.

DOCTOR: This can't be a first edition, then.

SCHOOLMASTER: Hardly. There was a second edition printed at Albany, New York. This book here is one of the third edition, printed by students of the Norwich Free Academy.

DOCTOR: That's interesting. They made a fine job of it!

SCHOOLMASTER: There are some credit lines in the back of book. The work was carried on by Mr. Ozias Dodge and Miss Kate Morse of the Norwich Art school, Mr. Frederic H. Cranston, of the manual training department. And those last three names are the students who set the type.

DOCTOR: I see them, Alfred H. Beebe, Henry A. Adams, and Louis F. Kampf. Well, I'm as proud of the fact that they did the job as you are to have the book. How about a little tune for the Norwich Free Academy?

SCHOOLMASTER: In clocks, in ship-building, in printing books, Norwich has taken high honors, doctor, eh, what?

DOCTOR: It's the climate of southeastern Connecticut, professor. Take Governor Trumbull, of Lebanon, for instance! His law office was in Norwich. The governor's son, Joseph was Washington's commissary-general. Another son, Jonathan, Jr., was secretary and aide-de-camp to General Washington. He was the second governor of Connecticut from 1798 until 1809.

SCHOOLMASTER: Ah, yes, the Trumbulls!

DOCTOR: There was a third son, John, who served for a time in the Continental army. Then he went to England to study painting under the great Benjamin West. Then he was there when Burgoyne surrendered at Saratoga, and the English put him in prison, although for what reason I couldn't say.

SCHOOLMASTER: Not to change the subject, doctor, but did you ever have a chance to see the paintings in the Capitol building at Washington? Scenes and characters of the Revolution. If you haven't do so, at the earliest opportunity, I'm sure you'd find them interesting.

DOCTOR: I've seen them several times. Well, here we are, back at the landing. Enough boat-ride for a time, I guess. I'm beginning to feel the exercise.

SCHOOLMASTER: I'll bet you do. By the way, doctor, I checked up on what you said about the savings of Norwich residents, $1500 for every man, woman and child, well, if I know anything about figures that means a total around 45 millions instead of 4 millions.

DOCTOR: Hm, 45 millions; let me see I was 41 millions short; well what's 41 millions at our time of life.

SCHOOLMASTER: I hope you are a little more accurate with your patients than you are with your figures, and while we are talking about it, sleep on this one: The Crescent Arms company manufacture popular priced "shotguns" not pistols and revolvers.

DOCTOR: Well, professor, I can't do much about the 41 million right now but the "shotgun" reminds me of a story. I'll tell you about it when we get back to the inn.

ANNOUNCER: The measures of "Yankee Rose," the musical trade mark of this program, bring to a conclusion another half-hour with the old Doctor and his friend, the old Schoolmaster. This program was a presentation of the Merchants Bureau, chamber of commerce, Norwich, Connecticut, the "Rose of New England." One again we extend a cordial invitation to the world and his family to drop in on Norwich this summer.

It is rich in scenery in history, in hospitality. Norwich makes an ideal headquarters for visits in and around the historic spots of New London county, and of these places there are hundreds.

Next Friday, at the same hour, the old Doctor and the Schoolmaster will be with you again, and until then the Merchants Bureau bids you "good-night."

UPTURN IN 90 OF THE LEADING STOCKS AVERAGED LITTLE MORE THAN A POINT

NEW YORK, June 13.—(AP)— The stock market rallied today in the face of further declines in speculative commodities. Operators who had been selling to depress prices brought stocks back to protect profits after efforts to carry the list lower had uncovered considerable resistance.

The upturn was modest, however, and averaged only a little more than a point in 90 leading stocks, contrasting with Tuesday's five point advance, and seemed to reflect little except a technical adjustment. Trading turned extremely dull in the afternoon and sales in the last 50 minutes, normally the most active period of the day, totalled only 400,000 shares. The aggregate for the five hours was 2,221,900.

Call loans renewed at 2 1-2 per cent, the lowest since March 20 when a 2 per cent rate was posted at the stock exchange money desk. Time accommodations were likewise shaded. Funds were so plentiful that more than $20,000,000 offered for lending was said to have gone untaken.

Wheat was weak, dropping 2 to 2 1-2 cents on hedge selling, the weakness of Winnipeg and bearish Minnesota state reports. Corn dropped 1-2 to 1c a bushel in sympathy with wheat, July cotton came within ten points of yesterday's low, new crop months making lows for the season. The general market closed at net declines of $1.15 to $1.40 a bale.

Another fraction was pared from the copper metal price by the custom smelters who, in their search for a buying level, reduced to 12 and 12 1-4 cents delivered.

Traders, searching for soft spots in the stock list after an irregularly higher opening, picked out such leaders as American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, General Electric and American Can, sending some of them to new lows for the reaction before resistance points were reached. Telephone went to another new low for the year at 214 1-8. The relative steadiness of most pivotal shares, however, unnerved the bears who began a covering operation that extended throughout the remainder of the session.

At its height, the rally ranged from one to five points in the more active shares, and the close found American Can, American Telephone, Westinghouse Electric, Bethlehem Steel, American Tobacco "B", Eastman Kodak, U. S. Steel, Standard Oil of N. J., General Electric and General Motors one to four above the Thursday close. Amusement shares, in which there has been a large short interest, strengthened considerably.

The day's new lows were again numerous. They included Southern Pacific, Nickel Plate, Baltimore & Ohio, Erie, Goodrich, Fisk Rubber, Gulf States Steel, Cerro de Pasco, Woolworth and American Locomotive.

The Last Wish

By LEONA KEEFER

DRIVEN BY AMBITION, A YOUNG WIFE MISTAKES WEALTH FOR HAPPINESS AND A GILDED PALACE FOR A HOME

THE Hadleys were having dinner. At one end of the living room the dining table glowed resplendently under candlelight, for Eloise had as much pride in the gleaming quality of their plated silver and the whiteness of their linen as in the shining smoothness of her brown, closely cropped head.

Eloise was ambitious. She had married Howard because she was in love with him and because she felt assured that through him she would some day realize her ambition. Meanwhile, she cast an air of distinction over her mediocre surroundings by fastidiousness of taste. Her charm and careful grooming were more often found among the class of women who do not get the breakfast or make the bed.

Eloise did both, in the gayest of smocks, but a part-time maid came daily to prepare and serve the dinner. Dinner was a regal meal. It was the hour that Eloise reveled in, for it came nearest to the borderland of that future world, when luxury would abound and elegance would swathe her as her rightful heritage. It was the hour that Eloise unleashed her pretty dreams and imagined herself presiding over the dining salon of something akin to a palace, with liveried servants and with wit and wealth and beauty as her guests. On this particular evening it was the hour that Howard scattered her high, cherished hopes by giving vent to a perfectly commonplace remark, revealing the dormant wish of most men since the age of Adam.

In the midst of enjoying the dinner steak Howard lay down his fork and, with ponderous seriousness, said:

"Dear, today I had lunch with a real estate man. A suburban real estate man. I think we should buy a little house in the suburbs."

"A—a little house in the suburbs!" Eloise exclaimed.

Howard nodded. "Commuting distance of course. In New Jersey, most likely. Now with a house and a garden and a car and a dog and—babies—some day, we'd be fixed for life!"

HIS enthusiasm was evident in his voice and in the boyishness of his pleasing face as he contemplated her reply by beaming upon her.

"Fixed for life," Eloise murmured, "with a suburban house and a—garden and—and a car—is that what you call fixed for life?"

"Exactly. I tell you, Eloise, there's nothing finer in the world than that secure feeling. Knowing that you're settled."

Eloise's head swam with giddy lightness. Settled—after only a year and a half of marriage! Fixed for life with such possessions as Howard suggested!

"Now this agent," Howard went on with exuberance, "has some fine little places—"

"Stucco," said Eloise in a thin, positive voice.

"Yes, stucco," said Howard, pleased at her guess, "and—"

"And a sun parlor, and a big—big kitchen with a breakfast nook—"

"Yes, yes—"

"And two bedrooms and a bath with a frosted glass window on the second floor—" Eloise continued, with eyes level on the table's flickering candles.

"Sweetheart," Howard exclaimed, leaning toward her, "you're perfectly great! You know the ins and outs, all right."

Eloise smiled. Know them! Why, she had been born in such a house, grown up in such a one, married to Howard in such a one, yet he was surprised that she knew the kind he meant!

That night as Howard lay sleeping and occasionally emitting little snores, Eloise stared with wide-awake eyes into the darkness of their room. Outside the window the city was wrapped in turbulent slumber, its subdued drone occasionally broken by the passing of a truck, the scream of a taxicab horn or the rhythmic beat of hoofs against the pavement as a delivery horse went its route. They were sounds that Eloise loved; they meant action, as a city meant action, and they fired her blood with a desire to do things.

Before marriage that had seemed Howard's primal instinct, too: to do things. His place with the Hutchins firm was a small one, but he was limitless in his possibilities. He had woven such brilliant dreams, in those days, with a dauntlessness that should not be frustrated, and Eloise had listened raptly and enthralled, weighing his potentialities against Bob Courtright's, who avowed open rivalry with Howard. Bob was the more dashing figure of the two, the kind of man who might remain an eternal lover but who lacked the solidity of Howard. Eloise chose Howard, assured that she would have the growing future she had always planned for herself.

Bright and colorful was that future, like a moving, endless pageant; brilliant friends, trips abroad, a yacht, a limousine and a palace for a home. About her there would always be the seething restlessness of cities and the gayety of a joy-loving throng. She would match Howard's business success with her own fact in a social sphere; she would augment and supplement him, and together they would soar to the heights. Yet they would remain all in all together. She would still eagerly await his evening homecoming, and mornings he would still kiss her reluctantly good-bye.

ELOISE lay awake so far into the night that the next morning she was pale and hollow-eyed. Howard was instantly concerned.

"Eloise, you don't look well. It's this city air. Nothing fresh about it."

"Oh, I'm all right," Eloise assured him.

"You need a change. Why don't you visit some one? Some one out of town."

She might have overruled such a proposal had not Howard suggested that while she was gone he would look further into the house proposition. Eloise's mind was made up instantly. She must go away to form a plan of combat. She went to an inn in Connecticut, although Howard thought she was visiting a friend in Newburgh, and two days later she came back to New York.

When Eloise reached the Grand Central station she checked her bag and went on a shopping tour. The result was gratifying to any woman's vanity and highly expensive, but instead of having the bills charged against the first of the month, she left explicit instructions to have them sent at once to Howard's office.

Several days later she received a telephone call from Howard at 11 o'clock. This was unusual.

"Meet me for luncheon," he said, in a tone not promising a wholly pleasant engagement.

Eloise dressed with utmost care in the raiment of her late purchases and met Howard promptly at the appointed hour. His glance was thorough and prolonged; he was still studying her from her modishly hatted head to her charmingly shod feet when he said:

"Perhaps there isn't a mistake, after all."

"A mistake?" Eloise asked innocently.

"A mistake in some astonishingly large bills I got this morning."

"Oh." Eloise's mouth was seductively pouting. "Darling, I haven't had a new thing since we've been married. I've remodeled my clothes until they can't be remodeled any more. You're not going to be a scold, are you, just because I want to look nice for you?"

"I thought we were going to buy a house," he reminded her.

"Well, even if we are—"

"We can't now. There isn't enough left for the first payment. I'm not making a whale of a salary, you know."

"But, Howard, isn't it time for you to have a rise?"

"I haven't got one."

"You told me three months ago that a rise was due. Why don't you speak to Mr. Hutchins?"

Howard shook his head. "I hate that kind of thing. He'll give me a rise on his own accord. I suppose. If I kick up a fuss, who knows but what he might hand my place to some one else?"

Eloise's lips trembled ever so slightly. Howard speaking like this! Howard, who in the days of their engagement was so sure of winged progress! But for the time being she quelled her disappointment and during luncheon was very gay. Gayety heightened her loveliness and Howard forgot his chagrin and reveled in his pride of her. He became annoyed when Eloise's eyes turned frequently to a table directly ahead and to their right.

"Look here, young lady," he said peevishly, "you are lunching with me, you know."

"But I think I see an old friend. If he'd only turn around—"

He did turn around, saw her and came directly to the table.

THERE was a warm greeting and Eloise said to Howard: "You remember Bob Courtright, dear."

Howard remembered him very well. Bob had just come back from somewhere as far away as Bombay and was in the mood to be effusive with every one. He was especially so in his manner toward Eloise. He asked them to dine with him the next night. There would be others dining with him also—interesting people, whom he was sure Eloise would like. Eloise said that they would be delighted to go to his dinner party and Howard mumbled a weak thanks. When Bob had gone Howard said glumly:

"Are we long-lost friends or something?"

"Perhaps he's just beginning to appreciate his own countrymen. Anyway, we'll have a nice time tomorrow night."

"How do you know we will?"

"Because Bob is a perfect host, darling."

"Well, he's never been so eager to show us this perfection before. He seemed to look at you a great deal."

"I've known Bob for years and years. Why shouldn't he look at me?"

Bob's dinner party was elaborate. His guests talked a great deal about nothing and so made the evening amusing and diverting. After dinner they saw a play and after the play they went to a club to dance. To Eloise the night was like a luminous comet appearing in a dull sky, and she was reluctant to leave the lights and the hubbub and the chattering people.

The next morning Howard sleepily turned on the cold water for a tub while Eloise prepared breakfast. She was very bright-eyed and blithe for having got home at 3 in the morning.

"Nice party, wasn't it?" she said over breakfast.

"Yes, and a long one. Bob seemed to like dancing with you."

"Bob always liked to dance with me."

She saw the hurt in his eyes and was sorry. It became a permanent thing as Bob's stay in New York stretched to weeks. Very frequently they dined with him or saw a play and, occasionally, he dined with them, making much of their little apartment and their happiness. They met other friends of his, people whom he had known abroad, and Eloise listened intently to anecdotes of their travels. Once, after such an evening, she said to Howard:

"Wouldn't you love to go abroad?"

"Who wouldn't, dear?"

Her arm slid around his neck coaxingly. "You said one time—when we were engaged—that you would take me some day."

"I wish I could, Eloise."

"Would it cost so dreadfully much?"

"Ten times more than we've got. Anyway, other things should come first. A home—"

"Houses are being built in Jersey every year," she said, "so we can buy a home any time."

Howard looked at her very intently and his pique melted into his tenderness for her. His arms were about her, holding her close. But Eloise was not to be put off.

"The Hutchins firm sends men abroad, doesn't it?" she asked.

"Yes. But I'm not in that department."

"Oh. Couldn't you get into that department?"

Howard shifted uneasily in his chair. "Look here, Eloise, is it Bob who is putting travel ideas into your head?"

"Not Bob, dear. They were in my head since I can remember. They grew with my pigtails."

He rumpled her bobbed hair. "But you've cut off the pigtails long ago."

"But I still have the ideas, Howard."

Under her even temper he saw a metallic fiber that he had never known before was part of Eloise, and it made him sensitive to suspicion of her. "Are you expecting me, your husband, to admit rivalry with Bob Courtright?" he asked suddenly.

"You were rivals once, weren't you?" she said musingly.

"Yes, and I won."

"Of course you won, dear. * * * That was two years ago, wasn't it?"

He looked at her sharply. "That means, I suppose, that I've got to keep on fighting to—to hold you?"

"If you think I'm worth holding."

"Well, I'm fighting, am I not? I'm doing the best I can."

Eloise met his eyes very steadily. "Are you, Howard?"

He looked away from her, into space. Presently he got up and went to the bedroom without telling her good night. Not because he was angry, but because there was a feeling of shame, as though he were a little boy and the taskmaster had caught him when he was not hard at work.

The following evening Howard bore the feigned nonchalance of a young man quite pleased with himself. He said to Eloise:

"Oh, by the way, I'm in the foreign department now."

Eloise's lips formed a surprised circle. "Why—how did that happen?"

"By my asking for it."

SEVEN years later Eloise stood in the living room of their Park avenue apartment and anxiously watched the hands of a tiny gold clock on the mantel. It was 8 and Howard hadn't come home. Being late for dinner had become a regular occurrence, preceded by a telephone call explaining business troubles. But tonight she was particularly eager for him to return on time, as they were dining with friends and, also, as it was their last evening together for some months. Tomorrow at 11 Eloise was sailing for Paris.

Seven years had brought little change to Eloise. Her hair was as brown and as closely cropped as ever, and she still bore herself with the regal air of a patrician. There was added poise, of course, and a contentment in her eyes that in other years they had lacked; but there was no flabbiness of flesh, no ultra-sophistication. There was still the freshness and the eagerness for life.

Howard, coming suddenly through the doorway, had not been dealt with so kindly. Tired eyes looked out from a tired face and there was silvery gray about his temples. He was much older and much more serious and settled. Grim lines tightened his once-lax mouth and there was a businesslike stolidness and calm indifference about him. Even when Eloise's lips were against his and her fingers touched his cheek in a patting caress, he was placidly unmoved. It was as though his boyish fondness of her had been sapped, swallowed up by business cares.

"I was afraid you'd telephone that you'd be late," Eloise said.

"Where are we going for dinner?" he asked wearily.

"Have you forgotten again? What a memory! We're going to the Fentons'. You have just time to dress, dear."

An hour later they stepped into their limousine and were driven rapidly through the streets to a large stone house a few blocks away.

The dinner party was a brilliant assembly and Eloise and Howard were greeted in the manner accorded close friends. The guests were mostly married couples of the same set, but there was also an opera singer who had recently made her American debut and a writer whose latest book had created something of a furor.

THE dinner hour began with light talk, but there was too much to eat and too much to drink and the conversation became either stilted or giddy. There was a musical comedy to see afterward, but instead Eloise and Howard went home. "Our last evening together, you know," Eloise had told Nell Fenton when the invitation was given.

But in their own living room the hours dragged and were not particularly pleasant. Howard lay back in his chair smoking and thinking. When Eloise spoke to him, asking him a question to take him out of his mood, he came back to his surroundings with a start.

"You look so tired, dear," she said. "I wish you could get away and come along with me tomorrow."

"Not a chance," Howard answered with finality. "The Walton deal is on and I've got to put it through. It's a battle of wits."

Howard's business acumen was feared and respected; he had gone from one victory to another. Success had become an old story with him. To Eloise it meant supreme gratification. "And when you put it through," she asked eagerly, "what then?"

"Why, then you can have your palace."

She crossed the room and curled herself into a chair beside him; but even her closeness did not move him to caress her. His impersonal attitude was a habit not easily to be broken.

"A palace for a home," Eloise murmured. "I've wanted that ever since I was a very little girl." She looked intently at him, smiling her happiness, and she saw how deep the lines beneath his eyes were. She put out her hand and touched his arm. "But don't work yourself to death in the meantime," she said; "a palace for one isn't any fun."

"Nevertheless, it would still be a palace," he reminded her.

There were times during the five months that Eloise was abroad when she thought of Howard's words and they brought a strange tightness to her throat. But it was only momentary; there was too much life and color about her, too many friends seeking her out, for her to have time to brood or to be dull. Howard's brief, infrequent and businesslike letters were accepted as a matter of course. She excused their lack by telling herself that he was busy making money to buy her all the things she wanted—surely that was proof that he thought often of her, even though he did not say so in words. She answered with long accounts of just what she was doing, whom she was seeing and mentioned places which they had visited on their one trip abroad together.

When Eloise received a cable saying that the Walton deal had been put through and that she could now make her plans for a new house, she left Paris immediately.

Howard met her at the pier.

"A pleasant trip?" he asked politely.

"Very. But I wanted you along."

He laughed. "A nice little speech from a nice little wife." But he said it indifferently and it piqued her. She answered with spirit:

"But the joke is, I mean it."

He laughed again, as though he were more amused than pleased. "From now on you'll be so busy that you won't know I'm on earth. I've already commissioned an architect to help with the plans for your house."

"My house!"

"Ours, if it suits you better. You can go the limit. Make it as big as you like."

"That sounds as if the Walton deal was a good piece of work."

"It was. But I'm on a better one now. I'm going West tonight."

"Tonight! Why, I'm only just coming home!"

"It can't be helped. Business doesn't wait for a man to visit with his wife. I'll not be gone long. Ten days at the most. The architect will see you tomorrow, so you can begin work at once."

"Can't you wait just one day, dear?" Eloise said coaxingly. "Surely one day won't make such a difference."

HOWARD'S brows contracted. "It's one thing to make money to build a palace and it's quite another thing to make money to maintain it. I've got to stay on the job, Eloise."

The days passed more quickly than Eloise had expected. There were friends to lunch and dine with, new plays to see and a week-end in the country with Helen Gordon, who was her only remaining friend of the days before Howard's success. Crowded in among social engagements there were the plans being made for the house.

When the finished plan was received Eloise looked at it for a long, long time. With this house there was nothing more to wish for; she had all that the other days craved, all that the other days lacked. The seven years had been much like a wonderful wishing lamp, giving her all that she asked for—gay, brilliant friends, trips abroad, motors, a yacht, that they seldom used, and her final wish—this house at her fingertips. This was contentment! This was being fixed for life! But even in her exultation she felt a strange unrest and a feeling of uncertainty.

Ten days merged into two weeks and Howard had not returned. She received no word from him and her feeling of uncertainty grew to a foreboding. Humiliated and desperate, she telephoned his office and asked for news of him. His secretary told her that he was being delayed, that he would still be absent for several days, that he was having some business difficulties. But Eloise's fears were not quieted. When, finally, he did return, her ecstatic relief was met with calm indifference. He merely smiled, a cool absent smile, as Eloise, in childish longing for some soothing word or caress, told him of her concern.

"You knew I was busy," he said tersely.

"Too busy just to send me a line, dear?"

He shrugged impatiently. "I was closing a deal. I didn't know you'd expect me to write to you. Anyway, you were occupied with the plans, weren't you?"

"Yes, but—"

"How are they progressing?"

"They are finished. Unless you think there should be some changes." She opened a drawer in a desk and took out a large sheet of paper and spread it before him. Howard scowled and pushed it away.

"I told you before to plan it as you choose. It's your house. You're the one to be satisfied with it."

"But what about you?"

HE HAD turned to leave the room, but he came back. "What about me?" he asked with emphasis. "I'll tell you what about me, since we're on the subject. When you move into this house, I'm through. I've done my work. I'll continue to do my duty by maintaining it and you. But if you think I'll live in a house that covers half a city block—so large that if I wanted to speak to my wife I must have her paged—you're quite mistaken. That isn't my idea of living any more than this routine of ours is my idea of life. This house is your last wish. It has taken the seven best years of my life to grant your last wish. Seven years working not always twelve hours a day but sometimes twenty. I forgot myself in thinking of you. I forgot my health, as well. I'm tired, worn out—old before my time. But I've given you what you wanted. That's my satisfaction; to show you that I could give you what you wanted. Well, now, let's call it a day's work. We're through, you and I. I have my wants, too, Eloise, and they haven't changed the slightest in seven years. Since we don't agree, we'll call 'quits'." He held out his hand as though he were parting with a mere friend. "Good-by, Eloise, I wish you happiness."

His footsteps resounded against the polished floor as he walked out of the room and out of the apartment.

Long after the closing of the door Eloise sat as he had left her, dazed, stunned and unbelieving. Her hands still held the blueprint, and when she looked down she seemed surprised to find it between her fingers. For nearly an hour she sat thus, her eyes glazed with terror, her lips apart from short gasps of breath. She had driven Howard from her trying to make her life secure from a humdrum existence. She had thought only of her own wishes, her own ambition and desires, taking it for granted that his must be the same. She had thought Howard happy because she was happy, that such possessions as were now theirs were the greatest boon in life. * * * She closed her eyes and tried to picture the years ahead without him, and they seemed suddenly barren and hollow; friends would not satisfy, travel would bore her, and the house—like an enormous shell—would only echo her loneliness.

A servant announced the architect. Eloise looked up in surprise; she had quite forgotten that he was calling for the plan, and as she waited for him to come into the living room she glanced down at her lap, covered with paper torn into tiny bits.

"Good morning," she said when he entered; "please excuse me for not getting up. My lap is too full of — my house."

He looked at her in bewilderment.

"Oh, the plan was perfect," Eloise said quickly, "but I have torn it up."

"Torn it up!"

Eloise nodded. "We have decided upon a much smaller type of house," she said slowly; as if groping for words, "a really cozy place in which we—can find each other, if we want to. I think we shall be much happier. If you will draw up the plans as soon as possible—"

The architect bowed stiffly. "If you will tell me just what you have in mind—"

A thoughtful smile came to Eloise's lips. "Something quite modest — and suburban," she said. "Stucco, I think. There must be a sun parlor and a big, big kitchen—with a breakfast nook. And on the second floor we shall want two bedrooms with a bath between—and a frosted glass window, of course—"

The architect cleared his throat, trying to clear his brain as well. He was beside himself with amazement; from the sublime to the ridiculous, as he saw it, or from whim to whim. "Where," he asked courteously, "where do you intend building this house? In Westchester, I suppose?"

Eloise's eye travelled the floor; then, for a moment, they looked up at him very fearlessly. "Perhaps," she said in a low voice. "But, very probably, in—New Jersey. I will leave that for my husband to decide."

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, June 13.—(AP)—Unsettled by drought breaking in Canada and by auspicious harvest conditions in this country, all grain values smashed downward today. Wheat, rye and oats outdid the season's low price records, wheat coming within half cent of touching a dollar per bushel level. Contributing to the weakness of grain was selling ascribed to stock market houses and resulting apparently from recent declines in prices for securities and for commodities as well.

Closing quotations on wheat were nervous at 1-4@5-8c rally from the day's bottom quotations, but 1 7-8@2 1-2c under yesterday's finish. Corn closed 3-8@1c down, oats 3-4@1c off and provisions unchanged to a setback of 7c.

Notwithstanding that holding values advanced, provisions weakened owing to sympathy with grain.

GOT $10 WORTH OF KICK OUT OF SLAP TO CHILD

Ira Edwards, 54 Howard street, was in the police court this morning charged with breach of the peace, upon complaint of William Watrous, a neighbor, it being alleged that Edwards truck Margaret Watrous, 14, daughter of the complainant. Edwards pleaded guilty and explained to the court that the child provoked him and when he lost his temper he dealt the child a light blow across the face. In rebuking Edwards for is act, Judge Daniel M. Cronn imposed a fine of $10 and costs and with this discipline being given, Edwards remarked, "That's satisfactory!" The child also informed the court that besides being struck by Edwards, his wife attacked her and struck her with a broom. The girl, with companions, was in front of the Edwards residence about 8 o'clock last night and when their actions were such as to annoy Watrous, he censured the children. Watrous went to police headquarters and made complaint and Edwards was arrested by Patrolmen Anthony Turello and George Bruhns.

SMART WOMAN GETS ONE HIT-AND-RUN DRIVER PINCHED

Charles Snow, 18, of Cincinnati, was arrested near Westerly yesterday afternoon charged with evasion of responsibility. After the automobile he was driving collided with a car driven by Josephine Pallette, 47 Linden street, Snow, instead of stopping to ascertain the extent of the damage occasioned, speeded away. Snow and a companion, Arthur Justice, the latter also of Cincinnati, were apprehended at the Westerly line. When the state police had been informed of the arrest of the youths, Officer Eric Swanson was detailed to take charge of the prisoners. Snow's car was taken to the state police barracks and Snow was brought to New London and locked up. Justice was not held. Snow was driving at a fast rate of speed in Waterford and when the auto crashed against Miss Pallette's auto the former driver speeded away. Miss Pallette telephoned to the Westerly police and requested that a lookout be maintained for the hit-and-run motorist and the marker numbers were supplied the officers. SANTANELLA SURRENDERS IN WATERFORD STILL CASE

Samuel Santanella, of Ocean avenue, was arrested yesterday afternoon on a federal warrant charging him with violation of the national prohibition law. Santanella surrendering himself at the office of the United States district attorney, New Haven, where he furnished a surety on his bond for appearance at the next term of the district court. It is understood that Santanella is alleged to have been financially interested in the huge still, seized by state police several months ago in a barn off Bayonet street, Waterford. The still, the largest to be seized in this part of the state, had a capacity of 1500 gallons of alcohol daily, and had been in operation but a few days when a force of officers surrounded the building, a converted barn, where the plant had been in operation. Seven arrests were made and all of the accused were fined or imprisoned. Two of the arrested men were fined as well as receiving jail sentences. It is understood that the claim of the federal government is that Santanella was one of the largest owners of the still, but he did not appear as a worker at the still and seldom visited the building. However, with the seizure, federal officers came to New London and since that time, it is understood have conducted a systematic investigation, which has resulted in information having been obtained that he and perhaps one other man, were the principal financial backers of the purchase of the still. The warrant for Santanella's arrest was received at police headquarters yesterday and when officers went to his home he could not be found. Later in the day when Santanella received information that a federal warrant for his arrest had been issued, he consulted his counsel, William T. Connor and then drove with the attorney to New Haven, where he gave himself up.

The floral tributes were in such numbers as to require five automobiles to convey them to the cemetery from the residence of Mr. Piscatella. A solemn mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Raymond J. O'Callaghan, with Rev. Michael Regan deacon and Rev. George Clark sub-deacon. The church quartet sang the mass and as a waiting hymn Edward F. Murray gave "There's a Beautiful Land on High." GANGSTERS' ENMITY TOWARD OFFICER SYLVIA

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, June 13—It is evident that gangsters have formed themselves into a body and with intent and aim to injure Patrolman Henry Sylvia, who has a post on Bank street, in one of the Italian districts, and from the activities of the gang, which is composed of youths whose ages range from 18 to 25, it is apparent that unless the conduct and activities of the gang are curbed, serious results may develop.

Sylvia, who has received strict orders fro mhis superiors to break up the practice of youths congregating and loitering in front of stores, has created a feeling of enmity in the younger members of the Italians, who reside in the vicinity of Shaw, Bank and Truman streets. Recently the officer arrested one of the youths for loitering and when Sylvia participated in a liquor raid upon the home of Jack ("Scabby") Philopena a week ago, immense letters carrying wording intended to ridicule and belittle the officer were painted the same night on the brick building corner of Bank and Reed streets. An Italian youth was arrested on a technical charge of breach of the peace for he was believed to have been instrumental in the painting of the building. He was in court on an amended complaint and his case was continued a month. Wednesday night Sylvia arrested another youth who refused to refrain from continually sounding a horn on a parked automobile. Last night when the officer was reporting over a police signal box, corner of Bank and Hobron streets, a youth, who had secreted himself in the dark and at the approach of the entrance to the Dreem Electric company hurled a stone at the officer. The flight of the stone, which was recovered and weighed 13 ounces, was intercepted by a passing automobile from which the missle bounded and hit another car. Sylvia entered the alley-way in search of the thrower, but was not successful in finding the offender.

Philopena Pays $400

Philopena, who was fined $400 and costs and sentenced to jail in the police court and who gave notice of appeal, has paid the fine and yesterday Judge Daniel M. Cronin lifted the jail sentence.

Girls, here's that Buddy Rogers again, and he's in the fastest, peppiest, liveliest of any of his screen efforts, in "Safety in Numbers," which opens for a gay four days at the cool Broadway today. Buddy is a Frisco youngster, just coming into an inheritance of $25,000,000, and his guardian uncle, wise in his years, arranges for the frisky heir to take a trip to New York to get a slant on the ways of the world —and the uncle, not being a dead one, either, engages four beautiful Follies girls to act as the boy's tutors at a handsome fee, the agreement being that love is taboo, the boy to receive a liberal education along all other lines. Their penthouse apartment is Buddy, who has come to typify the American boy, is aided in his hilarious career to fame and fortune by some of the loveliest girls that have ever graced a picture, among them Kathryn Crawford, Josephine Dunn, Carol Lombard, and Virginia Bruce, with Louise Beavers as a "steppin'" colored maid, Roscoe Karns as a pugnacious taxidriver with a Rogers complex, and Francis Macdonald as a millionaire rival to the youthful heir. Red Arrow Gold.

The Red Arrow club of Norwich is again offering gold prizes to enterprising organizations of Norwich and vicinity. But instead of one gold bag which the club offered at the beginning of the Red Arrow game in Norwich, the Red Arrow merchants are now offering two gold bags—one at $200 and one at $100.

The bag of gold in the first Red Arrow contest was won by the West Side Community club and applied to the fine purpose of planting four trees at the Elizabeth street school, commemorating the names of three local boys who gave their lives in the World war, and one boy who gave his life in an attempt to save an other boy from drowning.

The Red Arrow club now offers a chance to other energetic organizations to win one of the bags of gold and apply it to some useful purpose. Lodges granges, scout troops, Athletic teams, churches, aid societies, clubs, young peoples societies and all such organized bodies in and around the vicinity of Norwich are eligible to enter the contest. The rules governing the contest are simple and are to be found in the Red Arrow advertisement in this paper. The Red Arrow club is in the hope that a number of organizations will enter the contest.

Breed Theatre

Honor student, athlete, professor, actor, rancher, dog fancier, horseman and Hollywood's smartest dresser—these are but a few of the fields in which Edmund Lowe has distinguished himself.

Lowe's career reads like a Horatio Alger novel. Born at San Jose, Cal., he attended school in that city and then Santa Clara university, where he won his A.B. degree when only 18 years old. He became a member of the university faculty a year later and attained his M.A. degree at the age of 20.

An interest in pictures led him to a small role in "Vive La France," with Dorothy Dalton. He then, played in "Eyes of Youth," "The Silent Command," "The Palace of the King" and other films until he scored his big hit in "The Fool." Later came his role in "What Price Glory" and world-wide fame as a result, a face that sent him to England to film "One Increasing Purpose." On his return to Hollywood he played in "Dressed to Kill," "In Old Arizona" and "Through Different Eyes" before his second "smash" in "The Cock Eyed World."

In "Born Reckless," the Fox Movietone drama of gangland which opens tomorrow at the Breed theatre, Lowe enacts the featured role of Louis Beretti, the East Side gang leader. Catherine Dale Owen and Marguerite Churchill enact the leading feminine roles, with Lee Tracy, Warren Hymer, Frank Albertson, William Harrigan, Roy Stewart, Mike Donlin, Paul Page, Eddie Gribbon, Ben Bard and other favorites in the cast. John Ford, whose "Four Sons," "Black Watch," "Salute" and "Men Without Women" have brought him distinction, scores again in his direction of the picture.

Palace Theatre

"Ladies of Leisure," a story of night life in New York starring Barbara Stanwyck, Lowell Sherman and Ralph Graves, opens at the Palace theatre today, where it will be shown through Tuesday of next week.

The plot concerns Jerry Strange, an artist, and an idealist who seeks to reform Kay, a girl of the streets who he has engaged as a model. Kay misunderstands Jerry's motives at first—she has never met a man who has had her interests at heart—but when she learns the truth about him a gradual and worshipful love for him is awakened in her and she approaches his ideal. Affairs are brought to a climax when Jerry's father calls at the apartment one morning and finds the girl there. This precipitates a proposal of marriage from Jerry but his mother persuades the girl to break the engagement. Left in a dilemma, the girl tries to resume her old life but finds that Jerry's influence is too strong and she cannot.

Although the interference of Mrs Strange proves to be almost a tragedy for the lovers, a happy conclusion is reached. "Ladies of Leisure" is a picture that you cannot afford to miss. Every part is perfectly played. Barbara Stanwyck gives an amazingly real performance in her role as Kay, as does Ralph Graves as Jerry, and Lowell Sherman, as his worldly friend Bill Standish, contributes a finished piece of work. Comedy is cleverly introduced by vivacious Marie Provost.

The friends of the Popularity Contest candidates should take advantage of the remaining opportunities to cast more votes for their favorite constituents. It may be a long time before you will have a chance to help some nice girl win a trip to Atlantic City, so grasp it now and don't spend the rest of your life being sorry that you didn't do a good turn when you could.

BELIEVES NORWICH MILK ORDINANCE NOT AFFECTED BY SHELTON DECISION

A recent decision of the supreme court which declared void a milk ordinance passed by the city of Shelton in this state will not be applicable to pasteurization ordinance passed by the Norwich common council, according to an opinion expressed by Mayor Lee Roy Robbins. The Norwich ordinance is not to be put into effect until this fall.

The Shelton ordinance provides that only milk from tuberculin-tested cattle or pasteurized milk could be sold in that city, but the supreme court, by a four to one vote, contends that this Shelton ordinance conflicts with the statutes of the state governing the production, marketing and sale of milk.

According to Mayor Robbins, the Norwich ordinance, when first drawn up, might have been susceptible to attack under the decision in the Shelton case, but a change was made in it on the night when it was adopted which brought its requirements within the standard as set up by statute law of the state.

In the Shelton case the following statement was made:

The opinion, written by Chief Justice George W. Wheeler, was given in the case of Daniel B. Shelton against the city of Shelton, tried before Judge Carl Foster of the superior court and reserved to the supreme court for advice. Mr. Shelton, a milk dealer, refused to comply with the ordinance in question and proved that although his milk and cream was neither from tuberculin-tested cows nor pasteurized, it was of particularly pure and wholesome quality. The state law allows raw milk to be sold if it is of a certain standard. The court finds that there is nothing in the state law which grants to the city of Shelton the right to prohibit the sale of raw milk which meets the statutory qualifications by a producer or dealer who has complied with every provision of the law and that the city is limited to the passage of ordinances for the control, regulation, sale or distribution within the limits of milk which is detrimental to public health and which are not in conflict with the statutes. Milk which complies with the statutory requirements could not be found by the milk board or the dairy commissioner to be detrimental to the public health, the decision says.

"This is not the case of the ordinance speaking where the statute is silent," the opinion reads. "It is the case of a direct conflict between statutes and ordinance. They are irreconcilably inconsistent with one another."

FLAG DAY OBSERVANCE BY NORWICH ELKS

Norwich lodge of Elks will hold its annual Flag day services commemorating the birth of our nation's flag on the lawn in front of the Elks' home on Main street on Sunday evening at 7 o'clock, daylight time. All Elks lodges are obligated to observe the anniversary of Flag day but on occasions when this day falls on Saturday it is permitted to hold the service on Sunday.

The Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks was the first American fraternal organization and is still the only American fraternal organization to make a public observance of Flag day.

There will be a band concert at 7 o'clock for one-half hour followed by the regular exercises. The patriotic address will be delivered by John Richardson, secretary of the Norwich chamber of commerce, a member of the Elks, and a past exalted ruler of the Herkimer, N. Y., Lodge of Elks. Mr. Richardson is known as a forceful and eloquent speaker as he has been heard by many over the radio during the broadcasting of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce program from Hartford recently, there will be many anxious to hear him in person. Sailors from the submarine base will be in charge of the flags used during the exercises which trace the history of the flag from its very inception down through the growth of our country to the present starry banner that represents the United States of America and liberty wherever it flies on land or sea all over the world.

All patriotic Americans should attend these services on Sunday evening which are held not alone in commemoration of the flag, but also in memory of those who died that we might live and enjoy this land and who, in the brief time of this ceremony, call to us across that waste of ocean to lift up our eyes to the protecting flag above us and learn again the story of their glorious death.

The Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks of the United States of America holds this service annually to honor the flag, the country it represents, and all those patriots whose life blood has tinged more crimson the flag we love.

MRS. FRINK SECURES DIVORCE AND CUSTODY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

BRIDGEPORT, June 13.—Mrs. Rose Beckley Frink of Norwich was granted a divorce from Charles W. Frink by Judge Earnest C. Simpson in the superior court here today, with custody of their two-year old son, Charles W. Frink, Jr., and the stipulation that the father shall have right to see the boy at reasonable periods and times. The case had been transferred from the superior court in New London county where it was originally entered.

The marriage of the couple took place at the rectory of St. Patrick's church in Norwich on June 30, 1923, and the principal testimony bearing upon the claim for divorce was given by Mrs. Frink who told of two private detectives trailing her husband and Mrs. Hazel Smith Ulmer in an automobile from Norwich to the neighborhood of Point Judith where Mrs. Ulmer had a summer cottage. When the detectives, with Mrs. Frink, came up with the car which they had been trailing, they found Mrs. Ulmer in the car with an unidentified man, but Frink was not to be seen. The testimony was that Mrs. Ulmer admitted later that Frink had been with her. There was also testimony that at a later time, Mrs. Ulmer came to Mrs. Frink with offer of a cash settlement if Mrs. Frink would not bring in the name of Mrs. Ulmer in a divorce suit on the ground of infidelity.

CIRCUS CLOWNS BRING FUN TO UNCAS-ON-THAMES

The routine of every-day life at Uncas-on-Thames was made brighter Friday afternoon when clowns of the Sparks Circus presented a programme of pantomime bits, sketches, songs, dances and acrobatic tumbling in a lawn entertainment at the sanatorium, under the sponsorship of Norwich lodge of Elks, No. 430. The entertainment was arranged under the general direction of James T. Egan, exalted ruler of the lodge, with the welfare committee assisting.

Immediately following the completion of the regular afternoon circus performance at the big tent at the fairgrounds, the members of the clown contingent, numbering about a score, were transported in costume to the sanatorium by members of the Elks. Two performances were given, one on the men's side of the main building and the other on the lawn adjacent to the women's wing of the institution.

Spurred on by the generous applause and genuine merriment among the patients, the clowns performed their funniest stunts, many executing new and novel feats, entirely different from what they presented to their audiences beneath the big top.

There were all sorts of clowns, tall clowns, short ones, thin ones, fat ones, and two midget clowns. Included among the fun-makers were Paul Wenzel and his trained goose "Samson"; Harvey Spaulding, and the Spaulding trio of acrobatic clowns; Jimmy Arnessen, and the Arnessen trio; Albert Moore and Paul Horompo, midget clowns; Haven Feaster, Sig BonHomme, Johnny Bossler, Stanley White, Sam Bennett, Pewee, the acrobatic clown; Jimmy Baker, S. W. Bailey, Al Taylor, Fred Pitts and Herbert Snyder.

Numbers by Paul Horompo, Albert Taylor, Paul Wenzel, the Spaulding trio, Pewee and Sig BonHomme won especial praise.

The welfare committee of the Elks, in charge of the event, was composed of the following members: William S. Murray, William J. Fitzgerald, John H. Carney, P. E. R.; James Osten, P. E. R.; Fred G. Thumm, Dr. Charles W. Solomon, Francis R. Donnelly, P. E. R.; Dan F. Driscoll, Dan Polski and Alexander Finlayson.

Following the entertainment, the clowns were the guests of the Elks at the Elks home at a buffet supper.

SAVED THE FLAG OF THE 18TH CONNECTICUT

A recent issue of a Baltimore paper recorded the death of George Schley, a Civil war veteran, who was the one who saved the flag of the 18th Connecticut regiment at the battle of Winchester, at the request of the late William Caruthers, former Norwich postmaster, who was then a lieutenant colonel in the regiment, which went out from this city.

The Baltimore paper gives the story as follows:

George Schley, 89, who to save a Union regiment's prized colors secreted the flag beneath his uniform while imprisoned for three months in a Confederate prison, died yesterday from apoplexy at his home 1520 North Bond street.

At the outbreak of the Civil war Mr. Schley enlisted as a private in the Fifth Maryland Volunteers, with whom he saw three years service.

Gift of Norwich Women

It was at the battle of Winchester, where the Marylanders fought with a company of the 18th Regimen, Connecticut Volunteers, that the standard—a gift to the regiment from the women of Norwich—was entrusted to Mr. Schley when surrender to the southerners seemed imminent.

Relating his experiences some years later, Mr. Schley told the Hartford (Conn.) Times:

"I was under Milroy at Winchester, and after that severe battle against severe odds we were awaiting the surrender.

"A lieutenant colonel of the 18th Connecticut approached me and said: 'Young man, can you hide this flag so the Rebs wont get it? It was given to our regiment by some ladies of Connecticut.'

"I told him I'd try, and stripped the colors from the staff, winding them around my body beneath my uniform."

Spent Months in Prison

Although he was captured and spent three months in Libby prison before he was freed in an exchange of prisoners, his captors failed to discover the flag. His comrades pleaded with him to destroy it, Mr. Schley said, but he successfully concealed it, and for many years following the war it reposed on the wall of his Baltimore home.

Thirty-four years later the trophy was restored to the Connecticut regiment. A chance meeting with a member of the regiment and the ensuing swapping of war experiences led to its return to Captain William Caruthers, of Norwich.

Mr. Schley is survived by three sons, Robert and Edward Schley, of Baltimore, and Frank Schley, of Cambridge, and two daughters, Mrs. Henry Hodenoit, of Washington, and Mrs. Alexander Stuart, of Anne Arundel county.

MAKING ANNUAL APPEAL FOR FRESH AIR FUNDS

In the annual appeal made by the United Workers for "fresh air funds," the need for the work is stated, as follows:

"This is the season of the year when preparations are being made for vacations and yet there are some who are never able to vary the monotony of a life of toil through such recreation. Tired mothers, growing, undernourished, sick children need the relief which comes with a bit of a change. There are many mothers and little children in this city whose only chance for an outing in the country or at the beach is through the generosity of others.

"We appeal to all who are interested in providing a few hours pleasure and rest for those who need it most. The regular funds of the United Workers are not available for this purpose. The money received will be used for day trips to the beach and boarding children in summer camps.

"The smallest sum will be a great help. Contributions will be gratefully received if sent to the Family Welfare Department of the United Workers, No. 9 Washington street. Thank you."

SHOWING PUBLIC SCHOOL MANUAL TRAINING WORK

Edward J. Graham, superintendent of schools, announced Friday that the manual training department of the local public schools has a window exhibit in a store on Main street, opposite the Plaut-Cadden store. All of the articles were made by the boys of the 7th and 8th grades.

In the exhibit are 62 articles which include book cases, book shelves, book racks, book trough, hall trees, clothes racks, medicine cabinet, tool chest, floor and table lamps, large and small taborets, foot stools, pedestal, necktie racks, bird houses, kitchen service wagon and hanging wall shelves. These are representative of the 601 articles constructed by the boys during the school year just closing.

The boys of the seventh and eighth grades are allowed one hour a week in woodworking. It is hoped that in the future more time will be allowed for manual training work and that the boys will have an opportunity to explore and find themselves in other industrial arts other than woodworking, which is the only one now given to the boys.

"What the project does to the boy is of greater consequence than what the boy does to the project" has been the motto of the manual training department for the past year.

The department is in charge of Walter U. Forschler, manual training director.

The store was provided through the courtesy of the Plaut-Cadden company; the lighting by the Gas and Electric department and the Eaton Chase company.

This exhibition will remain in the windows over the week end.

GRANTS TWO DIVORCES, RESERVES ONE DECISION

Judge Allyn L. Brown heard three divorces on the uncontested list in the superior court here Friday morning, granting two and reserving decision in the other.

On the grounds of desertion alleged for more than three years, Ralph Day Fillmore of Laurel Hill avenue was granted divorce he sought from Kathryn Bliven Fillmore, of New York, formerly of this city. They were married Sept. 1, 1925. Attorney Earl Mathewson represented the petitioner but the defendant was not represented. The witnesses were two of Mr. Fillmore's neighbors, Lester Greenman and William R. Stevens, and State Attorney Arthur M. Brown.

Florence Perkins Hammond of New London was granted a divorce from Paul S. Hammond of Stonington whom she married Sept. 28, 1923, and whom she testified deserted her Nov. 25, 1926. She is a hairdresser, and she claimed there had been several arguments with her husband because he didn't want to work.

Judge Brown reserved decision on the petition of Joseph Thomas McGovern of Brooklyn, N. Y., formerly of Jewett City and Goodyear. He asked divorce from Mary McGovern whom he married in Jewett City Aug. 25, 1924. He claimed that she did not like living in Goodyear and that she deserted him Feb. 19, 1926.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Fifty years ago this week, Hugh H. Osgood, republican, decisively defeated John L. Denison, prohibitionist, for mayor of the city. The democrats had no ticket of their own and divided their vote between the republican and prohibition parties. From the result of the election, prohibition was far from popular in Norwich. The election figures were: Mr. Osgood, 624; Mr. Denison, 133. Interesting extracts taken from the file of The Norwich Bulletin of June, 1880, follow:

Monday, June 7, 1880—The new bank building on Shetucket street, owned and now nearly ready to be occupied by the Second National bank, of this city, is, in its interior, as well as its exterior finish and style, one of the finest structures of the kind in this part of the state.

The Young Ladies Leap Year society held a gay and festive party last night at Temperance hall. The strawberry festival given by the Greeneville M. E. church, in Oneco hall, last night, was largely attended. It closed with an auction. Everything was disposed of.

PRESIDENT HOOVER WILL SIGN TARIFF BILL TO END BUSINESS UNCERTAINTIES

Views of the Chief Executive Were Given In a Statement Issued At the White House—States That the New Flexible Provision Affords An Opportunity to "Remedy Inequalities" and Take the Tariff Away From "Politics, Lobbying and Log Rolling"—Declares That Complaints From Foreign Countries That Some of the Rates Were Too High Could Be Remedied, "If Justified," By Proper Application to the Tariff Commmission.

WASHINGTON, June 15—(AP)—President Hoover announced today he would sign the tariff bill.

In a lengthy statement issued at the white house, the president said it was urgent that the "uncertainties in the business world" should be ended by completion of the bill; that the rate increases "are largely directed to the interest of the farmer," and that the new flexible provision afforded an opportunity to "remedy inequalities" and take the tariff away from "politics, lobbying and log rolling."

"I shall approve the tariff bill," the statement began and then laid great stress on the importance of the flexible provision under which the tariff commission would recommend rate changes to the executive for approval or disapproval.

The president said complaints from foreign countries that some of the rates were too high could be "remedied if justified, by proper application to the tariff commission," and then added that if the flexible clause should prove inadequate he would ask congress that further authority be granted the commission.

Asserting every tariff bill was "bound to contain some inequalities, and inequitible compromises," Mr. Hoover said he was "convinced that the disposal of the whole question is urgent."

"I believe," he asserted, "that the flexible provisions can within a reasonable time remedy inequalities; that this provision is a progressive advance and gives great hope of taking the tariff away from politics, lobbying and log rolling; that the bill gives protection to agriculture for the market of its products and to several industries in need of such projection for the wage of their labor; that with returning normal conditions our foreign trade will continue to expand."

The presidential statement came simultaneously with one issued by Jouett Shouse, chairman of the democratic national executive committee, laying down the challenge that the Hawley-Smoot measure would be "the issue" in the approaching congressional elections.

"The Grundy bill is thus made the issue of the coming congressional campaign," Shouse said. "The people will render their verdict next November and the democratic party feels no concern over the results."

It was generally agreed among factional leaders tonight that the tariff would be a major issue in the bi-annual elections, with indications that the senate republican independents from the northwest, who opposed the bill under the leadership of Senators Borah, Idaho, and Norris, Nebraska, would join in the campaign against it.

The Hoover statement came as a surprise to tariff observers outside of congress. They had been led to believe no announcement of the executive's attitude would be made until he had made a thorough study of the bill's provisions and sent it through the routine departmental channels for comment. The bill itself will not go to the white house until tomorrow as Vice President Curtis has yet to sign it.

A possible answer to the question regarding the suddenness of the Hoover announcement was seen in his statement to this effect:

"Certainly no president, with his other duties, can pretend to make that exhaustive determination of the complex facts which surround each of these 3,200 items and which has required the attention of hundreds of men in congress for nearly a year and a third. That responsibility must rest upon the congress in a legislative rate revisiou."

Under the existing flexible clause, written into the law for the first time in 1922, the president said, the task of adjustment of rates was imposed directly upon the president with such limitations as to delay action. As a result, he added, it was "largely inoperative, although important benefits were brought to the dairying, flax, glass, and other industries through it."

"The new flexible provision," he continued, "establishes the responsibility for revisions upon a reorganized tariff commission, composed of members equally of both parties as a definite rate-making body acting through semi-judicial methods of open hearings and investigation by which items can be taken up one by one upon direction or upon application of aggrieved parties.

"Recommendations are to be made to the president, he being given authority to promulgate or veto the conclusions of the commission. Such revision can be accomplished without disturbance to business, as they concern but one item at a time, and the principles laid down assure a protective basis."

The president declared the flexible clause "takes a long step" toward a "more scientific and businesslike method of tariff revision" which he believed was demanded by a shifting of economic conditions especially in the last 15 months.

"Meritorious demands for further protection to agriculture and labor which have developed since the tariff of 1922 would not end if this bill falls of enactment," he asserted. "Agitation for legislative tariff revision would necessarily continue before the country. Nothing would contribute to retard business recovery more than this continued agitation."

REPUBLICAN PRIMARY IN MINNESOTA TODAY

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 15.—(AP)—Minnesota republicans will choose a United States senatorial nominee Monday from among three men—two outspoken opponents of the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill passed by congress, and the third espousing only repeal of the 18th amendment.

It will bring to a head an old political feud between Senator Thomas D. Schall and Governor Theodore Christianson, leaders of two powerful factions of the party in the tate, who revealed no differences on major issues during the campaign. Instead the campaign had ended tonight in a blaze of personal bitterness. Both oppose the tariff revision, attacking it because it is not limited to farm products.

John F. Selb, a newcomer in state politics, is the third aspirant for the senatorial nomination, and made his appeal entirely to those favoring repeal or modification of national prohibition. His opponents support prohibition but have kept the issue in the backzround.

In addition republicans will select nominees for state and congressional offices at the primary Monday in preparation for the general election in November.

ADJOURNMENT OF CONGRESS PROBABLE WITHIN FEW DAYS

WASHINGTON, June 15—(AP)—With a legislative record comparable to that of the war time congress behind it, the house turned this week to dispose of several relatively important measures while awaiting for the senate to reach an agreement on an adjournment date.

Efforts are to be made in the last legislative days to obtain action on President Hoover's proposal for a unified border patrol, the Vestal bill to revise the copyright laws, and the Capper-Kelly price fixing bill. In addition, the house judiciary committee is expected to act on the senate unemployment measures.

The contest over Boulder Canyon dam will be reopened in the house Tuesday, when the second deficiency bill providing more than $66,000,000 for contingencies in various government departments and $51,000,000 for settlement of German and Austrian war claims is brought up for action.

The measure carries $10,650,000 for the initial work on the $165,000,000 Colorado river power and water project. Representative Douglas, democrat, Arizona, has served notice he will lead the opposition to the appropriation. It also provides $25,000,000 for public building projects affecting three scores of municipalities.

Speaker Longworth advised the members that he would recognize requests for preference for action on certain desired legislation only under special conditions during the remainder of the session. With the final approval of the tariff bill by the house Saturday, he said, in all probability congress would adjourn within a few days.

HOOVER NEUTRAL IN NEW JERSEY POLITICS

WASHINGTON, June 15.—(AP)—With only two days to go, before New Jersey republicans vote their choice for the United States senate, the white house reasserted today the president's neutrality in the race between Ambassador Morrow, former Senator Frelinghuysen and Representative Fort.

Widespread publication of a speech in New Jersey last night by Senator Baird, republican, New Jersey, in which he was quoted as saying President Hoover was "intensely interested" in seeing Mr. Morrow elected to the senate, drew word from the white house that the supporters of Fort and Frelinghuysen had protested and that the president was taking no part between republican candidates in New Jersey or elsewhere.

"Protests have been received from supporters of Congressman Fort and ex-Senator Frelinghuysen in respect to Senator Baird's reported statement," the white house said. "Several weeks ago a statement was made from the white house that the president has taken no part as between republican candidates in New Jersey or in the primaries of any other state.

"That still holds good. This is also in accord with the expressed wish of each of the candidates."

Planning In Chicago To Combat Criminals

Political and Civic Leaders Are to Meet Today to Devise Methods of Repression.

CHICAGO, June 15—(AP)—Chicago's hopes for decisive action against crime tonight rested with the political and civic leaders who will assemble tomorrow to devise plans for combating gang lawlessness.

Spurred by the wave of public indignation that has swept the city since the slaying of Alfred J. Lingle, Tribune reporter, Mayor William Hale Thompson, long reticent, was reported authoritatively to have called a meeting of his advisory cabinet for tomorrow.

The mayor has summoned his administration wheel horses—County Treasurer George F. Harding, Cook county republican committee chairman Bernard W. Snow, Corporation Counsel Samuel A. Ettelson and Eugene R. Pike—to consider the removal of Police Commissioner William F. Russell and Detective Chief John Stege, who have been under fire for their efforts against gangsters.

At the same time the executive committee, senior council and directorate of the association of commerce will go into secret session with men, selected for their prominence in business and professional ranks, to "demand a showdown from the people responsible for continuing the gangs in power."

Col. Robert I. Randolph, president of the association, said the conference was called because of "a complete breakdown of law and order and would develop measures to maintain government and protect citizens."

Alderman Arthur F. Albert today said he would introduce a resolution to the city council Wednesday demanding a thorough investigation of the police department by a committee composed of aldermen and civil service commissioners regardless of developments in the Lingle case.

Albert said the resolution would also recommend the naming of Captain Thomas Condon and Captain James Allman police commissioner and detective chief, respectively.

Two hundred and fifty-three prisoners, suspected of various crimes and taken with almost 3,000 others in the detective squad raids that followed the Lingle murder, paraded in the regular show up at police headquarters tonight. The squads brought in 700 men over the week end.

The Tribune said the cleanup move is aiming at something higher than police officials—that Mayor Thompson is to be asked to resign. It also printed a rumor that General Charles G. Dawes, ambassador to Great Britain, may be called upon to assume charge of the cleanup. The newspaper quoted Ambassador Dawes, at Englewood, N. J., as saying "within a few months you will see a new Chicago—the time has come to Chicago to act."

BACCALAUREATE ADVICE TO WESLEYAN GRADUATES

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., June 15—(AP)—Wesleyan university's graduating class today was urged by President James McConaughy, who gave the baccalaureate address, to develop curiosity and boldness, traits, he said, not usually possessed by the average citizen.

Speaking on the subject, "Taking Life as an Adventure," he said:

"No age needs the adventurous spirit more than this. Racial and national relationships call for courageous leadership more than in any previous decade. Labor and capital must learn to share new responsibilities instead of past antagonisms. Home, marriage, men and women—all are relationships which today call for open-minded, fairness, honorable adventure. Religion, too, must be sought as an adventure."

"My plea today is that you should take away from his campus a willingness sometime to be a radical, to go beyond the crowd, to be a discovered, to champion lost causes, and to try to reform the many wrongs in the world that we of the older generations have made. If education does not mean fearless leadership, independence, bravery to pioneer in social and world relations, society may well question whether education is truly a factor in racial betterment."

SENATE PETITIONED BY BISHOP JAMES CANNON, JR.

He Requests The Senate to Pass Before Adjournment the Law Enforcement Commission Measures Already Approved By the House—The Bishop Has Engaged Counsel to Consider Legal Action Against "Wet and Roman Catholic Publications" For Deriding Him During the Past Two Years.

WASHINGTON, June 15—(AP)—Scarcely out of the hands of the senate lobby committee, whose efforts to question him on his anti-Smith activities of 1928 he successfully defied, Bishop James Cannon, Jr., has petitioned the senate to pass before adjournment the law enforcement commission measures already approved by the house.

At the same time it was disclosed in a statement distributed from his office that the bishop had engaged counsel to consider the possibility of criminal or civil libel action against "wet and Roman Catholic publications", which carried "cartoons, editorials, and alleged news articles" concerning him during the past two years.

"The bishop further announced," said the statement "that it would be his purpose to meet all future publications, as well as those which have already been made, as far as counsel may consider them proper grounds for action, with the processes of the law. Vicious, cowardly attacks made in the senate and the house of representatives are immune from such prosecution."

The petition for passage of the law enforcement bills, was signed by Bishop Cannon as president of the board of temperance and social service of the Methodist Episcopal church, South. It noted that unless the bills were reported promptly by the senate judiciary committee "there is a possibility that the senate may adjourn without acting upon these proposed law enforcement measures."

The bills in question would permit juryless trials of minor violators before U. S. commissioners.

Robelin, who formerly owned a hotel and who now runs a social club with about 100 members next door to his home, was out with his wife at the time of the fire. He was unable to give any reason for the incendiarism.

Viola said that fifteen minutes before the fire was discovered she heard an automobile drive up to the club, but she did not investigate.

OPPORTUNITIES OF YOUTH CITED TO YALE GRADUATES

NEW HAVEN, June 15—(AP)—The highly plastic conditions of the time and the commanding position the United States as a world power have combined to give the young men of today an unequalled opportunity to leave their impress on the tide of human affairs, President James Rowland Angell said today in his baccalaureate sermon to the graduating class of Yale university.

With civilization rapidly changing its outward cloak, science revolutionizing our daily lives, and with philosophy, art, education, literature and religion in a flux, President Angell said, "men of intellectual and moral daring, of devotion, of imagination, of training and discipline and intelligence, are needed.

"Evil and injustice are not inert, much less dead," he said. "They stalk abroad in social life, in politics and in business. If men like you will not do battle with them, who should? Moreover, crushing human need is all about you in the world crying for relief. Even in these times of great wealth, poverty, disease, crime and under-privilege constitute a challenge to that idealism, which, thank God, never dies in youth, however thin and feeble it may become in later years."

Commenting on the "critical onslaughts upon Christianity, upon religion and morals in general," President Angell asserted that "after all, our practical attitudes are the immediate important things. It is what we do that counts most certainly. Faith without works, as St. James remarks, is dead."

The field of international relations was cited by President Angell as a field in which service of the greatest value could be rendered.

INDIANS PROTEST THE SECLUSION OF WOMEN

CALCUTTA, India, June 15—(AP)—Followers of Mahatma Gandhi in his civil disobedience campaign today proclaimed that "Purdah," the seclusion of women, is doomed, since women have left the privacy of their homes to aid in the struggle for independence.

They exulted today in the fact that Indian women, who for centuries preferred the seclusion of their homes, had been given what was considered a new world status by the Simon commission, which took particular cognizance of women's part in the disobedience struggle.

In the furtherance of the movement Gandhi's subalterns today issued a new appeal, as follows: "Away with ancient Purdah. Come out of the kitchens quick! Fling the pots and pans rattling into corners! Tear the cloth from your eyes, and see the new world. Let your husbands and brothers cook for themselves. There is much work to be done to make India a nation!"

The activities of the women in Calcutta, Bombay, Madras and other centers will soon be concentrated upon making a success of the nationalist boycott against British materials. These include chiefly clothes, household articles, and tobacco, simultaneously they will encourage Indians to use homemade fabrics, the women taking a leading part in picketing shops selling foreign dress goods.

All gliders built before Oct. 1, if they pass an inspection of the department, will be licensed forthwith. Those manufactured Oct. 1 will be required to meet certain standards of construction designed to promote safety and efficient operation.

The exercises were held at the bandstand and were attended by several hundred residents of the town and vicinity. Exalted Ruler M. Walter Flynn presided and introduced the speaker, Hon. Stephen J. Casey, of Wakefield, R. I., former South Kingstown senator in the Rhode Island general assembly, who directed his hearers to guard their liberty and hold steadfast to the teachings of the flag.

The former senator treated of American life, social, industrial and economic, reviewed the work done at the London naval conference and editorialized on the tariff act.

The exercises were begun at 8 o'clock in Wilcox park, with hundreds of spectators joining the members of the fraternal organization. Ideal weather conditions contributed to the success of the affair, which was in charge of a committee headed by George P. Chapman, and including Charles H. Cushman, James McCormick, Lawrence C. Purtill, Thomas H. Gardiner, William A. Donovan, Luigi L. Scactiona, Dominic Albamonti and Luke Purcella.

Armed with a search warrant, the chief and troopers raided this place and reported seizing 56 quart bottles of beer, a copper still, a barrel of rye mash and several jugs said to contain liquor.

At the place of John Crist on Hill street, Hope Valley, the raiding officers procured two crates of beer, bottled beer and a barrel of mash.

The other place visited was the Baby farm, so-called, located south of the Mystic mills in Hope Valley, run by Erdek Pianki. The officers took samples of beer at this place which will be analyzed as to its alcoholic contents.

DANIELSON

PROVIDENCE BOY CLAIMS HE STOLE WATCHES HERE

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, June 15—There is a chance that a burglary was committed somewhere in this section of eastern Connecticut two or three months ago that never has been reported, and there is also the chance of persons who lost three watches in such an affair getting them back if they communicate with the state police of the Danielson barracks.

Explaining all of which, it may be said that Julio Procaccianti, a 15 year old youth who lives at 2 Crown street, Providence, was picked up by the police of that city at the week end on a larceny charge and was found to have three watches in his possession.

He says that the watches were stolen from a house somewhere near Danielson, two or three months ago, but he is unfamiliar with local territory, and appears unable to give an exact description of just where he stole them. So through the means of this bit of publicity state officers hope to have anyone who may have been robbed of watches to report the matter to the local barracks.

A mens Olympic gold wrist watch, a woman's hunting case watch, an Elgin, and a woman's Souvenir open face watch constitute the collection now in possession of the Providence police.

Sergeant G. L. Gardner of the Danielson barracks was in Providence today checking up on the case. Procaccianti is to be presented in court in Providence Monday to answer to the larceny charge the police there have filed against him.

Fitts of Hampton was presented to answer to a charge of fishing without having a license. Mr. Fitts, who was represented by Attorney William A. King of Willimantic, is a former deputy game warden. He was ordered into court by County Game Warden Thomas Daniels of Plainfield. Mr. Fitts pleaded nolo and was fined $1.00 and costs of $11.10.

Another prosecution over the week end for violation of the fish and game laws was that of Andrew Laroque of Plainfield, arrested by Deputy Game Warden Colburn. Laroque was charged with taking bass out of season. Taking of these fish is not legal until July 1. In Justice Coit's court in Canterbury Laroque was fined $5.00 and costs of $11.35.

William Potter, 82, died today in Brooklyn, of which town he was a native, after a long illness. He had lived in territory hereabouts practically all of his life, much of the time working on farms. He leaves his wife and a daughter, both resident in Moosup. Undertaker L. E. Kennedy took charge of the body.

One of the very fine events of commencement week was the reunion—on the 10th anniversary of graduation—of the members of the class of 1920, Killingly high school. Eighteen of the 30 graduates of this class came from far and near to be together again, to exulte in the renewal of their comradeship, to feast and to be happy in the revival or resurrection of their many common interests of the days of yore. And a most delightful time they had.

Principal and Mrs. Ernest R. Warren were their guests, as were the husbands that some of the girls have taken to themselves since graduation a decade ago, as the class sat down to a dinner served at Paco lodge on Moriah avenue, Friday evening. Grape fruit, fried scallops, French friend potatoes, peas, lobster salad and strawberry shortcake were included in the menu.

When the hour came for such formalities, Gordon Keegan, now of Uxbridge, Mass., and class president, presided as toastmaster. The other class officers—Miss Margaret Beckley, Providence, vice president; Miss Kathleen Varney, secretary, and Roscoe Burton, treasurer, the two latter of Danielson—were in attendance.

Miss Varney read the class prophecy, again brought to light after a period of ten years, and as each member of the class present at the banquet was mentioned responded with some pertinent comment.

A dollar bill was presented to Mrs. Hannah Smith Hammond for her little daughter, the class baby, and a toy automobile was presented to Miss Clara Armstrong of Boston, as the member that had come the longest distance for the reunion.

And the pleasant dinner period at an end the class and their guests adjourned to Wildwood park to attend the reception and dance arranged by the Alumni association of the school in honor of the class of 1930.

Goodyear Wins Junior Title

The snappy Goodyear Junior baseball team emerges from the Junior County Y. M. C. A. league as champions, having finally disposed of the Grosvenordale team, contenders, in a week end game at Grosvenordale by the convincing score of 20 to 4. The victory was the second straight over Grosvenordale by Goodyear in the post-season series to play-off between the sectional leaders, so no third game is necessary, though was planned to be played at Wauregan in case Grosvenordale won a game.

The Goodyear team, coached by Principal Carl Sears of the school were handicapped by starting the league season late, but overcame that by not losing a game. Goodyear now claims the championship over 14 teams entered in the Y. M. C. A. league's southern, central and northern divisions. In the southern division Plainfield won the championship and was put out of the "world's series" by Goodyear. This left Goodyear, a central division team, to battle with Grosvenordale, champions of the northern division. Grosvenordale proved no match for Goodyear, losing the first game 22 to 2, and the second 20 to 4.

The entire campaign, starting in May, was organized by L. Edwin Hill, county "Y" secretary.

Jehu Downes of Wauregan was the soloist this morning at the service at the Westfield Congregational church.

Roy Tillinghast, who has been in England for approximately a year, is visiting with his mother, Mrs. Amelia Tillinghast, of Academy street.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Storer and their sons, Francis and Newman, are to spend the summer at Wellfleet, Mass., Mr. Storer, president of the Thames Bank and Trust company, remaining only for week ends.

That ambition fires many a local person just released from study for the long summer vacation is indicated by the manner in which many of them are hustling for jobs.

Goodyear has a miniature swimming pool where its youngsters enjoy themselves immensely, and in safety, this warm weather. The pool was created by building a little dam across a small stream.

Mrs. Daniel Kendrick of Providence spent the week end visiting here with friends. Prior to her marriage she was Miss Edna Reed, a Foster student and graduate of Killingly high school.

Not all the boys are obeying the edict that Davis park no longer shall be used as a playground, a matter that has been called to the attention of the police of the borough, it was learned today.

Borough officials will appreciate a large attendance at Tuesday evening's special borough meeting to discuss the terms under which the authorized bond issue shall be made. The officials are open-minded and will welcome free and full discussion of the matter.

FIELD OF 196 PROS AND AMATEURS ENTERED IN BRITISH OPEN TODAY

(By Frank H. King, Associated Press Sports Writer)

HOYLAKE, Eng., June 16—(AP)—Bobby Jones is ready to launch the second phase of his 1930 offensive against British golfing titles tomorrow when the big field of 196 pros and amateurs starts play over the Royal Liverpool and Wallasey courses, in the classic British Open championship. This event was founded in 1860 when the American youngsters of those days were going out to battles of another description.

Jones naturally is regarded as the leader of the American forces but there is plenty of fancy shooting expected of Von Elm and Don Moe, other members of the American Walker Cup team, and Diegel, Horton Smith, Jim Barnes and MacDonald Smith, pros. Gene Sarazen and Tommy Armour were entered in the championship but decided to pass it up at the last minute.

The big field will be divided tomorrow and Tuesday for the purpose of qualifying. Half of the entrants will play over Hoylake tomorrow and half over Wallasey. On Tuesday for the second 18 holes of the qualifying round the field will be reversed. On Tuesday night, the 160 leaders and all ties for 160th place will survive for the 72 holes of medal play in the championship proper. All four rounds will be played at Hoylake. Eighteen holes will be played Wednesday and 18 holes on Thursday after which the 60 leaders and ties will play the final 36 holes on Friday.

Principal starting times for the first round of qualifying play tomorrow follow: (Time is English time).

Hoylake—9:18, Jim Barnes and E. F. Bales.

Sunningdale—11:24, Leo Diegel and R. J. Knight, of Thedford; 12:36, Bobby Jones and Norman Newton, Havana.

Wallasey—9:12, Don Moe and Moses O'Neil of Wrekin; 11:30, George Von Elm and G. H. Lewis, Fulwood Park; 12:48, MacDonald Smith and Phillip Stevenson, Royal Portrush; 2:12, F. C. Stevens, Los Angeles and J. Forrester, Baltimore; 2:54, Horton Smith and William McMinn, London.

CROWDER WEAKENS AND BROWNS DEFEAT WASH.

ST. LOUIS, June 15—(AP)—"General" Al Crowder, traded to the Washington Senators last week by the St. Louis Browns, weakened in the ninth inning today and the Browns won from the Senators, 8 to 2. Until the ninth the Browns were able to do little with their former teammate's delivery. It was Crowder's first start for Washington.

Heinie Manush, who went to Washington with Crowder in a deal that brought "Goose" Goslin to St. Louis, hit a home run.

George Blaeholder, who pitched the last two innings after Dick Coffman had pitched the first seven for the Browns, was credited with the victory. The score:

BROOKLYN, N. Y., June 15—(AP)—St. Louis defeated Brooklyn 9 to 4 here today drawing even with the Robins for the series. Andy High led the attack with a triple and a home run, driving in four runs.

HARTNETT COLLECTS FOUR BINGLES IN CUBS DEFEAT

NEW YORK, June 15—(AP)—The Giants with Donohue in the box evened up the series with the Cubs at one each, winning the second game of the series with late inning rallies. The score was 7 to 4.

Donohue after a shaky start settled down and held the Cubs at bay, weighing in with three hits besides and driving in a run.

Blake who started for the Cubs held the Giants well in hand until the sixth, when they forged ahead. The New Yorkers kept up their hitting against Teachout who relieved him, Hogan connecting for a home run with two men aboard in the eighth. This blow settled the issue in favor of the Giants.

Hack Wilson made the feature play of the game, when he made a diving catc hof Critz's liner in the first inning.

Hartnett did the best hitting of the day with four hits, one a homer, his 13th.

Up in Willimantic they're having a Reunion Week.

Say, folks, that's a pretty nice thing at that and it gives you quite a thrill to see those old timers renewing friendships made in the dim past.

I was up there yesterday and saw some of those acquaintances get together for a real talk about old times in the Thread city. You know when you go back to the old home town you expect to see everything just as it was when you left.

And you expect Jimmy Jones and Sally Waters to look just the same as when you went to school together. But what a shock you get when you see them. Sally, who was a freckle-faced kid, has grown up to be a splendid looking woman, while Jimmy has grown from a gangling, loose-jointed string bean into a staid business man with an aldermanic front.

Of course, you don't know them until somebody says, "Now Sally, here's John Brown. You knew John, didn't you, when we were going to high school?" Sally, of course, says she does remember you but you can tell by the expression on her face she didn't. And what's more, you didn't know her, either.

Then you start to talk over the old days and you find she's married to Bill Green whom you didn't like a little bit, and besides you was kind of sweet on Sally yourself.

Then you go for a walk about town. It's not like the old days when it was, "Hello, John, Hello; Mary, and Hello, Bill." Now you walk a block and don't see a soul you know and nobody pays the slightest attention to you.

Some of the old buildings look the same but the tenants of the stores are all strangers to you. The old grocery store on the corner where you worked after school is gone and a modern hotel takes its place. And so all along the street you go and you have a kind of lonesome feeling until somebody slaps you on the back and says, "Well if it ain't ol John Brown. You ain't changed a bit, I'd a known you anywhere."

Gee, isn't that a great feeling and your chest expands as you start to recall the old days. You feel like you belonged and you begin to have a mighty good time and glad you came.

Yes, these reunions are good for the spirit, sort of peps you up and make you think this old world isn't such a dreary place after all.

GROVE HOLDS TIGERS AND ATHLETICS WIN

SHYMAS WIN BOTH OF THE WEEK-END GAMES

The Shymas continued their winning streak over the week-end by defeating two of the fastest baseball teams in this section, in the U. S. S. Wilkes and the Plainfield Red Stars. On Saturday afternoon the Shymas were returned the victors against the sailors by the score of 7 to 6 after a seventh-inning rally which netted them six runs. Bunk and Ulewicz were the hitting stars with two bingles apiece. S. Raymond, youthful Shyma hurler, pitched a fine game, holding the sailors to four hits in his stay on the mound.

Sunday's game saw their star pitcher, Faucher, holding the heavy-hitting Plainfield team to two hits, while the Shymas were playing snappy ball to shut out the Plainfield boys, 5 to 0. The Shymas played a good fielding game, executing four double plays and also hitting Clocher, the Plainfield twirler, for 14 hits. N. Lemieux led the hitting with four out of five. Burelle, the Shyma catcher, caught a brilliant game, holding Faucher in great style and catching four foul flies. The summary:

A Challenge

The Red Riders would like to play a game with the Roath Street Tigers at the Hollyhock Island diamond at 6:15 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Answer through the paper.

RIVERVIEW WINS ANOTHER FROM PUTNAM SILK SOX

The Riverview club continued to mow down the opposition, winning from the Putnam Silk Sox Saturday afternoon at the hospital diamond, 6 to 4, in a loosely played game. There were eleven errors chalked up against the teams, the locals making seven. Normandin provided a fielding feature e in the third inning, making a spectacular catch after a long run.

The 192nd Field Artillery band of New London, under the direction of Warrant Officer George J. Perry, gave a concert at the grounds, which was greatly appreciated by the patients and others. The score:

ACADEMY CLOSES SEASON WITH WIN OVER NAUGATUCK HIGH BY 4-1 SCORE

Playing like the champs that they should have been, the Academy closed its baseball season Saturday at the campus by beating Naugatuck high, 4 to 1, behind gilt-edged twirling by Boots Greene. This marked the fifteenth victory in a campaign of 20 starts and enabled the Wildcats to atone for a 4 to 2 defeat suffered at the hands of this club in 1929.

Almost a Blank

Greene was never in better form and really deserved a shutout, except for a couple of infield errors coupled with a sacrifice in the first inning. Thereafter in his eight innings of scoreless pitching Boots was forced to pitch himself out of tight situations in two innings, the sixth and eighth and he was equal to the emergency. In the other six innings only three men faced the local curve-ball artist.

After spotting the visitors an unearned run right off the bat the Academy made serious gestures in the first and second innings before finally breaking through in the third when, with two away, Flather walked and Arico was hit by a pitched ball and Gibbs then drove a line double against the Manual Training building in right, scoring Flather and when Murray muffed the throw-in Arico tallied and Gibbs went to third. Fontaine slammed one at Murray, who knocked it down and threw him out at first. In the sixth the Wildcats made their total three when Fontaine singled with one out, took second when Murray threw it away trying to catch him off first and came in when the third baseman threw badly to first on Weisgraber's grounder. The last scoring materialized in the eighth when Fontaine opened with a double to right and took third on a balk by the pitcher. Weisgraber hit to Murray and Fontaine was trapped between third and home, after an exciting rundown. Weisgraber, however, ran all the way around to third in the commotion and registered on Cliff Hamil's neat bingle into left. The score:

THE PRESIDENT APPROVES

That President Hoover is desirous giving the country the benefit of the relief from uncertainty which has prevailed for many months while congress has been wrestling with the tariff bill is indicated by his statement that he will sign the bill which was approved last week by both houses of congress. While he points out the handicap under which a president faces the task of going through such a measure item by item, he knows that the country has chafed under the delay that has been needlessly occasioned by the senate. He could wait ten days and give the bill such a study as time would permit, but even that delay he doesn't consider warranted. It isn't that he has never heard of the measure before. It isn't as if he had had no chance to entertain views concerning the operation of the bill. Getting a bill on tariff revision that would suit everyone is not to be expected. There have been revisions which have dealt with conditions which needed attention. There have been changes effected in the conference committee that have removed objectionable features. Attention has been given to relief of agriculture and, while industry may not have received all the attention deserved in some instances, it is impossible to overlook the fact, as the president points out, that there will be opportunity under the flexible clause of the tariff bill whereby there can be readjustments to meet inequalities and injustices. It is not impossible that it will be easier to secure these fair changes under a sane consideration of the facts by the tariff commission than through the methods which are employed in congress.

The president fully understands the sentiment of the country when he lets it be known in advance of actually receiving the tariff bill that he will sign it. There is no need for further delay, as he sees it, and his decision puts a quicker end to the uncertainty as to what the outcome is going to be.

It is entertaining to hear the measure referred to as a Grundy bill when it is fully understood that it comes far from meeting the wishes of Senator Grundy. It has not given Pennsylvania industry what he believes it should have. He reluctantly approved it. Making political capital out of that will be rather difficult.

MAKE IT SAFE FOR OTHERS

In many ways it has long since been made evident that if you want something done the best way to insure it is to do it yourself.

According to a booklet on safety issued by the John Hancock Insurance Company, "If you want the highways safe for yourself, make them safe for others." Any driver who stops to give consideration to what he can contribute to highway safety knows that if all drivers make the highway safe for others it is certain to follow that they will experience slight trouble. Most drivers are able to drive safely and would experience few accidents if it were not for the other fellow. The responsibility resting upon the individual driver is, therefore, important. He can and should protect himself, but while he is doing that he should also have the other fellow in mind, and when both get consideration much safer highway conditions will follow.

Further suggestions for increased safety are given, as follows:

Your guides are—When in doubt stop.

Assume your full responsibility to avoid an accident.

Always have your car under full control for any possible emergency. The policy of leaving it to the other fellow is foolish and reckless.

Unwarranted speed figures in nearly every accident. Lose a minute and save a life.

Any speed that deprives a driver of necessary control in an emergency is unwarranted speed.

Picture your child in the place of the little one in front of your car. Picture your wife, your aged mother or father in each pedestrian.

Not only the law of the land but the law of God commands, 'Thou shalt not kill.'"

There is plenty of food for serious thought in this list. If it is followed it will contribute greatly to the effort now being made to bring about a reduction in the highway fatalities and accidents in Connecticut this month. It is through the contributions that can be made by the individual driver that greater safety will be assured and the frightful annual slaughter reduced. Every lowering of the auto casualty rate will be welcomed, whatever influence is responsible for securing it.

THE TANKER'S CREW

What happened aboard the tanker Pinthis when it was struck and sunk by the Fairfax will not be known except in a general way. There are no survivors. The impression may have been gained, in view of the fire-centered sea which followed the collision and explosion, that those who were aboard that craft were killed by the crash or burned to death in the fire. Some may have been caught in the ship and carried down.

From the finding of bodies of the crew which were not touched by fire, it is ascertained that they met death by drowning. Under just what circumstances other than conjectural will never be known. It seems possible that they were struggling in the water for some time before they succumbed and that indicates that, had it been possible through wireless calls to have summoned aid, some help might have been extended to members of the tanker's crew. The dead men can tell nothing in regard to this. What their position was after they went overboard and how long they were able to keep afloat no one knows. No one ever will know. Because of this uncertainty, it permits many impressions to be harbored.

During the testimony given in the inquiry it was disclosed that the commander of the Tampa, within 20 minutes steaming from the scene of the collision, offered assistance but was told that aid was not needed. Insofar as he might have been able to help the Fairfax, it is probable that his services were not required. But just what help he could have given to those of the Pinthis is surrounded with uncertainty. By the time he was able to get in touch with the radio operator of the Fairfax it is possible that those from the tanker had been drowned, but there would have been a feeling of greater satisfaction, even if help was too late, had it been accepted and a chance been permitted to see what could be done. There would have been a feeling that everything possible had been done for the stricken vessel.

After such an emergency is over it is much easier to reflect upon such situations and to see conditions more clearly, but in a case of that kind it doesn't seem as if there could have been too much help.

NEW JERSEY'S PRIMARY

Eyes will be turned tomorrow to the primary which will determine the republican candidate for the United States senate from New Jersey. It is one of those three-cornered contests which has its uncertainties and which has been waged with determination by the respective candidates and their backers.

Because New Jersey is rated as a wet state, being the last of the states to ratify the amendment back in 1922, it might be expected that it would insure the nomination of Dwight W. Morrow, the most outstanding of the candidates. Mr. Morrow has not been in politics but he has a standing before the people of that state, before the nation at large; that places him head and shoulders above his opponents. Mr. Morrow, in opening his campaign, declared for the repeal of the 18th amendment. He believes that that is the best of ways of disposition of the situation which was created by prohibition. He would deal with the liquor question through state action instead of through the federal constitution. He is a believer in temperance and feels that it can be assured in greater measure in that manner.

Former Senator Frelinghuysen was a pronounced dry. As if understanding the sentiment of the state, he opened his campaign by declaring himself a wet. He believed that political expediency called for it. He must have believed that New Jersey wanted such a senator.

Congressman Franklin Fort preferred to run for the senate than for the house. He is an out-and-out dry and is making his appeal to the dry element of the state. He thinks he sees a split between the two republican wets which will give him a chance to secure the nomination. On the democratic side there is sure to be a wet nominee. Thus, should Mr. Fort get the nomination from the republicans, there will be a chance for a real wet and dry fight election day, with better prospects for the wet.

Where Jersey stands will be disclosed in the primary tomorrow. There would be little doubt as to the outcome but for the triangular contest, but that calls for serious thought on the part of the republican voters if they expect victory in November.

SIR HENRY SEGRAVE

Sir Henry Segrave was a seeker after speed. He was never happier than when engaged in trying to beat a record, and it didn't make much difference to him whether it was on land, in the air or on the water.

When he was establishing the record of 231 miles an hour in a motor vehicle in this country he was fully aware of the chances that he was taking. He knew the consequences if anything went wrong, if there was a defect, a slight twist of the wheel or a bad spot in the roadbed. He turned from that to secure supremacy in the guiding of the fastest boat, a craft specially built, only to lose his life when it upset but going at much less than half the speed of his record-breaking automobile.

The death of such men always brings the reflection that they should have expected such an end. It is not improbable that Major Segrave did. He knew the chances that he was taking, although it might not have been expected that he was facing as much danger in his speedboat as he did in his auto.

It is quite evident that the full power of machinery and the advantage of construction would never be known but for such men as Major Segrave. They take great risks for the satisfying of their ambitions and for the lessons which their accomplishments will give to the world. They are not satisfied to be numbered among the slow plodders who live long with less excitement. They seek speed with full knowledge of the expense involved and the possible penalty. Many others have made similar important contributions to science through personal sacrifices. They would have it that way.

SAUCE FOR THE GOOSE

The excited young man who took the outside steps two at a time scarcely waited for the door to be opened when he dashed into the living room, unceremoniously pulled Clarice to her feet and spun her around to the accompaniment of jubilant hoorays.

"Dave Willard!" she gasped. "Have you recently become demented or has somebody left you a million dollars? What's all the joy about?"

"About something you wanted to have happen, and now it's going to!"

"Oh, what is it?"

"Young lady, behold! I have tickets for next Saturday's football game!"

"Oh!" in a strangely flat tone. "That's quite nice."

"Quite nice!" echoed Dave. "Why, you've been simply wild to go to this game and now that I can take you—"

"It's lovely of you, Dave, but you see I can't go, after all. I'm sorry."

"I'd like to know why not!. You had the date with me for Saturday's game if I could get tickets. It's practically impossible to get tickets two days before a big game like this, but you know I didn't expect to be in town or I'd have secured them sooner. I was lucky to dig up these. How come you can't go?"

"Why, when my cousin Eula told me this morning that she and Jack were driving up to Milwaukee Saturday, I said I'd like to go along. We're going to stay overnight at our Uncle John's and come back on Sunday. You see, the Midwestern Glee club is giving its concert in Milwaukee that night and I thought it would be such fun to attend. I adore glee concerts."

"More than a rousing football game? Say," suspiciously, "isn't that Byron Anders a member of the Glee club?"

"Why—yes, Dave. But—"

"And he is riding along, too, with Eula and Jack?"

"Ye-es, but listen—"

"Of course, you're not by any chance turning me down to be with Byron all day Saturday?" heavily sarcastic.

"Now, Dave, be reasonable. I didn't think you'd be able to get tickets. Anyway, it would be a good idea for us to go around with other people once in a while. It would keep us from getting narrow-minded about each other. I believe in having liberal views."

"Yeah?" Dave continued to scowl out of the window. Suddenly a smile flashed into his face. "By the way, Clarice; I met Vallie Powell today. Pretty, isn't she?"

"Vallie, pretty?" Clarice's voice had a little edge to it. "Oh, of course, if you like that type of vampish make-up she uses and those odd clothes she affects, and—"

"She looks all right to me." He looked more pleased than ever. "Seems real jolly, too—the sort a fellow would like to—"

"Dave," hastily, "about that game. Why don't you take that nice roommate of yours with you? He once took you to a stag."

"He's flying to Detroit, Saturday. That's the only thing better than sitting at a game!"

"Well, then, there's your sister-in-law. Wouldn't she just love to—"

"Nope. She's giving one of the youngsters a birthday party that afternoon. But say, Clarice, don't worry about finding some one to go with me I've got it all figured out."

"Dave, you—you wouldn't dream of taking that Vallie Powell, would you?"

"Why not? She's good looking and a great little dresser and has a keen line of conversation. Yes, Clarice, I guess you're right about its being better for us to go around more with other folks. I didn't think of it before, but maybe we've been seeing too much of each other lately," rising and walking toward the door. "I'll just drop around to Vallie's now and see if—"

"Wait a minute Dave," broke in Clarice, desperately "I—I don't think I care so awfully much about that Glee club concert. I really believe I'd rather go to a good rousing football game, as long as you have the tickets. And I'll wear my new fur coat!"—Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, June 15— Few senators or members of the house realized until recently that all this business of safeguarding each branch of congress of its members from criticism and attack on the floor of the other was not a matter of established rules. Yet such is the fact.

The prohibition against speeches of that kind is contained only in Jefferson's manual, written 140 years ago for Jefferson's own guidance.

By custom, at least up to this year, these precedents have governed presiding officers of both house and senate in cases where no specific rules have been adopted by either body.

Curtis Makes Ruling

So when Senator Morris spoke his mind about the action of Speaker Longworth in having held on his desk ten months without reference to a committee the senate proposal fathered by Norris to abolish "lame duck" sessions of congress, Fess of Ohio sought to call him to order.

Vice President Curtis promptly overruled the point. Jefferson's manual had not become a part of the senate rules, he said, and under the rules it was within the discretion of a senator what he might say about house proceedings.

"That is not a rule," Fess objected.

"The chair makes that ruling now," the vice president snapped, with an emphatic bang of his gavel.

That development did not fail to catch the eye of the speaker, Longworth. Later the speaker was called upon to determine house practice.

Two Courses Open

"The chair had taken pains to look up the history of the rules of courtesy between the houses," Longworth said. Then he recalled counter rulings in the senate to the Curtis mandate, adding:

"There would seem to be two courses open. If the house wished to retaliate, it might provide by rule that Jefferson's manual should not apply. The other is to insist upon strict adherence to both the spirit and letter of the manual.

"So long as he remains presiding officer of this body, the present occupant of the chair will see to it that the rules of the manual shall be enforced.

"After all, Jefferson's general precepts are but a restatement of what is and ought to be true sportsmanship in the dealings between the legislative branches."

The house highly approved what it took as a neat rejoinder to the Curtis flat.

YOUR HEALTH

What Is Toxin-Antitoxin?

By Shirley W. Wynne, M. D., Commissioner of Health, New York.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

All over the United States progressive health officers are making an intensive effort to rid their communities of diphtheria by means of toxin-antitoxin. An increasing number of towns already have succeeded so well that they have had no deaths from diphtheria for the past few years. Most of you have heard about the great success of antitoxin in the treatment of diphtheria, but many of you do not yet know of the great value of toxin-antitoxin in preventing diphtheria.

More than thirty-five years ago a German scientist, Behring, found that animals could be injected with gradually increasing doses of the poison made by diphtheria bacilli, that is with the toxin of diphtheria, so that after a time they would tolerate doses which would kill thousands of animals not so treated. Behring found that the treated animals had manufactured a protective substance, the so-called antitoxin, which enabled them to withstand the poison. This antitoxin is present in the serum of the animals' blood. Behring's great discovery consisted in the fact that this serum could be used to treat patients ill with diphtheria, enabling the little sufferers to overcome the disease which threatened their life. Diphtheria antitoxin has saved millions of lives in the thirty-seven years since its discovery.

In 1913 Behring showed that by injecting healthy children several times with a neutralized mixture of diphtheria toxin and antitoxin, giving only a minute dose which caused no ill effects whatever, the children so treated could be protected against diphtheria. This discovery was perfected by Park, a world renowned scientist who is director of laboratories of the New York City Department of Health.

As at present prepared under Park's immediate supervision a minute amount of diphtheria toxin is neutralized with diphtheria antitoxin serum derived from a goat. This mixture, which is absolutely non-poisonous, is known as toxin-antitoxin. Healthy children injected with three doses of this toxin-antitoxin at intervals a week apart, respond by gradually manufacturing within their bodies increasing quantities of antitoxin. Within six months most of them have manufactured so much antitoxin that they are protected against diphtheria. Moreover, this protection appears to last them for life.

Since diphtheria is a very dangerous and prevalent disease during early child life, it is important to give this protection to the little ones early. The best time is when the baby is nine months old, for then the little one will enter its dangerous second year protected against diphtheria.

If you have a little baby at home, safeguard it against diphtheria by having the doctor give it a course of toxin-antitoxin treatments.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dry, Let's Stay Dry.

Mr. Editor: Three cheers for The Old Reliable Farmer, who writes: Dry and we'll stay Dry in the Friday issue of The Bulletin. Those attending the Connecticut law enforcement gathering in New Haven, Thursday, 1,400 strong, are more strengthened in their purpose than ever before to pray, work and fight to enforce the prohibition law as it has never been before. When one sees and hears the outstanding men and women of our country working for this great issue, we are convinced that right is right and God is God and right the day must win. To doubt would be disloyalty. To falter would be sin. The former mayor of Seattle, Washington, tells us that the law can be enforced not 100 per cent., as no law is, but if all officers from mayor down, in each city would do their full duty much would be accomplished. Before being mayor she was a member of the common council for four years and had watched the results of a lack of proper enforcement. On becoming mayor she says I did not promise to eradicate the bootlegging or sale of liquor, but did promise that there would no longer be open and flagrant violation of that law or any law, and with the co-operation of the chief of police and others that promise was kept. Liquors could be obtained but the difficulties in obtaining were increased. The former mayor says that any mayor and chief of police can, if desiring to do so, improve conditions regards the liquor question in a short space of time and if those in whose hands have been placed the law enforcing powers are not willing to fulfill their duties they should give way to others who are willing. Prohibition has done much for the state. Women and children, particularly in the mining towns and families of the men in lumber camps have gained much, with better food, housing, clothing, education, money in banks and improved social and moral conditions and they stand for prohibition. The women of the state demand from their public officials first individual law observance, second an honest effort to enforce all laws. We insist that the public official who does not observe the law himself is a bad citizen and therefore unfit to serve the people. Furthermore, we insist that the public official who does not enforce the law to the best of his ability is disloyal to his oath of office and to his government and should not be permitted to remain in office. With the removal of such persons from office and the substitution of others with sanity and judgment who would proceed to fnuction along the line of law enforcement, our difficulties and problems would gradually disappear.

The "wets," composed in part of men and women who can afford financially the "high cost of drinking," are asking the government to break down the protective law which the 18th amendment has built around society, especially around women and children. They desire this apparently that they may go their way unhampered and with a less guilty conscience. We are asking not for ourselves, that the source of untold misery, liquor, be kept in leash and not be allowed to run freely over our land again.

Women of Norwich, let us demand enforcement from those in public office in our fair city. Readers do not be alarmed over the shocking conditions that we are told have come through the 18th amendment concerning the increase in crime, young people drinking and hip flasks. Much that is written is copied from papers of the years 1852 and 1886—and 1912. These are just smoke screens of discouragement but the "wets" have no constructive alternative, oh, yes, they have the wine interests in Europe pooling their money to overthrow prohibition in our United States and openly boasting that they have our Metropolitan press, the panderers of the big city political machine which lives by making money out of that which debauches the people. After all the time has come for clear, straight thinking. Each American citizen must search his own heart on this matter and law enforcement rests with the people. Let's give the prohibition law its full enforcement.

A NATURALIZED CITIZEN.
Norwich, June 14, 1930.

Enforcing The Dry Law.

Mr. Editor: Please allow me a little space in your paper to say a few words about the most discussed question of the present day, namely, prohibition.

While reading the Sunday paper a short time ago I saw the picture of an old lady 80 years of age, being taken to jail because she had committed the unpardonable crime of selling a pint of whiskey. If she had been a love thief and had stolen some other woman's husband and broken a happy home they would not think of taking her to jail, but it shows the enforcement officers are on the alert. They can catch the blind, the lame, the halt and the aged, but what about the millionaire bootlegger. They never catch any of those. The government contends the buyer is just as guilty as the seller because they are aiding and dented prosperity to the country crime. When the government accepts an income tax from those they know are in the bootlegging business they are just as guilty as the bootlegger, who is responsible for a government vessell bringing in a large quantity of contraband wet goods a short time ago.

There is a large number of people who would like to know where all the choice brands of wine, whiskey and champagne that are taken in raids go to. My opinion is that it goes the same way as the capture of the Black Duck.

In Norwich a short time ago a speaker representing the Anti-Saloon league told his hearers that ten years of prohibition had brought unprecedented prosperity to the country and according to the statement of the Salvation Army there are people in Norwich who would starve were it not for the Army. Is that prosperity? With millions of people who cannot get a day's work is that prosperity? How much longer will the P. T. Barnums of the dry movement carry on? They have been painting that rosy fiction for ten years and it has turned out to be a daub. Next they will claim they are responsible for the sunshine. Certain it is they are responsible for the moonshine.

The head of the Anti-Saloon league made the statement before the senate lobby committee that sometimes they supported a wet candidate so that he would vote dry. I think that is bribery and corruption.

D. R. COOPER.

Treat All Alike.

Mr. Editor: We as American citizens wish to know why all the extra exertion toward the farmer's best friend, the Ford car, all of a sudden. The actions on the Colchester road last Tuesday were very noticeable and witnessed by hundreds of local citizens because of the unjust way the Fords were stopped for examination and not other cars of other makes. The wiring is just as apt to give out on bulbs on any make of car that is driven on Connecticut's beautiful, bumpy dirt roads that have not even been scraped or leveled since our spring muds. Just a loose wire on a tail light was fined exorbitantly while two cases of bad brakes were annulled.

Where's has justice gone? If they want to do anything why not do it thoroughly and check up on all cars.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Peter Misses Something

Familiar things may pass and we
Their passing do not even see.
—Peter Rabbit.

Peter Rabbit sat on the bank of the Smiling Pool, hoping that Jerry Muskrat would reappear. Jerry had just startled Peter so that Peter had nearly jumped into the water. But though he waited and waited he saw no sign of Jerry Muskrat. The little ripples that Jerry had made when he dived gradually disappeared. The Smiling Pool lay quiet and peaceful. In it Peter could see reflected the blue, blue sky and the drifting fleecy clouds. The Big Hickory tree seemed to have its double in the water.

Peter looked over to the green lily-pads and there on the biggest of them sat Grandfather Frog. Grandfather Frog was looking very fine with his green coat and white-and-yellow waistcoat. Even as Peter looked, Grandfather Frog opened his great mouth and a foolish green fly disappeared. "Chug-a-rum!" said Grandfather Frog with a great deal of satisfaction.

Over in the alders near the head of the Smiling Pool, Redwing the Blackbird was singing joyously. On a stone on the edge of the Smiling Pool, Teeter the Sandpiper was bobbing up and down in that funny way of his. Rattles the Kingfisher, with his top-knot standing up straight making his head look as if he were cross, was sitting on a branch of the Big Hickory tree that overhung the water. Peter knew that Rattles was watching for fish.

Suddenly it came to Peter that the Smiling Pool didn't seem to be quite what it should be. All these things were as he had seen them many times, but he had a feeling that there was something odd about the Smiling Pool. Peter slowly scratched a long ear with a long hindfoot.

"It seems to me," said he thoughtfully, "that I miss something. I don't know what it is I miss, but I miss something."

He sat up very straight and looked the Smiling Pool all over. There was the Big Rock on which he had so often seen Jerry Muskrat, or sometimes Billy Mink. There was the laughing Brook coming in at the upper end and leaving at the lower end. There were the green banks, high in some places and low in others. It was all very, very familiar. Still Peter had a sense of missing something.

Then, quite abruptly, it popped into Peter's head what it was he missed. "It isn't here!" he exclaimed right out loud.

"What isn't here?" asked Grandfather Frog in his gruff voice.

"Jerry Muskrat's house!" cried Peter.

"Of course it isn't here," replied Grandfather Frog. "Have you just discovered that?"

Peter nodded. "Yes," said he meekly. "His it been gone a very long time?"

"Ever since the spring flood," replied Grandfather Frog. "You don't use your eyes very well. You've been over here times enough to discover that Jerry Muskrat's house is missing."

"It's too bad, isn't it?" said Peter.

"What is too bad?" inquired Grandfather Frog in his deepest voice.

"Why, that Jerry Muskrat hasn't any home," replied Peter.

"Who says he hasn't any home?" demanded Grandfather Frog. "Who says he hasn't any home? I didn't say it."

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre.

Tent Buddy Rogers realls is "America's Boy Friend," is amply attested by the capacity throngs of delighted patrons of both sexes and all ages that flocked to the cool Broadway the past two days for the opening of Buddy's newest musicoromance, "Safety in Numbers," which will continue through today and tomorrow as well. Buddy is cast as the soon-to-be heir to a mere $25,000,000, who is sent by his wise guardian to New York with a few thousands of loose change to acquire an education in the ways of the world at the hands of four ladies, "old friends," of the uncle, who to Buddy's amazement turn out to be four Zeigfeld's fairest follies, with a luxurious penthouse apartment where the young heir is to live for his period of tutoring. Hectic!—no end!—for the chaperone is a hefty colored maid with a romantic complex and a penchant for "steppin' to music," the "teachers" are not hard to look at, being Kathryn Crawford, Josephine Dunn, Carol Lombard and Geneva Mitchell, and the lad's first lessons are in a proper appreciation of exceedingly flimy lingerie. The short features are equally joyous and with the complement of the latest Paramount sound news, furnish ideal midsummer entertainment. The management announces with pride the attraction to follow on Wednesday as that thrilling sensation, "Shadow of the Law," with William Powell in the finest role of his varied career, as the young society man, the innocent victim of a murder conviction, based on blind circumstantial evidence, his subsequent break from prison and the terrific aftermath of his escape!

St. Mary's School

For St. Mary's school the commencement exercises took place at 10:30 during the high mass offered at that hour by Rev. Arthur B. Sullivan, principal of the school and curate of the parish. The graduates were seated together and were accompanied by their teachers, the Sisters of the parish convent. At the 7:30 mass, which was offered by Msgr. Patrick J. McCormick of Washington, D. C., the graduates received the sacraments in a body.

The programme was as follows: Processional, organ, Pitcher; Magnificat, Gregorian, graduates; chorus, O Sacrum Convivium, Remondi, graduates; Veni Creator Spiritus, Gregorian, graduates; address, Rev. Arthur B. Sullivan; act of Consecration to the Sacred Heart, graduating class; benediction of the blessed sacrament; recessional, Festival March in C, Kohlmann, organ.

Rev. George J. Donahue, the pastor, delivered the sermon to the graduates and spoke in part as follows:

This graduation accentuates the attitude of the Catholic church towards education on the things of the mind. Her little way is not a theory nor a fad but a conviction for which she has paid a great price. The church is not averse to any kind of legitimate and clean knowledge or culture but she does rightly insist that schools innocent of God are obviously god-less. Young America daily learns a great deal about human emotions and passions, about animals and creeping things, about the crust of the earth and the depth of the sea, but not a word about God who created all these things and made us all. It suggests the saying of Harvey Wickham anent so-called American philosophers—"They Teach Psychology without Mr. Mind!" Catholic schools pursue topics followed elsewhere but in their curriculum they include a knowledge of God who still happens to be the Alpha and Omega of all true knowledge and all real culture.

SCOUTS HAVE CAMERA HIKE AND BEACH OUTING

Friday afternoon 12 Scouts of Troop 1 went on a camera hike to the bridge over Poquetanuck cove. Jean Kiefer, troop committeeman, instructed the boys on taking pictures, and also showed them his cameras. Most of the fellows went in swimming and Jean continued taking many pictures, one of which showed the junior assistant jumping off the bridge. A hasty supper was had and Jean, with the help of a passing motorist took the fellows back to the city and treated them to the circus.

On Saturday afternoon 25 Scouts went by cars to Hammonasset beach, near Guilford, for their annual outing, the cars arriving there about 2 o'clock. Scoutmaster Arthur L. Peale showed the boys the beach and buildings which belong to the state park. Sides were chosen and a five inning game of baseball was played. The score was 4-3 and in spite of the fact that the two rival pitchers struck out 13 men apiece, seven runs were scored by both sides on errors. Immediately nearly everyone went in swimming for about two hours. A game of football on both land and water, with a round of beachball, provided the most amusement of the day. About six o'clock the boys responded to the call for eats, and a fine supper was served cafeteria style in the large pavilion. The return was made, the cars arriving in the city about 9 p. m. The troop is greatly indebted to the people who willingly volunteered their cars and time to make the outing a success, who were, Louis M. Crandall, Amos Wheeler, Joseph Smith, E. L. Duff, John H. Sherman and John Dodge.

REUNION WEEK OPENS WITH FLAG DAY EXERCISES AND ASSEMBLY AT ARMORY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, June 15.—Community Reunion week, in which former Willimantic residents return to the scenes of childhood and former days, opened this afternoon at Elks park on Pleasant street, where impressive Flag day exercises were held. The exercises were conducted by Willimantic lodge, No. 1311, George J. Hickey, exalted ruler. While the exercises are held every year, today especial courtesies were extended to the "old timers" who returned to the old town. The Elks held open house and many of the former residents, who returned after many years in other parts of the state and country, visited the new Elks home and congratulated the lodge on its fine building.

A more beautiful setting for the Flag day exercises would have been hard to find than the park with its handsome grove of trees in which was the flag-draped platform where the exercises were carried out. The platform was decorated with the American flags, the banners and emblems of the lodge and ferns and palms. About the platform in the cool shade of the trees were seated the guests of the lodge. Wheeler's band, C. N. Wheeler leader, which assisted in the exercises, was seated in front of the platform.

As the band played a march the officers and members of the lodge, led by the standard bearer carrying the American flag, and followed by nine young women carrying other flags used in the exercises, marched from the home to the platform in the park.

LIEUT. GOV. ERNEST E. ROGERS
Principal Speaker

The exercises were opened by Exalted Ruler Hickey, who spoke briefly on the significance of the Flag day observance and also extended a hearty welcome to the visiting "old timers," expressing the hope that their stay among old friends would be extremely enjoyable.

Perhaps the most impressive part of the entire program was the history of the flag, given by Frank P. Fenton. In this history of the flag he was assisted by the nine young women who carried the flags of the various periods of our country's history. Starting with the Red Cross of England, Mr. Fenton reviewed the story of the flag. Following the Red Cross of England our ancestors paid homage to the Union of the King's Colors, then the flag of the crimson field. After this the colonists adopted the Pine Tree flag until the snake flag became the standard of the struggling colonists. A colonial flag with the stars and bars supplanted the snake flag and then there were rapid changes until the Betsey Ross flag was adopted. He told of the first recognition of the American flag by other nations, and the final adoption of the flag with the 48 stars on a field of blue and the 13 alternate red and white stripes. The young women who participated in the exercises were Mrs. Ruth Blackburn, Mrs. Alice Brehant, Mrs. Bernard W. Larkin, Miss Florence Williams, Miss Corrine Picknell, Mrs. Harriet Ladd, Miss Elenor Hall, Mrs. Blanche Montigney and Miss Betty Hallock.

Another impressive feature of the exercises was the raising of the flag, the gift of Mary Lincoln Todd tent, D. of V., to the lodge. This part of the ceremony was carried out by two veterans of the Civil war, James Haggerty, past state department commander of the G. A. R., and George Herrick, the oldest veteran in the state. Mr. Herrick is 96 years old and is very vigorous, and took keen enjoyment in his participation in the exercises. As the flag was hoisted aloft by the veterans the band played the Star Spangled Banner.

The Response to the Flag was given by James Haggerty. The arranging of the altar was performed by Past Exalted Ruler James McGlone and the officers of the lodge.

The flag day orator was Lieut. Gov. Ernest E. Rogers of New London, who delivered an eloquent address on the meaning of the flag. In his address, Mr. Rogers dwelt upon the patriotism and loyalty of the American citizen to the flag, something that has made it one of the most respected on land and sea. No one, said Mr. Rogers, can point out where the flag of this great country has ever been dishonored or held up to shame. He spoke of Gen. Israel Putnam, as one of the outstanding patriots to answer the call to the defense of this country. He said Windham county should be proud of the heritage of this fearless man. In speaking of the flag, Mr. Rogers said that many had tried to belittle the flag but even at that he had no fear of the immigrant in this country. He said he rather welcomed them, as they brought new ideas which had proved valuable in the development of the land. With compulsory education the children of the foreign-born learn the traditions of the flag and soon come to accept them as their own. In closing, Mr. Rogers touched on the many incidents of historical note where defenders of the honor of the flag had made immortal history.

Mr. Rogers' address was exceptionally fine and was thoroughly appreciated by the gathering. The exercises were closed by Exalted Ruler Hickey, after which the old timers gathered at the armory for the first assembly of reunion week.

Besides the Elks, the patriotic organizations participating in the exercises were Anne Wood Elderkin chapter, D. A. R., represented by Mrs. Adele Howie, regent; Woman's Relief corps, No. 38, represented by Mrs. Helen French, state patriotic instructor, and Mrs. Alice Easterbrook; Mary Todd Lincoln tent, No. 15, Daughters of Union Veterans, represented by Mrs. Amy Anderson, president, and Mrs. Minnie Mathieu, past department president.

OVER 1000 ATTENDED REUNION ASSEMBLY MEETING

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, June 15.— United in a common friendship a cosmopolitan crowd of over 1,000 people gathered at the state armory on Pleasant street tonight for the mass meeting marking the second official function of Community Reunion week, which opened here this afternoon with the Elks Flag day exercises. A diversified programme, devised to make the meeting one of mutual interest to all denominations in the community, was carried out under the chairmanship of Justice George E Hinman.

From 7 to 7:30 o'clock an excellent programme was given by the Italian Citizens band directed by Professor P. Puca of Norwich. This was followed by an overture by the Windham high school orchestra under the direction of Miss Elizabeth F. Hunt of the faculty. An assembly song, Battle Hymn of the Republic, was then sung under leadership of Ralph H. Gibson.

This was followed by a solo, The Lord is My Light, (Allitsen), by Maurice Wallen, famous Hartford vocalist and son of Mr. and Mrs. Kirk Wallen of this city. Mr. Wallen, who is a native of Willimantic, answered to a round of applause with an encore. The Blind Ploughman, (Clarke).

Rabbi Morrise Silverman of Hartford was then introduced. Rabbi Silverman chose for his general theme A Broader View of Religion, in which he made an inspiring plea for the unity of human kind through a promotion of tolerance. He said that uniformity was what was wanted as a kindly feeling toward our neighbor's point of view in religious or political beliefs. Religion, he said, is something that all people need and it should in every way play an important part in our daily lives. Religion should be made to enervate and inspire us in our conduct. It should be the foundation of politics and the guiding hand in the advancement of science, art, literature and music. "This is the age," said Rabbi Silverman, "when the first real attempt is being made toward genuine tolerance and it is our opportunity to grasp this spirit and make of this a better world to live and work in."

There followed a beautiful Negro spiritual, The Golden Slipper, by the Calvary Baptist church quartet, comprising Albert Harris, Pierce Harris, Mrs. Pierce Harris and J. H. Peters. The rendition was most heartily accepted by the audience and the quartet later favored with an encore.

At this point Rev. Felix J. O'Neill, member of one of the old Willimantic families, native of this city and now pastor at Stafford Springs, delivered his entrancing poem, written during the past week especially for this occasion and appropriately entitled "Back Home". The poem follows:

Back Home

—By Rev. Felix J. O'Neill of Stafford, native of Willimantic
(Copyrighted, 1930)

Today I saw a sight to charm the eye.
It won the gaze of all who passed it by.
One snow-white cot on a little lake of blue,
One cloud, one slanting sail, one red canoe,
In the hills of Green.
Bright roses climbed the wide veranda door.
The vines wove tapestries from eaves to floor,
With ferns and flowers, great oak and maple shade
It seemed that never God or man had made
More fair a scene.

Two faces, framed with vines and snowy hair,
Were tilting back and forth in rocking chair.
They laughed at children tumbling on the lawn
With household pets, a dog a lamb, a fawn,
In mirthful play.
Near them a barefoot boy, with rod and reel,
Was luring speckled trout for evening meal
From brook that rushed down mossy steps of green
While cowbells tinkled music for the scene
At close of day.

Why should this happy home so give me thrills
When others full as fair, adorned the hills?
Had I not seen sweet roses bloom before
And faces framed with vines in flowery door
With sun flecked shade?
Had I not seen the lake, a cloud, a sail, a boy's canoe,
In just as fair a vale?
Ah! yes. But through this window o'er the way
My infant eyes first saw the light of day
Which God had made.

How sweet is Home. It starts a thrill
The hearth on city street or woodland hill.
How blest while all its members yet remain—
No missing link in prayer or supper chain
At evening gloam.
When mother's plates are set—no vacant place,
When father's log-fire glow gilds every face.—
While lips are left to kiss, and knees to climb,
No other word in any tongue or time
Can rime with Home.

"We have no lasting dwelling here below",
God's Holy Book has told his children so.
Our Father lends His child one tiny plot.
He tills the soil and builds its homely cot—
For just a day.
His rose vine blooms; his acorns spreads a leaf.
Scarce is his corn in shock, his wheat in sheaf,
When Father's voice floats from the sunset rim
And calls the child that first came out from Him Back Home—To stay.

Under the leadership of Mr. Gibson, the assembly arose to sing the hymn, Onward Christian Soldiers. The main and closing address was by one of Windham's most beloved former residents, Rev. Harry S. McCready, former pastor of the First Congregational church, now of Kingston, R. I. In his characteristic oratory, Rev. Mr. McCready kindled the hearts of his audience to new hopes in his theme, Kindliness Is The Way to Brotherhood. Kindliness, he said, is the essence to democracy and it is a dynamic factor toward tolerance. Mr. McCready warned against the use of words as well as actions in unkindly ways, launching a typical McCready attack against the word "type."

"Here is a word," he said, "that when used to designate a particular brand of humanity freezes the springs of sympathy." During his address Mr. McCready took occasion to pay tribute to two deceased Windham men, the late Principal James L. Harroun of Natchaug school, and the late Rev. John Clark, pastor of St. Joseph's church.

He was given an ovation at the conclusion of his talk and made the recipient of hundreds of invitations to Windham homes. Announcements of forthcoming events during the week were made by Chairman Hinman and Allen B. Lincoln, vice chairman of the reunion committee. Among these announcements were that the reception to the women would be held at the Elks home Tuesday afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock. This event is in charge of Mrs. John Reilly. The industrial exhibit by Windham manufacturers will open at Elks park Tuesday afternoon and close Thursday night.

The committee in charge of tonight's mass meeting consisted of John F. Carr, chairman; Albert B. Smith, vice chairman; Albert V. Caufield, William S. Johnston, P. J. Laramee, Walter Parkhurst.

RETURNING OLD RESIDENTS ATTEND CHURCH SERVICES

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, June 15.—Windham put out the latchstring today with an open welcome to all former residents, pupils and teachers of her schools and others having an interest in the town, to return for a week of reunion and acquaintanceship.

While the week's celebration did not formally open until afternoon, note of its significance was made in the sermons at several of the churches this morning.

At the First Congregational church, Rev. William S. Beard, secretary of the Laymen's Advisory committee, New York city, returned to the pulpit which he occupied as pastor during Old Home week 15 years ago. The subject of his sermon today was, Some People Who Have Never Died. The morning worship was in the nature of a special dedication in recognition to the legacies given by Miss Emelene

REV. WILLIAM S. BEARD
Former Congregational Pastor

A. Dunn and Mrs. James P. Bath. Assisting Rev. Mr. Beard were the pastor, Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock, Samuel Chesbro, H. Clinton Lathrop and Charles W. Hill.

A very interesting program was carried out during the morning worship at the First Methodist Episcopal church for the benefit of community home-coming visitors and local residents, Rev. Wilfred D. Hamilton, the pastor, preached a short sermon on The Sermon of a Rose. In celebration of Children's day, several of the children took part in the program. Recognition of the week was also made at the Baptist and St. Paul's Episcopal churches.

BROTHER AND SISTER ARE UNITED AFTER 52 YEARS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, June 15.—Probably the champion of reunions to take place during Community Reunion week in Windham was that of John Peterson, 72, of 8 Jackson street, who Saturday was reunited with his sister, Mrs. Annie Peterson Anderson, 68, of Medicine Hat, Alberta, Canada, whom he had not seen in 52 years. Mrs. Anderson came east from Cleveland where she and her husband had been visiting their son. She and her brother had last seen each other in their native town of Borlz, Sweden. Mr. Peterson has been a resident of this city for over 40 years, being employed at the American Thread Co. practically all of that time up to some three years ago.

Eugene E. Hickey assisted the visiting sister in locating her brother.

IMPROVEMENTS ON NATCHAUG ST. ARE SAFEGUARD TO PUBLIC

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, June 15.—Following an example set by former First Selectman James M. Smith, creditable improvements which act as a public safeguard as well as a beautification, have been carried out on Natchaug street, from Ash street to the Natchaug bridge. Probably the most important phase of this work was the rounding out of the curve at Ash and Natchaug intersection, where many accidents took place in the past. Mr. Smith, who resides opposite the intersection, deeded to the town of Windham, without charge, land 90 feet in length on Ash street and the same distance on Natchaug, so that it was possible to cut down the curve and eliminate a traffic hazard. The curve is on the main route out of this city to Providence. Mr. Smith then tore down an old wooden rail fence at the corner and replaced it with a cemented stone wall, 150 feet long and four feet high. Another stone wall was built in front of the Smith residence and these are kept whitewashed. Other owners, including John Dazy and E. Pearl Howlett, have fallen in line with this improvement program and the total result is most pleasing.

Mansfield Graduations

The closing exercises of the Mansfield schools were held in Hawley armory, Storrs, Saturday evening with a large attendance. The pupils of the Storrs, Wormwood Hill, Mansfield Hollow and Mansfield Depot schools took part in an interesting program. William F. Kirkpatrick, secretary of the town school committee, presented diplomas to 29 graduates, as follows: Lloyd Beebe, Donald Brown, Agnes Brundza, Theodore Dakin, Genoff Dinenno, Harry Dinenno, Amherst Eaton, Ellsworth Gergler, Leslie Harlow, Eleanor Hopkins, Sherwood Johnston, Stanley Kasper, Harold Korner, Helen Newton, Russell Palmer, Evan Parker, Joseph Rada, Blanche Jybic, Henry Steinmeyer, William Thompson, Caroline Atwood, Anthony Douda, John Dzwonczyk, Justine Hawkins, Berger Ottosen, Emil Piechta, Alex Seplowitz, Fanny Seplowitz and Marjorie Storrs. Invocation was asked by Rev. T. Hawthorne Jones.

Although he has previously admitted to County Detective Rowe H. Wheeler that he had manufactured liquor up to recently, George A. O'Leary, owner of the old Griffin place in the Warner district of Windham, pleaded not guilty to a charge on that count in police court Saturday morning. His previous admission and the fact that six barrels of mash were found in a raid on his farm Friday evening, convicted the man, however, and Deputy Judge Russell A. Andrews imposed a fine of $200 and costs.

Miss Mae Curran, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick J. Curran of 12 Ann street, was tendered a miscellaneous shower at her home Friday night in honor of her approaching marriage to William L. Forand of Webster, Mass. The bride-elect received many gifts. Entertainment was provided by Mrs. Florence Shearer and Miss Lillian Segar, vocalists. Present were: Mrs. Florence Shearer, Mrs. Florence Woodworth, Mrs. D. F. Curran, Mrs. Eleanor Bousa, Mrs. Anthony Woods, Mrs. Ida Mazzola, Mrs. George Thompson, Mrs. Walter F. Palmer, Mrs. Michael P. With less than one-half the quota realized, the annual Salvation Army campaign has been declared closed. While the quota was fixed at $3,000, the sum received in canvassing and a tag day amounted to $1,329.74. A statement from the officers expresses gratitude for the amount received in view of present conditions and lack of employment.

Sylvester Steward, 22, colored employe of a circus which played here Saturday, was arrested Saturday on a charge of theft of a coat belonging to Ernest Dion of 61 Mountain street. Dion parked on Natchaug street, near the river, where a group of circus employes were bathing in the Natchaug river. When he returned to the car his coat was gone. In the pockets were insurance papers, car registration and other articles valuable to the owner. Later, Dion saw the colored man wearing the coat and caused his arrest. Steward said that his present residence is Paterson, N. J.

Prospects are good for a bumper crop at the county jail farm in Brooklyn, according to Sheriff Charles A. Gates. Under supervision of Assistant Jailer Walter Tripp, 20 acres of land were cultivated and hay will be cut from 50 acres.

The graduating class of Natchaug grammar school will hold an outing at Lake Pocotopaug, East Hampton, Monday, making the trip in two New England Transportation company buses. The party will be in charge of Principal Harry K. Viner, Miss Hattie Jacobs and Miss Lillian Hochberg of the faculty, and several parents.

Upon returning from a trip to Springfield, Mass., Saturday evening to their home at 371 Prospect street, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Ahern found that entrance had been made into the house and the place ransacked. The police were notified and Officer F. Rudolph Laramie detailed to investigate. It was found that the burglars had entered through a rear door, apparently with the aid of a key. A cursory check failed to disclose anything of value missing.

At this affair there will be an informal program of music and dancing. Committees from the Rotary, Exchange and Lions clubs are cooperating as a reception committee for the evening.

GILBERT D. LAMB MAKES GIFT OF $1,000 TO WELCH FUND OF OLD NATCHAUGERS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, June 15.—A gift of $1,000 to the John B. Welch fund of the Old Natchaugers has been received from Gilbert D. Lamb of New York city and Franklin, Conn., it was announced over the week-end by the committee for Community Reunion week, which opened today.

This excellent gift is the second to be made by Mr. Lamb, who presented the fund with a donation of $500, 25 years ago. The recent donation of $1,000 has been turned over to William P. Jordan, trustee of the fund, and swells the principal to $2,600. The interest on this amount is to be used in various ways for the promotion of excellency in high school studies, according to the policy of the fund.

Mr. Lamb was graduated from the Natchaug high school in the class of 1875. He graduated from Yale in '79 and became a successful lawyer in New York city. The old Lamb homestead in Franklin, from which six children came to Windham to attend high school, has been developed into a comfortable summer residence by Attorney Lamb. The donor of the valued gift to the fund will be present at the Old School banquet to be held next Friday evening.

With his check, Mr. Lamb sends the following letter:

"To the Trustees or Custodian of The John B. Welch Fund:

"I beg to hand you herewith my check for $1,000 for addition to the fund set up many years ago and named in honor of the late John B. Welch, former principal of the Natchaug high school.

"This donation is made in expression of my appreciation of the service of an inspiring teacher and the fact that the lapse of more than 50 years has not dimmed the memory of a man to whom I owe a permanent debt of gratitude for his encouragement and stimulating example.

"I trust that others may honor themselves by contributing to the fund referred to, in anticipation of the old school celebration of June 20—thus keeping before us the name of a great teacher to whom many of us feel we are indebted, the best of all by our actions making ourselves actual parties to service to the community.

On the occasion of the dedication of a statue of George Peabody, the philanthropist, Morley, the historian, as a reminder that the gift was a particularly safe investment, made this quotation for an epitaph:

"'What I spent I had. What I kept I got. What I gave I have still.'"

"This sentiment is well worthy of our consideration.

"Cordially yours,
"GILBERT D. LAMB."

DEATH OF MRS. J. H. ADAMS, AGED 89

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STAFFORD SPRINGS, June 15.—Mrs. Jennie H. Adams, 89, widow of the late Anthony Adams, died at her home on Westford avenue, Friday night, following a brief illness. She was a daughter of the late Francis and Anna (Daniels) Wardwell and was born in Monson, Mass. She has been a resident of Stafford for the past 62 years. She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Wilhelmena Leach. Mrs. Leach was in Denver, Colo., when her mother was taken ill and she made a hurried trip to Stafford Springs after receiving notice of her illness, and upon her arrival Saturday morning found that her mother had already died. Mrs. Adams was a quiet, unassuming woman and had many friends in Stafford Springs. Her husband, Anthony Adams, was for several years first selectman of Stafford, and was a veteran of the Civil war.

Funeral services for Jacob J. Hunziker, who died at his home in West Stafford Thursday, were held at the home Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock. Rev. Harris C. Beebe, pastor of the West Stafford Congregational church, officiated at the services and burial was in the West Stafford cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. John Rishton have returned to their home in Staffordville, after spending several months with Mr. and Mrs. Harold Tallman at their home in Burnside.

Mrs. Ruth Gary, who was operated on at a Springfield, Mass., hospital several days ago, has returned to her home in Stafford.

Graduation Exercises

The graduation exercises of the public schools of the town of Union were held in the Congregational church in Union, Friday evening at 7:30, when diplomas were awarded to three graduates, two from Rock Meadow and one from the Red school. Ruth Elizabeth Agard and Lester Clifford Agard were graduates of the Rock Meadow and Lucy Winifred Moore of the Red school. An interesting program arranged by the teachers, Miss Mary Daley and Miss Helen J. Hutchins, under the direction of Supervising Agent Calvin Stanley, was carried out. Miss Charlotte K. Beckwith, who is supervisor of music in the public schools of Stafford, devotes a portion of each week to teaching music in the Union schools. That her work in the Union schools has borne fruit was evidenced by the singing of the pupils at the graduation exercises. The diplomas were presented by Albert M. Heck, chairman of the town school committee. Rev. William Bragg gave the invocation and also pronounced benediction. Atty. Robert H. Fisk, who was on the program for an address, was obliged to be out of town, and Judge M. D. O'Connell, of Stafford Springs, was called in at the 11th hour and gave a brief talk to the graduates.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Fisk are attending the commencement exercises at Wellesley college, where their daughter, Miss Dorothy Fisk, is a graduate.

In a sea captain it's Vigilance

in a cigarette it's Taste

ETERNAL VIGILANCE — taking nothing for granted... leaving nothing undone—that's the mandate of the sea. Exacting laboratory research, rigid production standards .... endless care — that's Chesterfield's watchword.

MILD, AROMATIC TOBACCOS, patiently aged, are the basis of Chesterfield's wholesome goodness. Chesterfield's blend and cross-blend retains and rounds out their appetizing spice and flavor.

CHANCE PLAYS NO PART in keeping them true to their course — the safe, satisfying course of ... "TASTE above everything".

We state it as our honest belief that the tobaccos used in Chesterfield cigarettes are of finer quality and hence of better taste than in any other cigarette at the price.

REPORTS FROM BUSINESS AND TRADE LAST WEEK SOMEWHAT DISAPPOINTING

NEW YORK, June 15.—(AP) — Reports from business and trade during the past week were on the whole disappointing, but the knowledge that the current recession has now very nearly completed the average cycle of the recessions of the past 30 years, was widely regarded as reassuring.

Industrial activity slackened further, and further weakness of commodity prices appeared. Wall street turned pessimistic and the stock market went into a protracted decline, more than 150 issues reaching new low prices for the year.

Passage of the tariff measure by the senate late in the week apparently removed one point of uncertainty over which manufacturers have been complaining for some time, but sentiment as to the effects of the tariff upon business was decidedly mixed.

Several dividend reductions or omissions, largely by minor companies, were announced, but it was pointed out that dividends, on the whole, reflect past business rather than future, and are usually curtailed toward the end of a recession, while they reach top levels often after a recession has definitely started.

Unsettlement of commodity prices remained one of the chief obstacles to recovery, and was in part in sympathy with the stock market.

Another displeasing development was renewed weakness in copper. Copper metal prices were cut from 13 to 12 cents a pound by some smelters, although some of the larger producers failed to follow this drop all the way down.

Steel production dropped from 72 per cent of capacity during the previous week to 69 per cent.

Automobile production continued the seasonal lag, although fairly active schedules through June are anticipated. Furniture, hosiery, cotton goods, carpet and lumber manufacturing were other industries to show further quiet. Freight car loading figures for the latest week were disturbed by the Memorial Day holiday, but held at the low level for that period for recent years.

NEW LONDON POLICE HOLD DOZEN BOYS ON THEFT CHARGES

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, June 15—Twelve boys were arrested Saturday by Detective Sergeant John Cavanaugh charged with theft. They will be given a hearing in the juvenile court next week. In the meantime the boys are in the custody of the probation officer. The boys were arrested when Leon Hamilton, Groton, made complaint to the police that his boat, which is moored in Winthrop's cove, had been stripped of about everything that could be removed. Sergeant Cavanaugh's investigation resulted in his finding two or three boys, who admitted taking a part of the loot and they implicated the other boys.

J. P. T. Armstrong has sold his former residence, 26 Hillside road, to Mrs. Robert B. Chappell. Mr. Armstrong recently purchased the Chester Bliss house, Pequot avenue.

Mrs. Rose W. Joseph, 49, widow of Eugene Joseph, died Saturday at her former residence, 88 Bank street. Besides her husband, Mrs. Joseph is survived by two sisters.

Mrs. Jesse Crouch and infant son, Groton, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were discharged Saturday.

Irving Rankin, 31, formerly of New London, now residing at 58 Palmer avenue, Norwich, was arrested Friday night by the Norwich police on a charge of being a fugitive from justice for the New London police hold a warrant charging him with non-support of his wife, Sallie, who is employed by the Sheffield Dentifrice Co. When Rankin was presented in the Norwich city court Saturday, the charge was nolled and Detective Sergeant John Cavanaugh took Rankin into custody again and brought him to New London. Rankin's father qualified as surety on his son's bond of $500 for his presentation in the police court Monday. Rankin, it is claimed, deserted his wife in February, 1929 and since that time and until recently had absented himself from Norwich. Rankin, who is a file worker, returned to Norwich a few days ago.

Discharged From Hospital

Mrs. Leander Noel, Thames street, Groton; Miss Catherine Ealahan, 29 Ocean avenue; Edward Dalo, Buell street, Groton; Joseph Salega, Waterford; Mrs. Henry Merry, Hadlyme; William Moore, Jr., 267 Montauk avenue; James Robbins, yacht Cynthia; Marcello Canestrarie, 15 Willetts avenue; Mrs. William Beadle and infant daughter, 130 Hempstead street; Mrs. John Myshka and infant son, 172 Crystal avenue; Jacob Pahlberg, 30 Spring street; Mrs. Harry Graves and infant daughter, 494 Jefferson avenue; Franklin Blake, Stonington; Herbert Niate, Block Island and Nicholas Volte, Thames street, Groton, patients at Lawrence-Memorial associated hospital, were discharged Saturday.

A mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Michael Reagan. The bearers were Frank Quinn, Harold Alger, Frank Kennedy, Michael Flangan, Harold Quinn and George Alger. Daniel Devine was flower bearer. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel Saturday ordered the suspension of the driver's license of Max Hillsberg, 205 Shaw street.

George Reynolds, United States Coast Guard, state pier, was presented in the police court Saturday charged with violation of the state motor vehicle law in driving a motorcycle without a license. He was fined $10 and costs. Reynolds was arrested Friday by Patrolman Ernest Opperman.

James W. Foster, 28 Hill street, was charged with violation of the motor vehicle law in failing to stop at an automatic danger signal, corner of Bank and Howard streets. He was given suspension of judgment. Foster was arrested last Friday night by State Police Officer Donald Brown.

Elwood T. Carroll, West Hartford and J. R. Trainer, Bloomfield, N. J., were charged with parking overtime and as neither driver presented himself in court the $2 bonds were called.

Three cases of intoxication comprised the remainder of cases presented. One man was fined $10 and costs and another was penalized $5 and costs. The third man was given suspension of judgment.

SHIRT SALESMAN IN COURT FOR THEFT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, June 15—Edward Palmer, itinerant shirt salesman, was arrested by Detective Sergeant John Cavanaugh Saturday charged with theft, but upon his promise to make restitution, Prosecuting Attorney Max Boyer ordered Palmer discharged and also advised the man to leave the city. Palmer, who was formerly employed by a shirt making company in Boston, solicited orders and upon receiving payment for the shirts failed to deliver the apparel. When two of the men giving Palmer orders did not receive the apparel after a wait of several weeks, complaint was made to the police.

Andrew Pedro, 19 1-2 Mitchell court, was arrested Saturday night by Patrolman George Bruhns charged with breach of the peace and was locked up at police headquarters. He will be given a hearing Monday. Pedro went to the home of his sister-in-law, who resides at 619 Bank street, earlier in the night and there it is said the man and woman engaged in a heated quarrel. Pedro, it is claimed, lost his temper and attacked and beat the woman. When the latter made complaint to the police, officers were sent to the Bank street house, but Pedro had vanished. Several hours later, Officer Bruhns found him.

In default of a surety on his bond of $100, Peterson was locked up and will be presented in the police court Monday. State Police Officer John Smith happened along and observing the erratic driving of Peterson, ordered the drive to stop.

Lieut. George Paille, of the U. S. S. Ogalala, at anchor in the harbor, informed the police today that members of the crew of the boat had found a boat drifting in the river and that the boat had been moored to the navy craft where the owner can recover his property by making claim to it.

Following the reception of numerous complaints alleging that a disorderly house existed at 11 Pearl street, the police raided the building, which is the residence of Alice Marks, colored, last night, the raiding force descending upon the house at 11:30 o'clock. The raiding force comprised Sergeant John Courtney, Automobile Patrol Officer Clarence Martin and Patrolmen Michael Dorsey, Clarence Wells, Braxton Hill and George Cockell. A search of the house revealed a hiding place, which contained four one-gallon containers filled with gin of the home-made variety. The Marks woman, who has been arrested eight times for various offenses, was charged with violation of the liquor law on two counts, keeping with intent to sell and possession. She will be presented in the police court Monday. A woman, Mabel Cooper, colored, 23, married, of Hartford, George Wesley, George Cross and Harry Borland, all colored, were in the house and they were arrested charged with frequenting a disorderly house. They furnished surety on their respective bonds of $50 and will also be presented in court tomorrow.

Flag day was appropriately observed at the submarine base Saturday when Governor John H. Trumbull and staff reviewed the 1300 officers and men comprising the greater part of the navy contact force, the uniformed men passing in review on the athletic field. In the governor's party, besides his staff, were Mrs. Trumbull, Lieut. Gov. and Mrs. Ernest E. Rogers and Rear Admiral T. C. Hart, commander of the control force and his staff. Following the review Gov. and Mrs. Trumbull and guests were luncheon guests of Capt. Wilson Brown, commander of the submarine base. At the governor and his staff passed the U. S. S. Camden on their way to the base, a salute of 17 guns was fired.

Thomas E. Nelson and wife, residing at 79 Garfield avenue, the former a sailor stationed at the submarine base, were arrested tonight when they staged a fight in their home. Nelson is charged with breach of the peace and his wife is charged with breach of the peace and intoxication. Nelson was given into the custody of a lieutenant in charge of the shore patrol and will be presented in the police cuort Monday. Mrs. Nelson was locked up and she, also, will be presented in court tomorrow.

The fight started about 8 o'clock and when Nelson and his wife, it is said, engaged in a battle. During the alleged fight a telephone call to police headquarters caused Detective Sergeant John Cavanaugh and Automobile Patrol Officer Clarence Martin to be sent to the house. Arriving there a large crowd of men and women had assembled in the street. When the officers entered the house A Ford touring car owned by Emil Wyeler, eLdyard, was stolen in that town last night and the state police and New London police have been requested to be on the lookout for it. The auto carries Connecticut registration, N—3658.

Sloop Yankee, one of the prospective cup defenders, put into the lower harbor late this afternoon and remained here about two hours, then proceeded eastward.

The city's latest traffic ordinance was put into operation today. There are many changes in the parking laws, principally the prohibiting of parking on certain streets and the prohibiting of parking on the municipal pier longer than 30 minutes.

Leo Khtikian, 104 St. James circle, Springfield, Mass., was arrested at Ocean Beach this afternoon, charged with violation of the city ordinance which prohibits the use of an automobile as a bathhouse. Khtikian was detected disrobing in the car by Patrolman Albert Iverson. The visitor furnished a cash bond to assure his presentation in the police court tomorrow.

Several automobile drivers were arrested today charged with parking their cars overtime. The drivers are: Thomas F. McGee, 108 Golden street; Ralph D. Harling, East Lyme; Earl Johnson, Montville; James H. Webster, Walker Hill, Groton; William Schramm, Groton; William J... kowski, 23 Hill street, Norwich; ... Esposito, 5 Pond street, and ... K. Wives Of Candidates Win Votes For Them Over Social Tea Table

WASHINGTON, June 15—(AP)—Winning votes for their husbands by teable tactics is the modern campaign method employed by two prominent women—Mrs. James J. Davis and Mrs. Gifford Pinchot.

Mrs. Davis, blonde and attractive wife of the secretary of labor, undoubtedly turned many feminine votes toward her husband's nomination for senator from Pennsylvania by her gracious manner of presiding over a tea table.

When visiting delegations of women from the Keystone state came to Washington the past winter and spring they were invited to the Davis home.

They were introduced to the five little Davises. They were given tea and cake and sandwiches to the accompaniment of pleasant smiles and remarks. Mrs. Davis is very popular in Washington.

She is always ready to "fill in," to give last-minute aid when a cake needs to be cut or punch to be served.

Many a time she has saved the day for flurried, anxious groups of women when the crowd began to arrive all at once and somebody who was to preside at the tea table failed to appear.

Mrs. Pinchot, red-haired, vivacious, has chosen the motion pictures to show what a genial, comradely chap her husband-candidate for governor of Pennsylvania can be.

She toured that state showing motion pictures which she made herself of the Pinchot family adventuring in the South Seas.

Even the most hide-bound voter couldn't help a friendly feeling for the smiling man in the old straw hat who wades into the surf to pick up a crab or a turtle.

USE OF WOMEN AS POLICE GROWS THROUGH WORLD

GENEVA, June 15—(AP)—The use of women as police is growing throughout the world, according to reports received by the league of nations.

In some countries the policewoman is placed on exactly the same footing as the policemen and is a part of the same force. In other countries her status rather resembles that of a social worker.

The policewoman has been found to be especially valuable in discouraging traffic in women and children.

In London the number of women police has recently been increased from 19 to 100, while the importance of their work has been recognized by the appointment of a woman police officer as adviser at Scotland Yard.

Women police were introduced in Spain at the beginning of the international exposition at Barcelona. There are now 40 policewomen in Poland.

Starched Pajamas.

PARIS, June 15—(AP)—New things for the beach-girl, just issued in midseason dressmaking collections, include stiffly starched pajamas of white cotton piqué and linen.

A new washable cotton material, reminiscent of old-style ratine is a favorite for beach pajamas.

One Lido lounge costume combines loose ratine pajamas striped with tobacco brown with a tomato red tuck-in vest and a darker brown three-quarter coat striped with tomato red.

CAPITAL SOCIETY WOMEN DEVISE NOVEL COIFFURES

WASHINGTON, June 15—(AP)—With half the women and girls transformed into potential "little Evas" with their locks curling round their shoulders, Washington is witnessing more original coiffures this season than it has seen in years.

The 1930 miss is trying to forsake the "bob."

She employs every conceivable style of hair dress to care for the "tag ends" and stray locks.

Some part their hair in the middle from forehead to neck, then twist the ends on each side into little knobs over the ears. Some confine the ends with fancy combs at the nape of the neck.

If the hair is long enough, the fortunate possessors pin it in a simple knot. Impatient souls just rush to the barber and go back to the comfort of the bob once more.

At any evening affair the honors are almost evenly divided between the bobs and the "little Evas." The bobs generally are more simply gowned, while the half-length locks seem to call for trailing necklaces and dangling ear-rings.

SUITS OF HANDKERCHIEFS LINEN FOR HOT DAYS

Handkerchief linen, cool and crushable, is milady's favorite summer fabric.

It is the Paris choice for midsummer sports styles and informal tub ensembles for wear at beach resorts.

Handkerchief linen, suits, worn with straw hats of minimus weight, have blouses and matching scarves of sheerest cotton voile.

Shoe makers have brought out lightweight kids to accompany hot-weather costumes.

There are printed linen suits as well as models of plain color.

Pale green, red and black and white in a tweed-print are favored colors.

Colored shantung suits have definitely replaced the heavy linen dress and coat ensembles for mid-summer.

Pink and pale blue are the leading shades for shantung after white which is far and away the most popular.

Wash tweeds, which are often ratine of light weight, are another midsummer version of the informal sleeveless dress with matching jacket.

COAT OF REARING CHILD TO 18 IS SET AS $7,238

WASHINGTON, June 15—(AP)—The cost of rearing one child to the age of 18 years is $7,238, where the average family income is $2,500, reports the white house conference on child health and protection.

The estimate is based on a study made of life insurance charts. Of this amount $534 is expended on the child's health.

"The child of today must be thought of in economic terms," says the editor of "Current Information," published by the conference. "More than $6,000,000,000 can be saved annually in the United States if Americans apply knowledge about preventive medicine and public health now available."

Rhapsody in Blue.

WASHINGTON, June 15—(AP)—Miss Betty Powell, daughter of Col. Alexander Powell, writer and explorer, entertained recently with a blue garden party.

The small dance was held in the patio of the Powell home. The enclosure is paved with blue tile and for the dance it was especially lighted with blue lights. Many of the guests wore blue gowns.

Hand Knitted Suits.

PARIS, June 15—(AP)—Hand knitted costumes of twee-like appearance are standard sport style which the experts say will hold over into winter fashions.

An important designer makes a hand knitted collarless coat for wear with a skirt of the same material and a cloth double breasted jacket with caracul collar.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

When the nickel on your kitchen stove becomes stained try rubbing it with a cloth in vinegar.

Always dry table salt on a piece of paper in the oven and crush it finely before filling up the salt cellars.

When putting away the stove for the summer, apply kerosene with a rag to prevent it from rusting.

Any dish of hot food can be cooled quickly by placing it in a pan of cold salt water.

When making hooked rugs do not crowd the rows too closely together. You should be able to see the burlap between the rows as you work.

If vegetable soup is made from the water in which vegetables are boiled, it will preserve the most valuable minerals in the vegetables, also the vitamins.

Apply to the heads of screws that are obstinate, or rusty, a heated poker. When the screws are hot they can be removed very easily.

After placing half the shortcake dough in a pan, spread melted butter over it, and then place on the remaining dough. When baked, the cake can be opened easily.

Dry orange peels and grind them into a coarse powder. This can be used in a flavor for cakes, sauces, puddings, etc. Lemon peels may be used in the same way.

Pour a little vinegar into the frying pan while it is still hot to remove the odor of frying onions. This also removes fish odor. Or, sprinkle oatmeal in the pan and shake it over the fire until the meal starts to scorch.

Prune juice is a good substitute for castor oil. Soak the prunes over night. Stew them in the water they are soaked in and pierce them with a fork to let out the juice when they are tender. Do not sweeten.

Keep cloths used for polishing furniture in a covered tin or galvanized iron pail. Cloths saturated with polishing liquids, stored away in closets, often cause spontaneous combustion.

ASPARAGUS AU GRATIN

A perfectly delicious supper dish is made of fresh asparagrus creamed and baked with grated cheese long enough to brown.

WHEN MAKING ICING

If your icing is too thin, add a few marshmallows to thicken it. Add them while the mixture is hot and beat vigorously until cool enough to spread. Marshmallows may be bought in quantity and kept fresh by sealing in jars.

FRESH GARNISH

Parsley, mint, celery and lettuce can be kept crisp and fresh for a considerable time if wrapped in a cloth wrung out of cold water and kept in the refrigerator.

TO "TULIP" RADISHES

To cut radishes to represent tulips score the red skin to form five or six petals reaching from tip almost to root. Loosen the radishes under the petals and put them in cold water until the petals stand out.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

An orange stick is preferable for cleaning the nails, as a nail file or knife is apt to cause a roughening of the under surface of the nail where the dirt lodges.

Soften hard water by boiling a pound of bran in a gallon of water for half an hour, then strain. Add enough of this bran water to make the water milky in appearance.

Curling eyelashes are an asset desired by all women. Several times during the day take your eyelash brush and gently close your eyes over it, so that the lashes are curled.

Blondes should use only the whites of eggs for shampooing, but brunettes may use the whole egg. Beat up three eggs lightly, adding a tablespoonful of water for each egg. Use this mixture as you would soap. Rinse thoroughly.

BLISTERS

Blisters caused by perspiration may be relieved by the application of spirits of camphor on a piece of cheesecloth. Genuine blisters should be painted with collodion to protect them from the air and the friction of the stocking.

GOOD ASTRINGENTS

Witch hazel is one of the best astringents known. After thoroughly cleansing the face, apply the witch hazen on absorbent cotton, allowing the pad to remain a minute or two on the particularly affected parts. Just remember that enlarged pores take quite some time to overcome and do not expect immediate results. Ice rubbed over the skin, after the washup is another good astringent.

HATS WITH PINK LINEN

A fashion that comes via Paris is the black straw hat faced with pale pink linen, surely one of the most flattering fashions in many a season. Sometimes there is also a narrow stitched band of linen tied in a small bow.

RED, WHITE AND BLUE

A 1930 version of this always chic color combination is seen in suits, with either long or short coats and dresses or separate blouses. The coats are dark blue wool crepe or silk and the dress or blouse in each case are a gay red print with tiny white floral motifs.

CLEAN FINGER NAILS

Never clean the finger nails with a sharp instrument, such as the blade of a knife of a file. In only roughens the inside of the nail and causes it to collect dirt more quickly. Use an orange stick or scrub out the nails with soap, water and a brush.

AN EXTRA TRAY

A tray, not too large and not too small, has many uses, and when it is of metal painted in black or bright colors with an old French print in the center it becomes decorative as well as useful.

DICTATES OF FASHION

The sports frock of spring is certain to be cut with a high back, however short or absent the sleeve.

Taffeta of synthetic origin is a highly fashionable material for the mild weather ensemble or separate frock.

Necklaces of astoundingly large beads are not heavy ones. Delicate forms, lightweight materials and soft colors are used.

Whether it is the result of the return of demure fashions or not, the fact remains that cottons, good old-fashioned cottons, have returned for spring and summer.

Voiles appear in exotic prints and unusual color combinations. Muslin is stiffened and printed with gay blossoms. Cotton net is an important fabric in the summer mode.

Very springlike are felt hats for masculine wearers made of a becoming shade of gray green. Neckties of green with polka dots or small patterns are worn with them.

SUSPENDERS FROCK

Whether we adopt the feminine mode whole-heartedly or linger on the simpler borders of the sports mode we are confronted with the necessity for recognizing the smartness of the suspender frock. Worn with tweed skirt and cape, suspenders are adopted for sportswear without dissent. But they are also seen in less obvious form on evening frocks and afternoon dresses where they often appear merely as applique trimming, forsaking their utilitarian purpose.

SHIRTINGS FOR TUB FROCKS

Silk shirtings, plain, self striped or showing several colors in striped patterns, have attained popularity in tub frocks cut along simple lines, with skirts either pleated or flaring by means of circular folds at the sides. The plain circular skirt is on the wane.

While rajah and shantung continue to meet with favor, rough silks are less sought than the smoother weaves. Synthetic materials likewise are deemed smart.

POLKA DOT

An unusually attractive suit for the warm days is made of navy blue silk with very tiny white dots scattered closely over the surface. These polka-dot silks are slated for a great success this season.

LAUNDRY HINTS

Mildew on white cloths can be removed by rubbing with the juice of a raw tomato, sprinkle with salt and lay in the sun to dry. Repeat several times if necessary.

Add a little salt to the starch to prevent the starch from being blown out of the clothes while they are drying on a windy day.

Put the gloves on the hands, then wash in spirits of turpentine, in the same manner as washing the hands. When clean, hang the gloves in a warm place, or where there is a current of air.

A good way to protect the corners of the every-day tablecloths, which often suffer in the laundry, is to sew a piece of tape on them. Six inches is enough, three on each side of the corner with the tape sewed flat to meet exactly the edge of the cloth.

SCORCHED

It does happen sometimes, in the best families, but the next time you scorch an article of clothing, wet the scorched spot with clean water and sprinkle with borax. Place in the sun, and the scorched stains will soon disappear.

CRISPY JAP SILK

Potato starch water is excellent for reviving the crispness of Jap silk. Peel and cut up two large potatoes, put in a large basin, and cover with water. Leave this over night, and then pour off the water into another vessel. Wash and rinse the silk in the usual way and dry it; then dip it in the potato water, squeeze out without twisting, and roll up smoothly in a dry towel. Leave for an hour or so, and iron with a fairly hot iron.

COLORED SHOES

How to shine colored shoes is often a problem. Before being worn they should be cleaned with colored cream polish and after each wearing should be repeated.

GENEROUS SUPPLY

Keeping a waste basket in every room, including the bathroom, saves both the family and the housekeeper time and trouble.

HERB GARDEN

Why not plant a little herb garden in your back yard this summer? You can grow mint, fennel, thyme, lemon verbena and other flavorings that give tang to your cooking and your beverages.

ORGANDIE FOR TABLES

Now that we have gone back to the fashion of clothes that cover the table nothing could be more exquisite than a table cloth and napkins of white organdie with appliqued designs also in organdie.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Many women are employed by the Republic of Turkey in its secret service.

Margaret Perry, aviatrix of Culver City, Calif., is the only woman in the world to own and operate a complete landing field.

Miss Victoria Drummond, a young Englishwoman, is the first qualified sea-going woman engineer. She is a junior engineer on the S. S. Anchises.

Mildred Reeves, private secretary of Nicholas Longworth, speaker of the house in Washington, is the only woman to have held such a position for two speakers, the other being former Speaker Frederick H. Gillette.

Making a success of an old business is the credit bestowed Miss Blanche Spillman, an ultra-modern girl in San Francisco, Calif. She operates a livery stable, where she rents out horses and wagons to peddlers, junk dealers, and the like. Her string now includes 23 horses.

HANDY CURTAIN HOOK

A bone ring, sewn on the top of the hem and on the wrong side of a bedroom curtain, will make it possible to hook the curtain to a small hook at the side of a wind frame, thus keeping the curtain unwrinkled and clean when the window is opened at night.

RECEIPTS

Indian fritters: Put into a pan three tablespoons of sifted flour and pour over it carefully, stirring all the time, enough boiling water to make a stiff paste. Let it cool, then break in separately the yolks of four eggs and the whites of two eggs. Beat well and drop by spoonfuls into boiling fat. Fry quickly.

Tomato-cucumber: Wash and slice one medium cucumber, leaving on the peel. Cook with two cups of water, one teaspoon of salt, one garlic clove, three cups of strained tomato juice, one tablespoon of sugar and a dash of cayenne for half an hour. Strain and chill. Serve very cold in chilled cocktail glasses. This may be bottled hot and kept for several days in the refrigerator.

HERE'S A FOYER OF DIGNITY AND GRACE

When you enter here you know you're welcome

By Elsie Drew Kennedy.

The foyer is the keynote to the hospitality of the house.

The foyer, however, must be considered primarily as an ante-room, and be developed with that thought in mind.

Frequently the foyer is an inside room, with little or no natural light. Thus color and the correct artificial lighting must be given due consideration.

In the sketch shown here, a modern treatment of one of these small inside rooms is portrayed in a decidedly modern setting that is quite in accord with a home of dignity and social importance.

A great mirror dominates the room as the focal point, apparently increasing the dimensions of the room. This decorative note also affords opportunity for suggesting a cool vista by the fact that the grilled enclosure may hold a fernery in winter and a riot of spring and summer blooms in season.

Peach and leaf green is the color scheme employed to add light and cheerfulness to this interior, with the paneling preserving the formal note. Doors in the French manner strike an effective balance on either side of the mirror.

A deep moss green carpet is suggested.

Simple, graceful furniture follows the lines of the Louis XI period, with the sofa covered in a yellow rep to match the chairs. Only trifles of an extremely impersonal nature should appear in the foyer.

The small pewter lamp fashioned from a candelabra, with a simple parchment shade, matches the cigarette box, which merely boasts a monogram for decoration.

Fresh flowers add a note of gracious hospitality in any room, and it is a charming gesture to have a bowl of fresh blooms in the reception room.

WOMAN URGED FOR CABINET IS SCION OF PIONEER CLAN

WASHINGTON, June 15—(AP)—If the Nebraska delegation in congress succeeds in efforts to have Miss Grace Abbott appointed secretary of labar, it will add an eleventh generation pioneer to an illustrious clan.

Miss Abbott, who has been chief of the children's bureau in the department of labor since 1921, has served in varied and various governmental posts.

Her first national service for children came in 1917 as director of the child labor division of the federal children's bureau. In that position she was responsible for the administration of the first federal child labor law, which forbade interstate transportation of products of child labor.

One of her ancestors was the twenty-third signer of the Mayflower compact. Later her forefathers helped start Connecticut settlements. They were in the forefront of the forty-niners, and gave California a "native son."

Miss Abbott's father, Othman Abbott of Grand Island, Neb., bears scars of the hand sickle from boyhood pioneering in Illinois.

Grace Abbott was born a few years after her parents "crossed the plains." She was graduated from Grand Island college in Nebraska and received a master's degree in political science from the University of Chicago law school.

In 1909 she lived at Hull house, Chicago social service center, when she was director of the Immigrant's Protective league of Chicago. A few years later her governmental service began.

EXCESSIVE MOTHERING BLAMED FOR MUCH OF MARITAL STRIFE

WASHINGTON, June 15—(AP)—Married people often quarrel because the woman married to satisfy a maternal instinct, says Bertha S. Reynolds, associate director of Smith college for social work.

Miss Reynolds, as one of many women from the United States and foreign lands attending the first International Congress on mental hygiene, offered suggestions for problems of the married and the rearing of children.

"The couple has no idea that difficulties arise from this cause," explains Miss Reynolds. "The woman may have grown up as the eldest of a large family, while her husband is an only child who revolted against a dominating mother. He cannot tolerate the mothering that his wife forces on him. The wife should treat her husband in more comradely fashion."

Mrs. Sidonie Matsner Gruenberg, director of the Child Study association, believes that labor saving devices in the household have put more responsibility on parents to make good as fathers and mothers.

"When the home was identical with the composite household of many activities a good housewife could maintain her status and perhaps also her self respect, even if she proved to be an incompetent guide for her children," she says. "Today if she fails as a mother she cannot fall back upon compensating virtues as cook or laundress.

"Parents are judged today by the ability with which they maintain harmonious relationships in the home. Too often they inflict on their children conflicts growing out of their own strivings—for money, for love or social advancement. The resultant tensions and fixations are stumbling blocks to normal growth from the earliest childhood years."

Guiding Your Child

By Mrs. Agnes Lyne

The Finish.

Only a few days are left now of school bells and homework and beyond that, there shines before every youngster the bright vision of endless leisure, of the free countryside or the stimulating joys of camp life.

His last weeks in school are likely to look uninteresting in his eyes, yet for many youngsters this is a time of reviews and examinations, in order to pass decently into the next grade.

Whether or not he comes in well at the finish is largely dependent on the attitude of his home during these last weeks of school, before vacation.

Parents must do their share toward keeping up the child's interest in his school work during what is so often the bored and weary part of the year.

Now, quite as much as the beginning, they must be interested and cooperative in the matter of school accomplishment.

They were wise to save their enthusiasm and even much talk of plans for the summer until school is qiute over.

They should impress on their children the need either for finishing creditably what they have well begun or for taking this last opportunity to make up for past failings.

Keeping the home serene, cheerful and interested in day to day happenings is especially helpful to these last weeks of school when spring sunshine makes lesson books look dull and when vacation plans tend to make the present seem dingy by comparison.

You can keep up your child's interest in his school work if you yourself consider it genuinely important.

Make him feel that there are fields other than that of athletics where it is good sportsmanship to do your very best to the finish.

China had women soldiers long before Russia.

PARIS, June 15—(AP)—Slowly but surely legs are going into eclipse behind a constantly lowering hemline.

Afternoon dresses, shown here in midsummer style collections which are the final edition preceding winter showings, consistently cover the calf and range downward to the ankle.

Even street clothes are influenced by the trend. Sports clothes, excepting those for active tennis play version. Even here the new styles and golfing, come a full six inches below the knee in their newest bespeak discretion.

Evening dresses have been been lifted slightly as partial compensation for the lengthening of day skirts. Except for ultra-formal frocks, the new length is four to six inches off the floor—or ankle height.

The services were conducted by Mrs. Burchenough and Charles Dowsett. The bearers were Bruce Blackstone, Albert Gebrath, Theodore Moje and Fritz Oberowski. RECKLESS DRIVING CASE BEFORE LISBON JUSTICE

One of three cases tried before Justice of the Peace Walter Drew in the Lisbon town court over the week-end was that of Laurent Tessier of No. 8 Livery street, Putnam, charged with reckless driving, as a result of an automobile accident on the Taftville-Newent highway late Saturday evening. He was before Judge Drew Sunday morning and, pleading guilty, was fined $25 and costs. He was arrested by Constable Aubrey Potter, who investigated the accident.

While driving between Taftville and Jewett City and the Newent highway Saturday evening, at what was regarded as a fast rate of speed, Tessier crashed into the iron fence of a small bridge about a half mile below the Newent arch with his Buick runabout. The machine continued along the highway for a distance of 101 feet, then turned upside down and pinned the driver beneath it. Only for the fact that the machine in overturning came down and rested on a good sized stone the driver might have been seriously or fatally hurt. He was only slightly injured, but his car was quite badly damaged.

Another motor vehicle case tried before Judge Drew involved Ferdinand Fontaine of Taftville, who was charged with reckless driving. He was arrested last Tuesday by Sergeant Gardner of the Danielson barracks on a charge of reckless driving, after he had forced the car in which the officer and others were riding into a bank on the Taftville-Newent road at Thoma's corner in the town of Lisbon. Fontaine operated his machine around the sharp corner on the left side of the highway and in order to avoid an accident the officer's car had to go off the road. His case was continued to Saturday next.

The case of Mike Nemczuk of the Canterbury road, Lisbon, who was before the court on a charge of violation of the liquor laws, was also disposed of in Saturday's session with the Fontaine case. Nemczuk had his case rolled on payment of costs. He was summoned into court last Tuesday when Sergeant Gardner and Constable Potter raided his place and seized a quantity of illicit liquor. Last Saturday, Nemczuk was fined $1 and costs on a charge of possession of firearms. He is an alien.

TO ARRANGE VACATION SCHEDULE FOR FIREMEN

At a recent meeting of the board of fire commissioners, Amiel C. Brosofske, chairman, it was decided to give the members of the fire department a vacation of ten days each, the vacation period to begin between now and the first of July. About 45 firemen will be affected by the vacation schedule, which will be drawn up soon by Chairman Brosofske and Chief Henry R. Taft of the department.

When the item in the list of "extras" calling for an appropriation of $3,385 to cover the salaries of the firemen during the vacation period was taken up at the recent annual city meeting it was voted down. It was the consensus of the meeting that the vacations could be obtained by the firemen without additional cost and that the money should come from the department funds. No opposition to the firemen having vacations was voiced at the meeting.

Chief Ranger Fogarty made remarks and endeavored to discern the members' attitude and opinions pertaining to the coming Fourth of July celebration. TMOMPSON GENEALOGIST DIES IN WALLA WALLA

The passing of Mrs. Mary A. Elliott, whose sudden death occurred on Sunday, June 8, at the home of her son, Thompson C. Elliott, in Walla Walla, Washington, brings a sense of personal loss to friends and relatives scattered across the country from coast to coast.

Born in East Windsor, July 1, 1841, the daughter of Samuel Wells Thompson and Mary Allen (Barber) Thompson, she received her schooling there and absorbed influences derived from the best traditions of New England. On November 29, 1860, she married John Euclid Elliott, a graduate of Amherst, the class of 1857, and the East Windsor Theological seminary in 1860. Mr. Elliott held Congregational pastorates in Ridgebury, Barkhampsted, Newington, South Glastonbury, Higganum, Hadlyme and Bridgewater in Connecticut; in Locust Grove, Iowa, Columbus, Neb., and Ahtanum (North Yakima), Wash. He died at the last-named place in 1888.

They had two children, one who died in infancy, and a son, Thompson C. Elliott, prominent in financial and historical circles in Walla Walla, Washington. Through his family Mrs. Elliott leaves six living grandchildren and two great grandchildren, all in the state of Washington. Mr. Elliott was in the east to attend his class reunion at Amherst when word of his mother's death reached him.

Mrs. Elliott's interest in family affairs led her to undertake the huge task of compiling the record of the descendants of William and Margaret Thompson, whose family settled in Melrose, Conn., in 1720. This was issued in 1915. She was the prime mover in the formation of the Thompson Family association in 1902, which has held biennial and numerously attended reunions with only one intermission, due to the war.

Mrs. Elliott was a woman of great energy and activity. She was actively interested in church work all her life. She kept in touch through correspondence with a great circle of cousins and friends in many states. Her personality was warm and friendly, and her keen mind and ready wit made her always delightful in conversation. She carried with her as a pioneer into the west the best that New England could offer.

Her ashes will be sent to New London, where they will rest beside the body of her husband in Cedar Grove cemetery.

SHARP DROP IN PRICES IN ALL SECURITIES MARKETS

In the Stock Market 300 Issues Sold At New Low Levels For 1930—Headlong Decline In Prices Appeared to Be Part of a World-Wide Deflation In the Speculative Markets—Opinion Was Privately Expressed In Some Financial Circles That Pessimism Was Being Carried to Illogical Extremes—An Unsettling Factor In the Day Was News of Sharp Breaks In the Wheat and Cotton Markets At Liverpool.

NEW YORK, June 16.—(AP)—The most drastic deflation of stock prices since the troublesome days of last November was experienced on the New York Stock exchange and other securities markets today. As measured by the composite price index of 90 representative issues, the general level of stock prices plunged to the lowest point since Christmas, and eliminating the shares' dip during the latter months of last year, to the lowest levels since August of 1928.

The headlong decline in stock prices appeared to be a part of a world-wide deflation in the speculative markets, and was accompanied by sharp breaks in the cotton and grain exchanges, and further reductions in the price of commodities not traded in organized markets. While there was a tendency in some quarters to point to the passage and executive approval of the tariff measure as an aggravating factor, opinion in brokerage and banking circles as to its influence was widely varied.

Aggressive banking support was lacking, although the decline was slackened in the afternoon by heavy accumulation of shares attributed in brokerage circles to important interests. Selling was in huge volume in the late dealings, however, and the day's lowest levels were recorded in the final transactions. The day's sales on the stock exchange aggregated 3,600,000 shares, the largest turnover this year, save for the 8,000,000-share day of May 5.

Approximately 300 issues sold at new low levels for 1930. The ticker did not print the final quotation until 50 minutes after the closing gong.

While bear pressure was said in brokerage circles to be in substantial volume, and there were rumors in Wall street that interests opposed to the tariff were taking part in a bear campaign, brokers were inclined to the opinion that short selling was a relatively small factor in the day's transactions. The volume of selling and the investment character of shares under heavy liquidation were indicated as evidence of wholesale abandonment of holdings.

Particularly disturbing to the stock market was a break of about 2 to 3 cents a bushel in wheat futures, which reached new low levels for the season, a further drop of about $1.50 to $2.50 a bale in cotton futures, shading of the export copper price from 12.55 to 12.30 cents a pound, and gasoline price cutting in California, where retail quotations were reduced from 20 to 17 cents a gallon.

Bankers were reluctant to make any public comment on the situation, but the opinion was privately expressed in some quarters that pessimism was being carried to illogical extremes. While it was acknowledged that current levels of business are unsatisfactory, that second quarter earnings statements, to appear within a few weeks, will in many cases be extremely disappointing, and many more dividend reductions are in prospect, one banker pointed to the fact that world buying of commodities is practically at a standstill, and that it is only a matter of time before consumers will be forced into large-scale purchases to meet requirements, which should bring a quick rebound in prices.

In the meantime, however, another well-known banker explained, production of goods in many lines is excessive, as producers continue to keep their plants busy to avoid excessive overhead charges, and sell their products at prices that eventually would prove suicidal.

An unsettling factor early in the day was news of sharp breaks in the wheat and cotton markets at Liverpool. These declines appeared worse than they actually were, however, for the Liverpool markets had been closed for the Whitsuntide holidays on Friday and Saturday, and therefore reflected at the opening the declines in the American markets late last week.

The more popular issues on the New York Curb market declined drastically. Electric Bond & Share dropped more than $10 to a new 1930 low at $78, which, however, was $28 above the November low. Cities Service, a widely held issue, dropped $3.75 to $25.50, a new low for the year, but $5.50 above the autumn low.

Missouri Kansas Pipe Line recorded one of the most acute declines of the day: tumbled from $36.25, the high level of the year, at which it was stubbornly held throughout the past fortnight of selling, to $15. The stock then rallied to $22 and closed at $21.50, off $14.75 net. Trading in this issue was suspended on the Chicago Stock exchange for a time to permit the specialists to put their books in order.

Missouri Kansas Pipe Line has recently attracted heavy buying based on its program of building a natural gas pipe line from the Texas Panhandle to Indianapolis. Sponsors of the issue stated today that short selling was so heavy that they were forced to withdraw supporting orders, but that there was no change in the status or affairs of the company.

GILBERT HAS AROUSED THE PRESS OF GERMANY

BERLIN, June 16—(AP)—The final report of S. Parker Gilbert as agent general for reparations under the Dawes plan, warning the German government that it must reform its finances if it is to meet internal and external obligations, aroused a storm of protest in the nationalist press today.

"Parker Gilbert says farewell," said the Berliner Boersenzeitung, "but his last greeting to the German people is anything but friendly. His report is a sharp judgment of German financial policies for the past few years, but at the same time it is a judgment of the work of the agent general himself.

"If Gilbert had performed his task conscientiously and with a sense of responsibility, he would have been able to do something, not merely continually to criticise."

As the Nationalist Nachtausgabe sees it, "The agent general hasn't a word to say about the real cause of Germany's financial difficulties and the obstacles in the path of all attempts at fiscal reform, namely the reparations burden."

However, the intellectualist Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung says frankly:

"It is with a feeling of shame that Germany must accept the most bitter truths in the final report of the agent general. It is sad and also provoking to read what accusations this foreigner levels at our public economy, and though one must object to certain details, there is no doubt basically that his criticism hits the nail on his head. The sins of German financial policy in recent years seldom have been so clearly and convincingly exposed by an outsider."

Meanwhile the German government today transferred to the bank for international settlements the first installment due under the Young plan, amounting to 138,000,000 marks (about $33,000,000).

PANIC IN THE WINNIPEG WHEAT FUTURES MARKET

WINNIPEG, Man., June 16—(AP)—Dollar wheat ruled in panic on the Winnipeg wheat futures market today. All three futures recorded new low prices for the season as values were recklessly pounded down 4 5-8 to 4 1-8 cents in a hectic session. July wheat, sinking weakly to 98 1-2 cents per bushel at one point, was at the lowest mark in several years.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, June 16. —(AP)—A dispatch from Plopsor, Rumania, today said that a recently built bridge collapsed there and that 100 persons were thrown into the water, 60 being drowned. No confirmation was available.

AMBASSADOR DAWES CALLED AT THE CAPITOL

WASHINGTON, June 15—(AP)—Ambassador Dawes called at the capitol today to learn what the prospects were for approval of the London agreement to limit naval construction but wound up by saying a few words in favor of limiting senate debate.

A question by a newspaper correspondent during a visit by the former vice president to the senate press gallery set off a verbal explosion.

Jerking the underslung pipe from his mouth and pointing a finger on the other hand, Mr. Dawes lost his ambassadorial composure as the old subject of revising the senate rules was put to him.

"One senator can bring it about and stop this eternal bartering and bickering," he shouted. "You bet I am still for revision of the rules. Just let one senator stand up and object to all legislation until these rules are revised and you will get it."

Going to the capitol from the white house where he is a guest, Mr. Dawes called on Vice President Curtis and Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the democratic leader. Senator Robinson served with Dawes on the London delegation.

PLANNING IMPRESSIVE CORONATION FOR CAROL

BUCHAREST, June 16—(AP)—Now that Carol II has swept all obstacles from his path to a full and valid kingship of Rumania, he made plans today for an impressive coronation that will be the last triumph in the journey of an exile to a throne.

Two weeks ago Carol was a private citizen in a foreign land, divorced from his wife, with the throne of his father—which he renounced four years earlier—occupied by his own nine-year-old son.

Today Carol Caraiman is King Carol II, his divorce is recognized as morally non-existent by the Rumanian Orthodox church, his wife, whom he proclaimed Queen Helen, is reported near a reconciliation with him, and his son is merely a carefree little crown prince.

The coronation will be the last and most brilliant event in the series of startling development. It will be held at Alba Julia, where the late King Ferdinand was crowned.

GEORGE W. JOSEPH DIED IN NATIONAL GUARD CAMP

CAMP CLATSOP, Oregon, June 16—(AP)—State Senator George W. Joseph, colorful figure in Oregon's public life, who won the republican nomination for governor at the recent primary as a "vindication candidate," died suddenly here today of a blood clot on the heart.

Death came at the National Guard camp while he was talking to Major General George A. White with whom he was reviewing the 162nd regiment. The senator had just made a joking remark when he gasped and fell.

Joseph was 58 years old. He was born in a log cabin in the wilds of Modoc county, California, May 10, 1872. As a youth he was a sheep herder. He worked his way through school and acquired an education in law

RAIN HELPS SUPPRESS DISTURBANCE IN INDIA

BOMBAY, June 16.—(AP)—The monsoon, perennial deluge, today came to reinforce the thousand or more armed soldiers sent to the relief of the sorely tried police and civil authorities in the Bombay presidency.

At the same time the government gave the clearest indications that it would no longer tolerate the defiance of Viceroy Lord Erwin's picketing and boycott ordinances by decisively repressing a disturbance in front of one of the leading department stores of Bombay City where followers of Mahatma Gandhi were engaged in a demonstration. Abauot a dozen persons were injured.

Meanwhile renewal of arrests has commenced. Volunteers posted outside of liquor and foreign cloth shops here today were removed in police vans and immediately replaced by colleagues who in turn were taken into custody.

Other than the disturbance in front of the big European department store, the city of Bombay was quiet.

As regards the country as a whole, certain well-informed observers today permitted themselves a new measure of optimism. Outbreaks of violence have lessened.

LORD STRICKLAND ARRIVED IN LONDON BY AIRPLANE

LONDON, June 16.— (AP) —Lord Strickland, premier of Malta, arrived in London tonight by airplane for the purpose of consulting the government on the present disturbed state in Malta.

"A proper solution in accordance with the imperial colonies' interests is quite possible," he said. "It only requires the proper attention on the part of the government. A satisfactory solution will be reached if things are not done in too much of a hurry."

An attempt recently was made to assassinate Lord Strickland, which, coupled with other factors of antagonism, has caused unsettled conditions of great concern to Great Britain.

THREE-YEAR SENTENCE FOR RALPH J. CAPONE

CHICAGO, June 16.— (AP)— The two main Capone brothers, "Scarface" Al and Ralph J. who have kept fairly free from jails and prisons during their tumultuous careers in Chicago's gangdom, will be separated for the next three years if a sentence for income tax frauds imposed today by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson on Ralph stands.

Ralph Capone, the elder of Scarface, has never achieved the widespread publicity of Al, but government investigators discovered that between 1924 and 1929 he had deposited $1,871,000 under seven different names in one Cicero bank—and had failed to mention it in his income tax returns. Ralph Capone was indicted for attempting to defraud the United States and for failure to pay income taxes and concealment of assets.

Capone was convicted on all the charges on April 25.

This was said to be the first time that Ralph Capone had ever been convicted. His brother, Al, however, spent nearly a year in jail at Philadelphia for carrying concealed weapons, being released last February, and is now in controversy with officials of Miami, Fla., who seek to have him ejected.

FUND FOR CONSTRUCTION OF MILITARY POSTS SLASHED

WASHINGTON, June 16—(AP)—The house military affairs committee today slashed virtually $5,000,000 from the $13,000,000 authorization proposed for construction at military posts under the Ransley bill.

Under the new bill which was introduced today by Representative Ransley, Pennsylvania, acting chairman of the committee as aresut of committee action, the total authorizations were pared to $10,410,320.

The committee made no change in the provision under the original bill for $15,000 for noncommissioned officers' quarters at Fort Ethan Allen, Vt. Similarly no change was made in the $4220,000 item for extension of post hospital at Fort Banks, Massachusetts.

With the inauguration of the Young plan and the Bank of International Settlements, his job went out of existence. He left America in 1922 with his bride. Now he and Mrs. Gilbert plan to take a deferred honeymoon, touring America for four or five months.

Wet And Dry Contest In New Jersey Today

In Fight For Republican Nomination For United States Senate

NEWARK, N. J., June 16. — (AP)— With final expressions of confidence in the outcome, New Jersey's candidates for the republican nomination for the United States senate tonight would up a campaign which has aroused widespread interest for weeks.

The polls open tomorrow, at 7 a. m., (EST) and close at 8 p. m. The candidates:

Dwight W. Morrow, ambassador to Mexico and delegate to the London naval conference, whose platform demands repeal of the eighteenth amendment and state control of liquor traffic.

Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, former United States senator who supported the eighteenth amendment, but who now seeks its repeal and some system of centralized control of liquor.

Franklin W. Fort, representative in congress and former secretary of the national republican committee, who entered the race as a dry the day after Morrow announced his stand on prohibition.

John A. Kelly, real estate and insurance man, who describes himself as a soaking wet.

Morrow and Kelly, in addition, are contesting for nomination for a term from November, 1930, to March, 1931, made vacant by the appointment of Walter E. Edge as ambassador to France.

For the long term, the democrats are agreed upon Alexander Simpson, fiery anti-prohibitionist. Miss Thelma Parkinson of Vineland, is the party's nominee for the short term. The socialists have nominated Henry Jager of Palisades for both terms.

Another woman in the contest is Miss Esther H. Elfreth of Haddonfield, prohibition party nominee for the long term. Dr. James Gilbert Mason, for many years a missionary to India, is the party's choice for the short term.

FEAR EXPRESSED OF A FILIBUSTER IN SENATE

WASHINGTON, June 16.— (AP) — Demands made today in the senate that no adjournment be taken until the veterans relief measure has been sent to the white house and approved or vetoed by President Hoover complicated the early adjournment program.

Senator Watson, of Indiana, the republican leader, informed President Hoover at a breakfast conference there was no likelihood of carrying out the plan of house leaders for ending the session this week.

However, the senate speeded its work today on the huge rivers and harbors measure and Senator McNary, of Oregon, the assistant republican leader, expressed hope tonight that the Saturday adjournment might be carried out.

Speaker Longworth came to the senate to inform leaders of the desire of the house membership to get away by the end of the week, but he was advised to withhold the adjournment resolution for several days.

Meantime the senate feared a filibuster on the Boulder dam appropriation in the second deficiency appropriation bill and steps were taken to prepare a cloture petition to shut off debate if that occurred. The Arizona senators are prepared to fight this appropriation.

Until the second deficiency bill, carrying vast emergency appropriations is enacted, senate leaders intend to make no move toward the adjournment.

PLAN $250,000,000 THEATRICAL AND RADIO CENTER FOR N. Y.

NEW YORK, June 16.—(AP)— Plans for a $250,000,000 theatrical and radio broadcasting center to cover an area of three square blocks in mid-town Manhattan were announced today by John R. Todd, representing John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and by the Radio Corporation of America and its affiliated interests.

The gigantic enterprise will be erected on ground bounded by Fifth and Sixth avenues and 48th and 51st streets, acquired by Rockefeller originally to erect a new metropolitan opera house. The property was said to have been rejected by the opera company.

The Rockefeller interests will finance the new architectural development, it was announced, and four theatres, 27 broadcasting studios and numerous office buildings, one of them 60 stories high, are included in the construction plans.

INVESTIGATING CAUSE OF PERTH AMBOY EXPLOSION

PERTH AMBOY, N. J., June 16.—(AP)—All day investigation failed to reveal the cause of an explosion which last night blew out the front of a building, killing two women and injuring eight other persons.

Police considered the possibility of the blast having been caused by a bomb, an exploding still, or a gas leak, but all evidence was consumed in the fire which followed the explosion and did damage estimated at $235,000.

The women killed were Mrs. Agnes Kent and Mrs. Margaret Sourat, who were walking past the building at the time.

David Sass, proprietor of a clothing store in which the explosion occurred, was questioned but detectives learned nothing from him of any value.

All of the injured returned to their homes today after treatment for bruises and lacerations.

LINERS ARE RACING TO BEAT SIGNING OF THE TARIFF BILL

NEW YORK, June 16.—(AP) — It's full steam ahead for Atlantic liners on the westward run, for a race is on to bring in as many ships as possible before President Hoover signs the tariff bill.

Captains of many liners were instructed by their home offices today to make every effort to get their papers to the customs house at the earliest moment. The cargoes of ships that clear their papers before the bill is signed will not be subject to the new tariff, even though the goods are still in the hold when the president acts. And the new duties will be levied against the cargo of ships, even if they dock before the bill is signed, if the papers have not been through customs at that time.

Goyt. Surplus For The Fiscal Year Assured

By Payments In Cash By Foreign Nations of Their Funded Indebtedness.

WASHINGTON, June 16. —(AP) — Cash payments by foreign nations on account of their funded indebtedness to the United States today added $117,141,598 to the government's funds and made certain that President Hoover would complete his first full fiscal year in office with a comfortable surplus in the treasury.

Generally the foreign nations have made their payments to this country in United States securities which automatically reduced the public debt. The cash payments, however, while going to increase the surplus, in the long run attain the same decrease in the public debt as it is an established treasury practice under Secretary Mellon to apply the surplus in revenue each year to debt reduction.

The payments received today were those due on June 15 and came from thirteen nations as installments on money loaned them during or after the World war or as interest on those loans. They came from the following countries:

The amount with $500,000,000 or more being received by the treasury today as the second payment of tax on 1929 incomes, will send the government's total revenue for the year to more than $4,000,000,000. Already there had been received on June 13 a total of $3,470,000,000 but on that date expenditures had amounted to $3,712,000,000 leaving a deficit of $242,000,000.

The income tax payments will send the total of such revenue for the year ending June 30 to approximately $2,450,000,000. On last Friday, $1,928,156,338 had been collected from this source since last July 1. The amount was $113,000,000 more than collected from income tax in the same period of the preceding year while the total revenue for the year was $105,000,000 greater than collected in the same period of the 1929 fiscal year. Expenditures for the present year also showed an increase amounting to $182,000,000 more than for the same time a year ago.

While treasury officials have declined to estimate how much surplus they expected for the 1930 fiscal year, the indications were that with the cash payments today it would run well over $100,000,000 unless some unforeseen expenditure reduced the amount.

HOPE TO SAVE MORE LIVES BY QUICK CANCER DIAGNOSIS

BALTIMORE, June 16.—(AP)— Fifty American cancer specialists each were given five minutes to make a life and death diagnosis in a unique medical class at Johns Hopkins today, where they were studying a method of cancer diagnosis whereby it is hoped to save more lives.

Each had a microscope and under it a small, frozen section from a human growth that might, or might not, be cancer. Each specialist was told to imagine that his sample came from a person on the operating table, the operation just starting, its extent to depend on his decision whether the sample was cancer.

Dr. Joseph Colt Bloodgood, who conducted the class, read a telegram from Dr. William J. Mayo endorsing the quick diagnosis, stating that it should be done "in two or three minutes," is of great benefit, and is practiced at the Mayo clinic.

Dr. Bloodgood announced two recent advances in cancer protection. "Recently," he said, "we have been greatly helped by the new method of transillumination introduced by Dr. Max Cutler of New York."

PRESIDENT-ELECT PRESTES MET CONGRESSWOMAN ROGERS

WASHINGTON, June 16.—(AP)—Dr. Julio Prestes, president-elect of Brazil, had never seen a woman member of congress until he met Representative Edith Nourse Rogers, of Massachusetts, on the last night of his visit in the capital city.

"Ah, a deputada," he delightedly exclaimed.

Sensing his interest, his host, the Brazilian ambassador, arranged an interview.

The president-elect animatedly chatted with Mrs. Rogers, by interpreter, discovering she had been active in the establishment of Pan-American air lines, and that she herself planned to fly to Brazil as soon as she can arrange it conveniently.

They also discussed the possibility of establishment of closer relationship between the countries through translations and republications of the best current literature of each country.

WEETAMOE WINS SECOND STRAIGHT YACHT RACE

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., June 16—(AP)—Weetamoe, potential defender of the America's cup against the challenge of Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock V, defeated the Enterprise and the Whirlwind, rival candidates for the honor, for the second straight time today in a 25 mile race in Long Island sound.

The Weetamoe, backed by a syndicate that includes George Nichols, Junius S. Morgan, Jr., and J. P. Morgan and sailed by Nichols, raced over the triangular course in two hours, 14 minutes, 38 seconds, to defeat the Enterprise, owned by a syndicate headed by Harold Vanderbilt, by one minute and 14 seconds. The Vihriwind was third, 52 seconds further astern. Two former cup boats, the Resolute and Vanitie, finished fourth and last respectively. Neither is eligible to defend the America's cup this year.

MANCHURIANS TO HELP CENTRAL CHINESE GOVT.

NANKING, June 16.—(AP)—The state council told the Kuo Min News agency tonight that Chang Hseuh-Liang, governor of Manchuria, had definitely decided to aid the central government in its hard fight against the northern coalition.

The agency added that Feng Yu-Hsiang, who has headed the northern alliance along with Yen Hsi-Shan, was almost ready to quit, hence it is believed the assistance of Chang would bring an early termination of the civil war.

Chang told the government, the news agency said, that he was mobilizing and would attack the rear of the Shanshi rebel army on orders from the nationalist government.

BLAME FOR LAWLESSNESS PLACED ON PROHIBITION

Police Chief Russell of Chicago, Who Has Resigned, Asserts That In Prohibition He Had Met An Insurmountable Obstacle to Law and Order—The Chief and Detective Chief Stege Were Forced Out of Office By the High Tension of Public Indignation—Warfare Upon Gangs and Gunmen Continues.

CHICAGO, June 16— (AP) —New brooms began to sweep Chicago today.

Mayor William Hale Thompson's two police chiefs quit the firing line in the war upon gangs and gunmen, forced out by the high tension of public indignation.

Into the breach in swift succession, came public and private agencies resolved to purge city hall, police and underworld of the gangster's thrall.

The city council committee on police, hearing the reports of the two retiring commanders, Commissioner William F. Russell and Captain John Stege, detective chief, determined upon a thorough investigation of the police department. Its inquiry will be launched Thursday with Alderman Arthur F. Albert as prosecutor.

A county grand jury was ordered by Denis J. Normoyle, chief justice of the criminal court.

"When the gunmen go beyond their guerilla warfare and attack the ranks of private citizens," said Judge Normoyle, "it is time to curb them. Gangsters are not only a menace to this community but a disgrace to the whole United States. The city's reputation has been injured and it is up to us to act."

Chief Justice Normoyle alluded to the daylight assassination a week ago today of Alfred J. Lingle, Chicago Tribune reporter, whose killer remains unknown, although the retiring detective chief intimated as he packed his uniform and started for his new post, a captaincy at an outlying station, that the police "know more than the public supposes" about the murder.

Meanwhile business leaders met secretly at the association of commerce crete by at the Association of Commerce and voted to enlarge the "secret six" committee investigating the reign of crime to sixteen men representative of various business groups, and to increase its scope of activities and fatten its purse.

Commissioner Russell, the veteran of thirty years in the department—he worked up through the ranks from patrolman in 1900 to commissioner in 1928 smiled as though relieved when he told the reporters of his resignation. His own regime had coincided with the regime of the machine gunner. Against the deadly patter of vendetta bullets he had opposed the routine roundup of hoboes and gangsters and guntoters—and lost. In less than six months this year 39 men have fallen victim of gang guns; none has been avenged by an indictment, much less a court conviction.

Russell and Stege alike blamed prohibition for the situation. Russell, too, complained of an inadequate force, necessitated, he said, by the impoverished city treasury.

"I am an illustration of man's inhumanity to man" he said, "but I have met insurmountable obstacles. By that I mean prohibition and I don't care who knows it."

"All over the United States prohibition is responsible for all of this," he said.

John H. Alcock, deputy commissioner, will act as commissioner until a successor to Russell is appointed, and Captain John Egan will succeed Stege temporarily. Mayor Thompson, still silent, is expected to send a nomination for commissionr to the city council Wednesday.

BODY OF GANG VICTIM WAS TAKEN FROM CANAL

CHICAGO, June 16—(AP)—The body of a supposed gang ride victim, from which the head, hands and feet had been removed to prevent identification, was taken from the sanitary district canal at Lockport, near here, today.

It was from the same canal that the body of Eugene "Red" McLaughlin, notorious gunman, aligned with the George "Bugs" Moran gang, was taken recently. The body, punctured with bullets and weighted with iron, was churned to the surface by a passing tug.

After the discovery, Pat Roche, chief investigator for the state's attorneys office theorized that a number of Moran hoodlums who dropped from sight recently had been killed and their bodies similarly disposed of.

PLANT YACHT IN COLLISION; A SAILOR WAS DROWNED

GREENWICH, Conn., June 16.—(AP) —Search was abandoned tonight for the body of a sailor drowned last night when two yachts, one owned by Philip M. Plant, millionaire sportsman, collided off Rye Beach, N. Y., throwing seven persons, including Claire Windsor, motion picture actress, into the water.

Miss Windsor, Plant and the captain of his yacht, the Loleta, E. K. Hatfield, of New London, were rescued and taken aboard the Chang Wang III, owned by Chatfield Taylor, New York author and playwright, which struck the Loleta amidship, sinking it within a few minutes.

The Chang Wang's bow was stove in, but it was able to make port here after picking up the Loleta survivors and three of its passengers, who also had been catapulted into the sound.

The sailor, Ernest Spangler, 18, of New York, who was the only other person on the Plant boat, drowned before help could reach him.

Those on the Chang Wang who were thrown into the water were Earl Larrimore, member of the Theatre guild, and Therese Lewis, both of New York, and J. H. Vincent, of Greenwich. Other guests on board were Eleanor E. Sherwin, Mary Betty Chandler and Fred Gillette, all of New York.

DRIVE OF SOUTHERN CHINESE REBELS HALTED

SHANGHAI, June 16—(AP)—Government forces today halted the drive of the southern rebels close to Wuchang's walls, but were reported thrust back by the northern rebels fighting toward Wuchang and its sister cities, Hankow and Hanyang, in central China.

Fifty thousand Nationalists fought off the charge of the southerners. President Chiang Kai-Shek in person commanded the government troops, who after recent retreats from Changsha and Yochow, gave way again Saturday.

The Northern Alliance rebels, however, were reported to have forced back the Nationalists in sharp fighting north of Hankow. Weakened by withdrawals of its troops to fight the southerns, the government army withdrew to Chumantian, 125 miles south of Chengchow, Honan province, along the Peiping-Hankow railway.

"The new law," the statement said, "for the first time in the history of the country, should result in taking the tariff out of log-rolling and political maneuvering, and relieve business from the disastrous effects of general revisions for years to come."

RECENTLY APPOINTED JUDGE M'EVOY LAUDED

WATERBURY, June 16— (AP) — Frank P. "If I had not found him possessed of the qualities requisite for a judge I would not have been here," he said. Justice Wheeler, by inference, praised the naming of one of Irish descent and of Roman Catholic faith to the bench when he said:

"I see in the appointment that in his person those ancient prejudices that for years have proscribed some from judicial places, broken through. I rejoice it is so and for that act give due acclaim to Governor Trumbull's and I pronounce it the most distinguished act he has rendered in his term."

For the vitamin experiments, 75 ripe Tom Watson watermelons of two different crops were used. The red or pink fleshy portion from these was fed to 130 albino rats for the vitamin A, B and G tests and 30 guinea pigs to determine the vitamin C content. All the animals ate the melons readily, and the guinea pigs developed a keen watermelon appetite. The bureau followed its customary standard methods in these vitamin studies on watermelon. In addition to weighed daily portions of the melon all the animals had a basal diet which supplied every factor except the vitamin under test. The growth and good physical condition of the animals indicated the presence of the different vitamins.

DANIELSON

WOMAN'S SKULL FRACTURED IN FALL FROM MACHINE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, June 16—Mrs. Joseph Natorski, wife of the proprietor of the Danielson inn, was in dangerous condition today and was removed to a Putnam hospital for treatment for a fracture at the base of the skull.

Mrs. Natorski was injured last evening near Scituate, R. I., while out on a motor trip with her husband and two other people. Mrs. Natorski, naturally inclined to be a bit nervous, was startled when someone is said to have called that the car was on fire, and is believed to have accidentally fallen out of the machine when she opened the door to see where the fire was. She crashed to the hard-surfaced highway and sustained the injured mentioned. Mr. Natorski and other members of the party brought her to the family apartment at the inn here, and a physician was called. This morning after a consultation of physicians her removal to the hospital was advised. The fracture is of a serious nature and in a dangerous location. The accident to Mrs. Natorski is a source of great regret to her relatives and her many friends in Danielson.

OBITUARY

Donat Morrissette

A sudden death at his home on Short street last evening was that of Donat Morrissette, 49, from what later was pronounced a case of heart disease. The body was viewed by Dr. F. P. Todd, as medical examiner.

The deceased was present at a baseball game here Sunday afternoon and appeared to be in his usual health, nor did he complain of illness, it is believed the extreme heat of the afternoon may have been a contributing cause to his sudden death. When he became suddenly and violently ill he lived only a few moments.

Mr. Morrissette came here from Canada, where he was born, about three years ago. In addition to his wife he leaves the following children: Mary Blanche, Edgar, Armand, Gerard, Cecilia, John and Rachel.

FUNERAL

Ezra P. Smith

The funeral of Ezra P. Smith of Foster, who died at a Providence hospital was held at A. F. Wood's funeral home with Rev. Henry A. Coolidge of the South Killingly Congregational church conducting the service. Burial was in the South Killingly cemetery. The bearers were Jesse Smith, Frank Munyan, Henry Brisson and Harry Carpentier.

The recent appearance at the Congregational church in Brooklyn of a Mr. Attila in a religious concert that was greatly appreciated directs attention to the fact that Finnish residents of that town periodically hold services in the chapel of the church and at times have united in service with members of the church. Brooklyn's Finnish colony is made up of fine people who are making a success for themselves on farms that they have acquired and also in many other lines of endeavor. Mr. Attila came to Brooklyn under their auspices.

ALFRED L. REED HEADS LOCAL ROTARY CLUB

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, June 16—Alfred L. Reed heads the Danielson Rotary club as president for the ensuing year, succeeding Ernest R. Warren, who has filled the office for the past year. Other officers of the club to serve with Mr. Reed for the year are N. Lorne Greig, vice-president; Burdette C. Hopkins, secretary; Harold A. Roberts, treasurer; A. Putnam Woodward, sergeant-at-arms. All of these official selections become effective July 1.

There is the prospect that the N. Y., N. H., and H. railroad will be asked to install some more modern and effective automatic signals warning of the approach of trains than is now in use at the local crossing. An old type of electric gong, automatically operated, is now the chief protection against accident there, though there are also signs indicating that a grade crossing is at this point. Notwithstanding, accidents have persisted in happening there, three within the past two years or thereabouts. Motorists approaching the crossing from either side can get a good view to the south, but dwellings and fences block a view of the track to the north until a driver is within a few feet of the track.

Directors of the chamber of commerce are among those who believe, with many individuals resident here, that the situation is such as to make necessary the installation of more modern and effective automatically operated devices at this crossing, over which there is almost constant traffic. There are those who insist that it should be protected by gates, but that is not generally being urged.

The point where a power shovel has been located out in a field near Shippee hill just over the southern border of the town of Killingly in Plainfield has served to impress for the first time many who pass that way on what a change is to be made in building a new three-mile stretch of concrete highway from the present route. The changes will be welcome ones to the average traveler familiar with the old route, with its snake-like curves and heavy grade at this point. The new route will go straight through the fields, a considerable distance to the east of the present route.

A temporary reduction in the number of its employes in its local mills and a three days a week schedule for some others has been made effective by Powdrell and Alexander. The general condition of business is held responsible for this situation, which it is hoped will not endure over any great length of time.

Other parts of the town of Killingly are awaiting announcements from East Killingly as to its program for observance of the Fourth. Each year for a long time that community has kept up the tradition of observing Independence day in traditional manner, but to date nothing has been given out relative to the coming Fourth Danielson has no formal program planned, nor will it have. There is promise, of course, of abundant noise and of various diversions to make the holiday a pleasant one, but no parade or other formal features.

Baptised Children's Day

Ide; Stanley Richard Morrarty and Beverley Ann Morrarty, children of Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Morrarty, of Putnam; Joyce Louise Roberts and Jean Marie Roberts, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Harold A. Roberts; Robert Gray Vett, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Henry Vett.

County game officials are keeping close tabs these days on bodies of water from which bass may be taken during the open season. It so happens that the open season is two weeks ahead, not opening until July 1, yet reports are constantly coming in indicating that anglers who are not averse to breaking a fishing law have been trying to catch bass ahead of the legal time. One such successful attempt has been followed by a prosecution.

GRADUATION EXERCISES AT ST. MARY'S SCHOOL

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, June 16.—An audience of 400 assembled at St. Mary's hall on Marshall street Sunday evening to witness the graduation exercises of the class of 1930 of St. Mary's school.

Preceding the presentation of diplomas, the class presented a delightful programme, consisting of music and dramatics. OLD COIN DUG UP ON CARSON ESTATE

The charts of the famous pirate, Captain Kidd, do not reveal any visits having been made by him into Connecticut's interior, but the reports which have been forthcoming during the past two weeks concerning the finding of buried coins, give one reason to believe that at some time or another during the 19th century pirates invaded Windham county for the purpose of burying their loot. Last week a laborer working in Thompson unearthed an ancient coin, the finding of which apparently started a new fad, that of coin digging.

On Saturday morning a laborer at work on the estate of General Carson in Pomfret brought out of the ground on a shovelful of dirt, a coin which later proved to be a copper cent of United States mint. The date of its birth is unknown, but it is believed that the coin is at least a century old, since it compares in size with a present-day 25 cent piece. The finder called the attention of General Carson, retired army officer, to what he had unearthed. The general inferred that he would have it examined and later would have it inserted into the woodwork now being installed in the library of his beautiful new home.

Rev. U. O. Bellerose, pastor of St. Mary's church, observed the 32nd anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood informally at the rectory Sunday. Father Bellerose, who has been pastor of St. Mary's parish since the death of Rev. Charles F. Bedard in 1927, was ordained at Baltimore on June 14, 1898, by the late Cardinal Gibbons. His first parish assignment was as a curate to St. Patrick's church in Norwich. Later, Father Bellerose became pastor of the Sacred Heart church in Taftville, and was appointed by Rt. Rev. John J. Nilan, D.D., bishop of Hartford, to succeed the late Rev. Father Bedard at the Putnam parish.

Awarded Boy Scout Trophy

Oscar Grounland of Putnam heights was awarded the trophy offered by the Boy Scouts of St. Mary's parish to the winner of a five-mile marathon race held Saturday evening. The course was between Putnam and the village of North Grosvenordale. Malcolm Tourtellotte of Chapman street finished second with Donat Laroche of North Grosvenordale taking third honors. There were a number of entries who competed in the long grind.

Prosecuting Attorney Eric H. Johnson is in New Haven this week, attending the 53rd annual reunion of his class at Yale college. Mr. Johnson was graduated from Yale law school in 1877.

BOY THREW MATCH INTO GASOLINE TANK

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, June 16. — Until the truth of what really had happened to Edward Carpenter, young son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Carpenter of Grove street, was learned from Ralph Perry, eight-year-old son of George E. Perry of Oak street, the combined efforts of state and local police were concentrated on the locating of three gunmen who were alleged to have fired a shot into the Carpenter boy's face while the two were walking to their homes on the Putnam Heights road late this afternoon. Carpenter is at the Day Kimball hospital, suffering from severe burns about the face and head. It was later revealed that Carpenter had peered into a gasoline tank of a truck parked on the state road in the Putnam Heights section, and dropped a match into the container to see if it would explode.

Carpenter was taken to the hospital and the police in questioning Perry, drew a number of weird tales of bandits who were said to have been around the countryside when they accosted the two boys a short distance from his home. Perry later told Officer Mayo that three men on motorcycles rode past them and tossed a burning paper into his companion's face. He afterwards told the tale of the gunmen and in a third story related the truth of what had occurred. "You see that truck over there?" he inquired of the officers, pointing to a dump truck parked side of the road. "Well, me and Eddie had some matches and we went over there this afternoon to see what would happen if we dropped a match into the tank. Eddie looked into the tank and then dropped the match. It blew up and Eddie got all blacked around the face."

A late report from the Day Kimball hospital said that the Carpenter boy's eyesight was endangered because of the severe burns received on the left side of the face.

MAN HELD ON CHARGE OF RECKLESS DRIVING

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, June 16.—Rio Dionne, of Providence, R. I., was arrested late yesterday afternoon by State Officer Elton T. Nolan of the Danielson barracks on a charge of reckless driving. Dionne was the operator of a Ford car which collided with another car owned and operated by Justin R. Hyland of Fiskdale, Mass., yesterday on the Southbridge-Putnam highway at the intersecting roads at North Woodstock. Dionne will appear in justice court in South Woodstock Tuesday. Officer Nolan ordered the arrest after an investigation of the accident.

The summer course in home economics will begin June 30 at the state trade school, under the direction of Miss Hannah Pease and Miss Ethel Spooner. The work this year will be organized in two phases; one type intended as supplementary to high school work and another more adapted to special needs in training in food and clothing problems.

Sessions will be from 8 to 12 o'clock, five days a week, continued for five weeks.

Those interested in the work should make enrollment before the 20th of June, either at the trade school office or with the home economics teachers directly.

City Clerk Thomas P. Ryan issued nine building permits for the month following the June meeting of the common council which was held on June 2. The Polish-American club has acquired a building lot on the easterly end of Providence street and plan to erect a lodge building. It will be a single story fram dwelling, 20 feet by 40 feet. Work will be started on the hall at once.

A one and one-half story house of bungalow type is now to be erected by Abbie W. Brisson of Van Den Noort street, at a house lot on Lamont street. The dwelling house being built by Mr. Brisson is one of several new homes gracing that section of the north end of the city which is being converted into a popular residential area.

James Dempsey of Mechanic street was given a permit to erect a sectional two stall garage in the vicinity of his home.

Peter Wojcik is now engaged in the construction of a modern barn on his farm located on the northerly end of Mechanics street and Groveland avenue.

The north side of Mechanic street is the scene of a number of beautiful homes. This street in the past ten years has come to be Putnam's leading residential section. The Wheaton Building and Lumber Co., owners of a tract of land on the undeveloped portion of the thoroughfare are building a modern two-story frame structure on the site just north of the Ill property. The house embodies all of the present day architectural features and although not quite complete, the lines of the house are already beginning to enhance the beauty of the street.

Bunch of keys lost with tag. Return to E. S. Hiscox.—adv.

The picture in Monday's Bulletin of the old Windham Center schoolhouse was of particular interest to Mrs. Everett H. Hiscox. She is the only person in town who was born in Windham Center and who attended school in that building, now torn down, and a new school built in another section a few years ago. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Myron Swift, taught school in that building until their removal to the Jewett City schools.

Paul Geist and his family, of Lisbon, are very much cheered up today because the state of Connecticut has decided not to move their residence. The latest survey for the proposed straightening of the river road passes over in the lots, south of their home, on the other side of the present highway.

A month ago Mr. Geist was informed that a survey for this purpose passed directly through his house. Later the engineers came to look the job over, and found that it would be next to impossible to move the ancient structure with its old-fashioned chimney, close to ten feet square. Some of the natural wood panels that face parts of the old stone flue are of great value. Mr. Geist says he has found that all these state men are pretty good fellows after all.

WEDDING

Miss Anna Grasku, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Grasku, of North Main street, and Alex Kowalewski, of No. 507 Essex street, Lawrence, Mass., were united in marriage by Rev. J. J. Following the ceremony, the wedding breakfast was given at the home of the bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Kowalewski left during the evening for a honeymoon trip that will include visits in Maine and New Hampshire.

RESPECTING HANDS-OFF POLICY

How the president could be kept in hot water and how some would keep him there if they could is interestingly illustrated in connection with the primary today in New Jersey.

It is a well-known fact that Dwight W. Morrow is a close friend of the president. So when Senator Baird, in his efforts to speed along the Morrow campaign for the senatorship in New Jersey, declares that the president is much interested in the Morrow candidacy and intimates that he would like to see Mr. Morrow win, it naturally stirred up the backers of the other republican candidates, even to the point of protesting.

Evidently the protesters believed that the president had not given his endorsement to the Morrow candidacy. But, whether they did or not, the forwarding of the protests resulted in getting the information that the president has not taken sides in the New Jersey primary contest. He has not indicated his support in behalf of Mr. Morrow, or Mr. Fort, or Mr. Frelinghuysen. He is leaving the matter entirely with the republicans of New Jersey and in so doing he is simply following out the policy which was established some time since.

That much influence would naturally be expected to follow any presidential endorsement is recognized. It would be a strong card for any candidate to play if he could actually get such an expression. But it isn't for the president to say. It is not the time for him to exercise his influence. He has troubles enough of his own without attempting to mix into the political battles of friends. Primaries are contests from which he has wisely decided to remain aloof, to maintain a strict neutrality, to keep hands off.

Having adopted such a practice in connection with contests in other states, it was to be expected that it would be followed in the primary battle in New Jersey. It wasn't necessary to make such announcement in advance, but when efforts were made to indicate that he had departed from his rule, it was necessary to insist that there had been no such departure. The same attitude is being displayed in regard to today's primary in Jersey as has prevailed in Pennsylvania, Illinois and other states where heated campaigns have been held for the choice of candidates.

TOO MANY DROWNINGS

Nine persons were drowned in New England over the week-end. This is the season of the year when there is a strong rivalry between motor vehicle fatalities and drownings, and despite the preventive efforts the number of needless deaths grows appallingly.

The week-end drownings may not have all been due to carelessness or the failure to know how to swim. It is invariably the case that drownings could have been prevented had there been more consideration given to the danger of going into the water without knowing how to swim, to trusting life to the unreliable canoe without being able to take care of oneself in the water and to bathing at a proper time and under safe conditions.

It is the practice of too many to seek relief in rivers and ponds during hot spells. They give more thought to relief than they do to safety. They go beyond their depth, they dive into shallow water, they plunge in where obstructions are hidden, and those who do not know how to swim are left to the mercy of friendly assistance in case it happens to be at hand. Those thrown into the water from canoes have no alternative but to hang on and shout for help, if they cannot swim. It becomes a question of how long they can stand the cold water and how soon exhaustion will force them to release their grasp. That danger is by no means a hidden one, since a large percentage of drownings each year is caused by the upsetting of canoes.

The effort that is being directed toward teaching more young people to swim is well calculated to bring about a reduction of drownings. The large loss of life by drowning over the week-end makes it evident that there is need for it and that it should have been started in earnest years ago. The idea of having everyone who is physically able learn how to swim is a capital one.

IS CHICAGO AROUSED?

No one can blame those in Chicago who are making an effort to clean up the city. They have been stirred to action by the series of killings terminating with the shooting down of a reporter. They not only want to get and punish the murderer but they also want to put a stop to the gangster operations which have too long prevailed in that city.

The one great trouble with this sudden activity is that it has been delayed until this time. Chicago has had its crime in full measure. It has experienced plenty of murders and spectacular exhibitions by gunmen. It has seen man hunts through its streets, and taking people for a ride has gotten to be a habit. Chicago has known the direction in which it has been headed and it has made very little effort to change it. Now it finds itself at the point where it cannot ignore the situation any longer. It has reached the belated conclusion that the fair name of the city is at stake and it is time to do something about it.

What the present effort will amount to is a question. In view of all that has transpired in Chicago, it is hard to reach any other conclusion than the city has been experiencing the kind of conditions it likes. Certainly it has done little or nothing to prevent or cure them. It has tolerated those who have held the reins. It has insisted upon the prolongation of their stay in office. It has given endorsement to the policies that have been carried out. Thus, even though the responsibility may rest directly upon those at the helm, it is impossible to overlook the indirect responsibility of the people themselves. It has been within their power to effect a change but they have declined to do so.

Just what the public indignation that is now being manifested will amount to and whether it will be more than a temporary matter, remains to be seen. There is talk of persuading Charles G. Dawes to become the candidate for the next mayor of Chicago in order to lead the clean-up. What Mr. Dawes' attitude will be if approached on the matter is problematical but any real concentered demand for a change in the conditions in Chicago ought not to depend upon any one individual. If there is a serious manifestation in behalf of better things and a determination to have them, Chicago ought to give its support to any leadership that is ready to carry on the fight.

THE GILBERT REPORT

S. Parker Gilbert has concluded his work as agent-general of reparations and he has done a masterly piece of work over a period of five years. He was concerned with the carrying out of the Dawes plan, but now, through agreement, it is the Young plan that is handling the situation.

As the result of his five years work and his location at a point where he was able to give careful study to conditions, Mr. Gilbert has been in a position to note carefully what Germany is doing in the way of meeting its responsibilities. Thus, when he makes his final report, he offers some advice that seems to be timely and to the point.

It is advice that deals with the conditions in Germany. He sets forth that the business of Germany is on a sound basis but he directs attention to the fact that the same cannot be said of its public finances. He notes the tendency to governmental extravagance, to make appropriations without making certain of the revenue, to fail to balance the budget and to make reformation promises without giving any serious thought to enactment.

It is possible for Germany to disregard this advice entirely or it can give heed to the situation before it is too late. It is one of those situations where it would seem to indicate that the time had come to stop, look and listen. Mr. Gilbert wasn't called to Germany to act as a financial critic for that government but in the course of his duties it was necessary that he should carefully scrutinize the road it was traveling and to direct attention to what might be expected unless it changes its ways.

On several occasions Germany has pointed out that it could not meet the obligations to the allied nations. It is possible through the methods of conducting the government that it will have to make such pleas in the future. Through the attention which Mr. Gilbert is directing to conditions in that country it apparently lies within its power to put an end to the waste and extravagance and, for the good of the country, common sense would indicate that it should be done before it is too late.

Germany has received the benefit of an expert's study and advice. It now remains to be seen what use it makes of it.

ADJOURNING CONGRESS

For weeks the desire in Washington has been to bring about an early adjournment of congress. The house is ready and waiting for the fixing of the day. The senate is far from such a point. It has much business to be done and, even with the tariff bill out of the way, it is hardly possible now to tell when it will be ready to end the session.

At this end of a congressional session there is always piled up a vast amount of business. Some of it must be disposed of. Some of it can be left to another time. Some is destined to be railroaded through in the last few days, and there will be certain measures which ought to be acted upon at this time which will fail to get attention.

When the jam at the end of a session looms up it cannot fail to bring to attention the valuable time that has been lost during the earlier days. This is not because of the failure to sound warnings or to urge better use of the time. It is the natural outcome of the political game of wasting time and obstructing the smooth progress of legislation, for which the present senate has been notorious.

The present senate should have so expedited its business as to have found time to act upon the London treaty. This doesn't mean that action should be hustled unreasonably, but with an effort to prevent waste time during the last several months and with recognition given to the favorable sentiment in behalf of ratification, the business in hand as well as the disposition of the treaty could easily have been accomplished without the necessity of a special session. Even now the mass of business is such that it is impossible to tell when the senate would be ready for adjournment if it attempted to clean the slate. It has labored long for what it has done, but it will be a relief to the country when it finally adjourns.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The man on the corner says: Some people show speed enough to overtake a cold.

Chicago isn't showing what might be called speed in solving the Lingle murder, of which New York is probably taking notice.

There will be many who will be thinking of Willimantic and its community reunion this week even though they cannot get there

RESEARCH

"Ahem"—clearing of a throat — a deep-voiced male throat—"Ahem, I say, would you marry me?"

Pauline looked up from her typewriter quickly and stared at the stranger's face. Her first impulse was to throw back her head and laugh. And she did not know that her laugh was generally considered "a contagious, merry chuckle. "There was something in this stranger's earnest face that arrested her mirth. He was so completely serious.

"How can I say whether I'd marry you or not?" The stranger edged his elbow onto the corner of the desk.

"I didn't mean to say that, exactly—" Pauline was surprised to know that she felt vaguely disappointed.

"I only meant," the stranger continued, "to suggest your going out to lunch with me. But I guess" — he hesitated again—"when one is used, by habit and natural bent, to go right to the point it is hard to change one's habits at a crisis." He no longer seemed confused. Reassured by her attentive interest, the man continued: "You see, I've been writing to you for five years. Just after I finished school I became a member of this research service. At first I despaired! I was very busy, doing two men's work, writing constantly and working eight hours a day in the experimental college, and I needed the co-operation of a service like this.

"At first it seemed a failure. Then suddenly the data I began getting from this office became clear, concise and intelligent. I inquired of your chairman and he said he had a new girl on medical research. That explained it. Do you remember, you came to work on the first of December, 1924?"

Pauline took off her glasses and regarded her strange visitor with incredulous eyes. How could any one remember a date like that? That was—how could any one except herself remember the date of her big triumph—her first real job?

"You see—" the stranger was glaring at her, "you see, I have always believed that no woman was ever constructively intelligent. You understand me?" Pauline nodded her head weakly.

"So it will not be hard for you to see that when your reports began coming to me once each month telling me even more than I had asked for—well—it stimulated my curiosity. You can see that it would."

Another weak nod from Pauline.

"I said something about the phenomenon of an intelligent—of a creatively intelligent woman to a friend of mine at the university. He said I was wrong, that there were lots like you. I had to go so far as to use your name and cite your case. You'll pardon me?" Pauline could not even nod her head now.

"This friend of mine knows you. He says you grew up together in the same little town. He volunteered the information that you were single, 27 and pretty."

"Eddie Jackson, the scamp! A practical joker," thought Pauline.

"But I think—" the first faint smile came to the stranger's face, "I think that being such an old friend has dulled his perception. He has forgotten just how beautiful you are."

Slowly her mind picked up his words and linked them together into as chain—a fragile chain that held her spinning thoughts together. Five years—experimental college—scientific writing—knew Eddie Jackson—took monthly reports and personally wrote for his data. Her quick mind labeled her caller, but her instinct for absolute accuracy would not allow her to believe her own beating heart.

Could this man be Robin Allen, Dr. Robin Allen? He was the 30-year-old prodigy of a great midwestern university. If this was Robin Allen dare she tell him that the reason his reports from the bureau had been more than complete was because—was just because—she could find no reason. He had said she was intelligent. Could she admit that she had read each businesslike request four times over? Could she say that she compared all scientific treatises, of which she read hundreds, to Dr. Robin's own and always found others inferior?

No! Certainly she could not. So she reached a slender arm across her desk, selected her paper weight—a little girl with her arms outstretched and the wind behind her. Very deliberately Pauline placed the little girl on top of a loose sheaf of papers and then turned to her visitor.

"I'd love to go to lunch with you,' she said, and smiled a "contagious merry smile."—Chicago News.

YOUR HEALTH

Hidden, Untimely Deaths

By Walter Clarke, M. D., New York.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

These are the words with which Job refers to stillbirths, the death of children before they have seen the light of day. Twenty-five per cent of all stillbirths and about 30 per cent of deaths of infants under one year are due to syphilis. These unborn or newborn infants have syphilis because a mother, having been infected by her husband or another man, conveys syphilis to her child before it is born. In a study of American prenatal clinics it was found that about 8 per cent of women attending these clinics have syphilis and it is a well-known fact that a pregnant, syphilitic mother will, unless properly treated, almost certainily pass on her disease to her unborn child.

Osler said the fact that syphilis is transmitted from mother to child before birth stands out less as a biological peculiarity than as a fact of supreme importance to national health. The organism of syphilis may kill the child in the womb, or a few days after birth, or in the first few years after birth; or the blighted survivor may become one of the defective, miserable children who constitute the greatest tragedy of syphilis with all its burdens and tragedies from our communities?

When every woman is carefully examined early in pregnancy, and when those who are found to have syphilis are properly treated, the miscarriages, stillbirths and infant deaths due to syphilis will cease. Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, secretary of the interior, once said to a great medical congress, "When we can keep the organism of syphilis out of the body of every new born babe, we shall have added enough to human life and happiness to heal the wounds of the great war."

There are therefore three things that all right-minded citizens should know as a basis of their thinking and action:

1. Syphilis is hereditary, and prudish distaste of the fact does nothing to stop the trouble.

2. Congenital syphilis can be banished.

3. It is a matter of public welfare regarding which community leaders should cooperate with the doctors for adequate preventive measures

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, June 16—Dr. Enrique Olaya, president elect of Colombia and Colombian minister in Washington for a number of years, clearly has profited by his observations in this country.

He has satisfied his former Washington diplomatic colleagues that he knows a thing or two about publicity, both printed and pictured, and, what is more to the point, how to get it. They derived considerable amusement from the success of what seemed to be a carefully thought out escape from a rather embarrassing situation.

The situation was this: Dr. Olaya, as resident minister in Washington at the time of his election to the presidency, might well have missed out on the film and newspaper publicity he otherwise would have had if he had visited the American capitol as president-elect.

He was in Washington when the Colombian congress took the necessary steps to certify his elevation. There was no reason for a display of pomp and circumstance in his case unless it might be in connection with his departure to assume his new dignities at home.

Plan Of Prestes

In the meantime, however, Dr. Julio Prestos had been elected president of Brazil. He promptly announced his intention of following Hoover precedent and making a journey abroad before he was installed in office. His first call would be Washington to repay the goodwill visit of President-elect Hoover.

Word of this came up over the cables. Plans for a fitting naval reception of the Brazilian on his arrival at Norfolk and later the usual military turnout, exchange of visits with President Hoover and state dinner at the white house when he reached Washington were made—and published. It is only reasonable to suppose it all did not escape the eye of Dr. Olaya.

Trip To Boston

At any rate, the Colombian president-elect very soon found that business or pleasure or something called him to Boston. It was rumored that he would return by sea, arriving via Norfolk. And that being the case, the state department at once prepared plans for a suitable reception of a foreign dignitary of highest rank. Naval reception, military escort and all at once entered into the picture.

It so happened, however, that if the Colombian had in fact traveled back from Boston by sea, he would have reached Washington just about the same time as did Dr. Prestes.

Whether that caused the change in plan or not, it was changed and Dr. Olaya came by rail and was accorded all the prescribed honors.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Why Prohibition Is Best

Mr. Editor: We believe that prohibition is best for the following reasons: It will give America an exhalted honor and prestige as a great nation and a powerful influence for good throughout the world. It will add much to the moral fibre of the nation. It will protect and safeguard little children in their pursuit of a life of peace, prosperity and happiness. It will make many people self-respecting and industrious. It will make this nation a better place to live in for those that come to our shores. Therefore, for humanity itself and those of each and every rank we believe that prohibition is the common friend helper and uplifter of all.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Peter Wastes Sympathy

Give not of sympathy in haste,
For often it will go to waste.
—Old Mother Nature.

Peter Rabbit was sorry for Jerry Muskrat. Grandfather Frog had just informed Peter that Jerry's house in the Smiling Pool had been washed away in the spring flood. Peter had always admired that house. He had considered it a very fine house. He had always wondered that any one could build such a good house. Now, to find that that house was gone was something of a shock to Peter. Peter had said that it was too bad that Jerry Muskrat hadn't any home and Grandfather Frog had demanded to know who had said that Jerry had no home.

"Didn't you just tell me that Jerry's house was washed away?" Peter asked.

"Chug-a-rum! Of course I did!" replied Grandfather Frog.

"Well, isn't that just the same as telling me that Jerry hasn't any home?" demanded Peter

"It isn't the same thing at all. Chug-a-rum! It isn't the same thing at all," retorted Grandfather Frog. "I have never asked him but I know well enough that Jerry Muskrat has another home."

"Where?" demanded Peter.

"Didn't I just tell you that I have never asked him?" said Grandfather Frog crossly. "It is no business of mine where Jerry Muskrat's home is. I don't know where it is and I don't want to know where it is. But I do know that he has one."

Just then Jerry Muskrat himself appeared in that abrupt way of his.

"Where is it?" demanded Peter. "Is it up the Laughing Brook?"

He wasn't there and then he was there, right below where Peter was sitting. You see, he had come there under water and Peter hadn't seen him until suddenly he poked his head out of water. "Hello, Peter!" said Jerry.

"Hello, your own self!" replied Peter. "Oh, Jerry, I'm so sorry!"

Jerry blinked, as if he didn't understand. "What are you sorry for?" he asked.

"I'm sorry for you," replied Peter. "I'm ever so sorry for you."

Jerry Muskrat blinked more than ever. "That's nice of you, Peter," said he, "but I'm not sorry for myself, so I don't quite see why you are sorry for me."

"I'm sorry that you haven't any home," said Peter.

"Oh!" exclaimed Jerry. "What makes you think I haven't any home?"

"It was swept away in the spring flood, wasn't it?" inquired Peter in his turn.

"No," replied Jerry, and his eyes twinkled.

Peter's eyes flew open very wide. "Grandfather Frog says it was, and it isn't here any more," said he.

"Oh!" said Jerry, pretending that he was just beginning to understand. "You must mean my old house. That was swept away in the spring flood. But a house isn't necessarily a home. I've still got a home and a very good one, so you don't need to be sorry for me."

"Where is it?" demanded Peter. "Is it up the Laughing Brook?"

"That's telling," replied Jerry.

"I think you're fooling me," replied Peter somewhat crossly. "I've been all along the Laughing Brook and I haven't seen a sign of a house of yours. How can you have a house and not have it seen? Why, that old house of yours here in the Smiling Pool stood out just like the Big Rock."

"Fried Foods No Longer Distress Me," Says Young Man

MR. WILLIAM SHEFFIELD

"I had no idea that any medicine could do as much for me as Bon-Tone did," said Mr. William Sheffield, who resides at 22 Wells avenue, East Hartford, Conn., who is an officer of the East Hartford Community Bible Class, the largest Bible class in Connecticut. "As I am in constant contact with automobiles, the fumes from the gasoline would make me vomit every morning, but since taking Bon-Tone the fumes no longer bother me. My stomach has been giving me trouble for about four years. Everything I ate soured in my stomach, formed gas, which bloated me up tight as a drum, and gave me sharp pains in my right side, back and around my heart. It got so that I dreaded to eat, as I suffered so. Fried foods were just poison to me—I had constant headaches — and constant backaches, too, on account of the weak condition of my kidneys. Night rising prevented me from getting my proper rest—so that I always felt tired—I seemed to have no ambition for work or play—I got nervous worrying over my condition and lost weight.

"I was discouraged as I had tried about everything I knew of, but with little relief, and when the counterman at Long's Lunch on Main Street, Hartford, advised me to try Bon-Tone I was sort of skeptical, but thought it wouldn't hurt to try it. However, I was certainly surprised to find that before my first bottle was finished I was really beginning to feel better. My bowels and stomach were the first to show results. I am now on my sixth bottle and feel wonderful. I can eat fried foods without distress—I don't know what a headache or backache is now—and I sleep nine hours every night without a break. I have gained in strength weight and ambition, and recommend this medicine to everyone who is ailing."

The Bon-Tone Man is at Smith's Pharmacy, Norwich, Conn., explaining the merits of this tonic to crowds daily.

In its campaign to persuade the people of Germany to eat more rye bread, and thus save the German farmers, the ministry of agriculture proposed a regulation compelling the bakers to use 60 per cent. rye flour in all their wares. The bakers of the country, however, foreseeing the difficulty they would have in trying to sell fancy cakes and pastries made mostly of rye, rose up in denunciation. The following day the ministry of agriculture withdrew its proposal.

A History Of Connecticut Industry

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

Atlantic Carton Corporation, Norwich.

This company was organized in 1916 for the manufacture of folding paper cartons and kindred paper board articles. Specializing at first in the manufacture of grease proofed and moisture proofed packages, other lines soon developed, requiring, because of phenomenal growth, additional equipment and an enlarged floor area.

A large mill property, having approximated 300,000 sq. ft. of floor area was purchased in 1924 to which the factory was moved. It has a main factory manufacturing plant of modern construction along the tracks of the New Haven railroad This building is 358 ft. x 84 ft., two floors, of brick mill type construction with plenty of light and good ventilation.

The property is conveniently located in the Greeneville section of Norwich with a private siding on the New Haven railroad. Transportation facilities are adequate for incoming raw material and for outgoing manufactured products. A good percentage of the product of this company is shipped in carload lots throughout the country to nationally known consumers and a portion of the product reaches Canada and some of the European countries.

Cartons of various designs and shapes are manufactured by the Atlantic Carton corporation, sizes ranging from small boxes to hold razor blades to larger ones to hold baby carriages. Plain, unprinted boxes and multi-colored cartons are produced in large numbers by the most modern machinery, much of which is automatic in operation

This plant has a yearly production of over 500 million cartons.

Norwich was selected for the location of this industry because of its geographical position, being midway between two large markets—Boston and New York—and also for its close proximity to the raw material market. Quick transportation to the markets is of considerable importance and Norwich affords various connections to the main arteries of commerce.

The business was established by its present officers: Walter E. Turner, president; Albert M. VanWagenen, treasurer and general manager.

POETRY

The Betrayal

The house is burned, the trees around
Have nothing more to do
There is pathos in their plan
To give a pleasant view.

The elms that drew their branches up
To let the sunset by Stand surprised to see the waste
Of unseen amber sky.

The spruces on the northern side
Have black and honored scars;
They suffered when the house enrolled
With ancientest of stars.

So the green things taught to love
This footless plant called man
Are betrayed by wrathful foes
His yoke has dared to span.

But here and there forgiving weeds
Have done their best to hide
The cavern for forbidden flame
High in the chimney's side.

—Robert P. T. Coffin in Yale Review.

Rose Rosarum

Give me, O friend, the secret of thy heart
Safe in my breast to hide,
So that the leagues which keep our lives apart
May not our souls divide.

Give me the secret of thy life to lay
Asleep within mine own,
Nor dream that it shall mock thee any day
By any sign or tone.

Nay as in walking through some convent close,
Passing beside a well,
Oft have we thrown a red and wanted rose
To watch it as it fell;

Knowing that nevermore the rose shall rise
To shame us being dead;
Watching it spin and dwindle till it lies
At rest, a speck of red—

Thus, I beseech thee, down the silent deep
And darkness of my heart,
Cast thou a rose; give me a rose to keep
My friend, before we part.

For, as thou passest down thy gardenways,
Full many a blossom there
Groweth for thee; lilies and laden bays,
And rose and lavender

But now the darkling well one only rose
In all the year is shed;
And o'er that hill and secret wave it throws
A sudden dawn of red.

In the first month under the higher fares the number of street car passengers declined 14,600,000, or approximately 13 per cent.; the number of subway passengers fell off 2,400,000 or about 11 per cent., and the number of bus passengers dropped 2,800,000, or about 12 per cent. Revenues also declined, though no figures were given.

"I am not keeping chickens," he said. "But it is true that I have a chicken; it's a pet and I claim we have as much right to have it as a neighbor has to have a canary bird. It is a musical chicken and we keep her merely as a vocalist and interpreter of songs. When my wife plays on the piano or the violin the chicken sings. And she is off pitch much less than a lot of grand opera stars I've had to listen to. We call her Chicken Patti."

FURTHER GIFT OF $25,000 FOR NORTON MEMORIAL TOLD TO N. F. A. ALUMNI

Announcement that Miss Ella M. Norton of Washington street had contributed an additional sum of $25,000 to be used towards the erection of the Norton Memorial building at Norwich Free Academy, now in process of building, was made by Shepard B. Palmer, president of the corporators, at the annual reunion of the N. F. A. Alumni association Monday evening at Slater Memorial hall. This donation, the second to be generously made by Miss Norton for the same cause, was received by the large gathering of alumni of various classes, members of this year's graduating class and friends of the association, with prolonged applause.

Her first gift, a sufficient sum of money to be used for the erection of the building, which was to be known as "The Norton Memorial Building" and to be used as a health center, was announced at the 1929 meeting of the association. Since Miss Norton had contributed the money, which it was felt at that time would be sufficient to defray the expense of constructing the building, it was learned that the plans called for an additional sum of money for its completion. Mr. Palmer, with Principal Henry A. Tirrell and others, conferred with Miss Norton on the matter and later a check was received from her by the trustees of the Academy.

Following two pleasing selections by the Academy orchestra under direction of F[illegible]ic H. Cranston, the meeting was called to order by Charles V. Jang[illegible], a member of the executive committee, who presided in the absence of the president, Charles L. Stewart, who was unable to be present because of illness. The reports of the assistant secretary, Miss Alma Bowman, as read by Secretary Raymond B. Sherman, and of the treasurer, Raymond V. Congdon, as read by himself were approved. The treasurer reported that the association had an actual balance on hand of $741.89.

Election Of Officers.

The report of the nominating committee, comprising Harrison C. Noyes, H. J. Ferguson and R. E. Sherman, presented the following slate to serve for the ensuing year: President, Charles V. James; vice president, Albert J. Bailey; treasurer, Raymond V. Congdon; secretary, Benjamin H. Palmer; members of the executive committee for four years, Mrs. Henrietta Riese and Arthur E. Story. These officers were inducted into office when the secretary cast one ballot.

At this point the N. F. A. chorus rendered two numbers in beautiful voice under the able direction of Mr. Cranston, after which President Harrison C. Noyes of the class of 1910, which is the only class in the history of the Academy that has held reunions every five years since graduation, reported on the doings of the class and brought greetings from it. Mr. Noyes said "that the class members hoped to continue to hold reunions every five years and we do not see why the other classes do not do the same."

Upon motion of Mr. Palmer the secretary was instructed to send greetings from the association to the retiring president, Mr. Stewart, and then greetings from the graduating class of 1930 were brought to the association by its president, Ralph E. Gibbs, who was greeted with tremendous ovation.

Lieut. Peckham Speaks.

Lieut. Howard E. Peckham, a graduate of the class of 1914 and an instructor in engineering and mathematics for the past four years at West Point Academy, gave a brief, but interesting, address on different phases of cadet life at the academy, which he said "you have not seen in moving pictures or read in stories." In conclusion he said that the success of the present system of teaching at the Academy was attested by the graduates, not only as officers, but in their civil pursuits.

The presiding officer announced that for several years past it has been the custom of the association to appropriate a sum of money to be used in defraying the expenses of courses in music appreciation at the Academy and then introduced Henry J. LaFontaine of Norwich, who gave a fine exposition of the interesting points in the course.

Vote $250 For Music Course.

A resolution introduced by Albert J. Bailey and read by the secretary was to the effect that the association appropriate the sum of $250 for this purpose upon the condition that the trustees of the Academy contribute a like sum. It was so voted.

Chairman Palmer of the board of trustees made the announcement of the gift of $25,000 by Miss Norton for the new athletic building and also reported for Mrs. Elizabeth Brewster Davis on the Hutchinson Memrial gymnasium fund. He said that up to date the committee in charge had received $9,300 and this money will be turned over to the trustees to be used in the equipment of a room in the Norton Memorial building in memory of Prof. Hutchinson, deceased. A suitable bronze tablet in memory of the professor will also be placed in the building.

A letter was read from Howard C. Russ, president of the Norwich society of New York, in which he expressed his regrets for his inability to attend owing to a pressing business engagement. Mr. Russ wrote that the members of the Norwich society, many of whom are graduates of the Academy, were proud of the achievements of the school's athletic teams. Mr. Russ was to have given a brief address at this meeting.

Principal Henry A. Tirrell of the Academy spoke briefly, citing a number of instances of West Point precision and calling the attention of the gathering that it was a fine thing for a person to have a definite objective in life. He spoke of the crowded conditions at the school, of the new athletic building (health center) and of the constructive health program that is followed at the Academy.

Teacher Changes.

The following are the teacher changes, as announced by Prof. Tirrell: Those leaving, Misses Victoria Malmer, Elizabeth Smith and Marjorie Walker; those secured to serve the coming year, Mary C. Hauser, New Haven; Margaret McNamara, New London; Jane Jarusgin, Carlton D. Blanchard and Paul Bitgood, the last named of Danielson.

At the conclusion of a piano duet by the Misses Krauss and Glowacki, which was generously applauded, the meeting was adjourned for light refreshments and dancing in the school gymnasium. The music was furnished by Thumm's orchestra.

SYNAGOGUE PICNIC HAD CROWD AT GARDNER LAKE

More than 500 persons attended the first annual picnic of the Community synagogue held Sunday afternoon at the Strongin estate at Gardner lake, which proved to be a very delightful affair. The picnickers enjoyed the day in swimming, boating and other amusements, including a series of athletic events, prizes in which were won by Meyer Wolfman, Ben Krieger and B. Mandell. There was a concert programme by the Venetian string orchestra, which also furnished the music for dancing.

The success of the picnic was due to the untiring efforts of the committee in charge comprising Morris Sussman, chairman, I. M. Broneerwine, Louis Strongin, Louis Goldblatt, Borik Krieger, Benjamin Mandell, Louis Pollock, Abner Schwartz, J. R. Slosberg, H. Libby, H. J. Schatz, Alex Pasnik, Charles M. Gordon and U. Israelite. Those in charge of the booths were: Soda and ice cream, Yosef Gordon and Harold Sloberg; sandwiches, Mrs. L. Pollock and Mrs. E. Schatz; auctioneers, Alex Pasnik, H. J. Schatz, B. Krieger, B. Mandell, L. Pollock, cashiers, Abner Schwartz, J. R. Sloberg, A. Ableman, Rabbi Lave Becker.

Those attending were transported to and from the lake in trucks and cars furnished by the Shetucket Coal and Lumber Co., Schwartz Bros., Norwich Hudson-Essex Co., and M. Fox. Charles M. Gordon was in charge of the transportation.

SCOUT EXECUTIVE BOARD RULES ON EFFICIENCY CONTEST

At the regular meeting of the executive board of the Eastern Connecticut council, Boy Scouts of America, held Monday night at the chamber of commerce rooms with H. D. Larrabee, president of the council presiding, the recommendations of the deputy commissioners were approved and adopted which means that Troops 1, 5, 7, and 12 having maintained the highest standards in the contest will receive equal recognition. In making the decision to make awards to all four of these troops, the board pointed out that the purpose of the contest was to raise standards and not to set troop against troop in the mere scoring of points. In the final scoring these troops prove to be separated by a very few points. The award will probably consist of a dozen guard ropes to each troop.

An interesting discussion of the budget ensued with the adoption of a plan to take care of the increased demands upon the council for supervision with its attendant expense.

The first airship to land in the vicinity of Norwich is due to reach here at 7 o'clock this (Tuesday) evening and make a mooring at the field on Gager's farm on the southerly slope of Mohegan hill on the Norwich-Montville turnpike.

This will be New England's own airship, the Neponset of New Bedford, owned by the New England Airship corporation, America's first and only privately owned commercial airship, which its owners are sending out to call on a hundred or more New England cities and towns this summer.

The airship was at Willimantic Monday and will fly here Tuesday, remaining over until 7 o'clock Wednesday night, when it will proceed to New London, it has been chartered by a private party to fly over the Yale-Harvard boat races on the Thames on Thursday.

A ground crew of 20 men accompanies the ship and its landing is made possible by the use of a portable mooring mast which is mounted on a truck, along with a complete electric generating plant. Through the use of this mobile base and mast, something never before attempted, the dirigible is able to land with facility in places where otherwise no landing would be possible.

The ship is 133 feet long, 38 feet in diameter, has 86,000 cubic feet gas capacity and uses non-explosive, non-inflammable helium gas to inflate the bag, which makes this type of ship the safest of all aircraft. It has two 85-horsepower motors, which give it a speed of about 65 miles an hour. Its fuel tank holds 100 gallons of gasoline, giving a range of 500 miles without refueling.

While the Neponset is here, its owners will welcome the public to visit and inspect it and will have a staff on the field at all times to welcome visitors and answer all questions, as well as offering the possibilities of a ride in the air. Arthur J. Wadsworth, president of the airship corporation, is in charge of the ship on its visit here.

THREE AUTO CASES IN BOROUGH COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

STAFFORD SPRINGS, June 16.—Three cases were disposed of by Judge William H. Heald in the borough court Monday morning. Shaheen Haddad, of Willimantic, paid a fine of $17 and costs of $11.35 on charges of not having any mirror or rear view reflector on his truck and for attempting to bribe the officer who made the arrest. Haddad was apprehended in Willington Friday afternoon and he offered Officer Stevens $8, it is said, if he would settle the case without summoning him to court. Lieutenant Russel I. Harmon, of the local state police barracks, testified at the hearing Monday morning that Haddad appeared at the barracks Monday afternoon and offered money to the lieutenant if he would fix the case so that it might be disposed of without court procedure. The lieutenant told Mr. Haddad that he had better answer the summons and appear in court Monday morning.

Silvio DeCicco, whose father operates a gasoline filling station in South Willington and who is only 17 years old, pleaded nolo to the charges of operating a motor vehicle without having filed proof of financial responsibility with the motor vehicle commissioner and with failure to give a signal when he turned his car into the driveway near the filling station and was fined $2 and costs, a total of $13.35. Following the DeCicco car was another car operated by Mason H. Parker, of Mansfield, who was charged with operating with defective brakes. Mr. Parker pleaded not guilty. It appeared in evidence that as Mr. DeCicco's car was about to make the left turn into the driveway near the filling station, Parker's car and his came together. There was some conflicting evidence as to whether Parker's car ran into DeCicco's or DeCicco's car ran into the Parker car as it attempted to pass. State Policeman Dailey testified that there were marks on the road indicating that Parker had applied his brakes for a distance of 177 feet before the collision. Mr. Parker claimed that the brakes had been examined on June 7 and were found to be in good condition and his testimony was corroborated by Adelbert Squire, mechanic at the local Ford station, who tested the brakes several days ago. Officer Dailey stated that after the accident he examined the brakes and found them defective. Judge Heald found Parker guilty of operating with defective brakes and imposed a fine of $5 and costs, upon which decision Mr. Parker took an appeal to the September term of the superior court.

Calumet's Double-Action carries your cake through to a triumphant finish!

MAKE THIS TEST—See for yourself how Calumet Baking Powder acts twice to make your baking better. Put two level teaspoons of Calumet into a glass, add two teaspoons of water, stir rapidly five times and remove the spoon. The tiny, fine bubbles will rise slowly, half filling the glass. This is Calumet's first action—the action that takes place in your mixing bowl.

After the mixture has entirely stopped rising, stand the glass in a pan of hot water on the stove. In a moment, a second rising will start and continue until the mixture rises to the top of the glass. This is Calumet's second action—the action that takes place in your oven. Make this test today. See Calumet's Double-Action which protects your baking from failure.

BECAUSE of its double-action Calumet Baking Powder is the best possible protection against the sad things that sometimes happen to cakes in the oven. For Calumet not only starts the leavening of your cake in the mixing bowl, but by a second action in the oven, carries on that rising to a triumphant finish, even though you may not be able to regulate your oven temperature accurately.

And biscuits, muffins, quick breads, too, all have a delightful lightness—a fine texture—when baked with Calumet. Bake a Calumet cake or muffins today—see for yourself why Calumet has become the most popular baking powder in the world!

Only One Level Teaspoon of Calumet to a Cup of Sifted Flour!

That's the usual Calumet proportion. Be sure to follow it even though you may have been using nearly twice as much with other baking powders. You'll be delighted with this economy! And more than delighted with the results Calumet gives you. Perfect texture! Perfect flavor!

All baking powders are required by law to be made of pure, wholesome ingredients. But not all are alike in their action. Not all will give you equally fine results in your baking. Calumet is scientifically made of exactly the right ingredients, in exactly the right proportions to produce perfect leavening action—Double-Action. Get a can of Calumet from your grocer today. Notice Calumet comes in full-sized one pound cans.

You'll surely want to try the wonderful recipes in the free new Calumet Baking Book. Novel dishes galore—easy-to-make, sure-to-succeed—prepared by experts. Write today to the Calumet Baking Powder Company, (Inc.), 4100 Fillmore Street, Chicago, Ill.

DAD AND HIS GUEST DOING THE TOWN

While mother is preparing meals to be served upon their return to the house (with a tale of woe about the insufferable heat).

Of course mother has been cool in the kitchen (which is always the coolest room in the house during the hot weather?)

But mother was wise, and bought one of the little sleeveless dresses which are selling so freely at $1.98, $2.98 and $3.98.

In the evening she will be all dolled up with another sleeveless dress, perhaps with a little jacket to match, for which she paid $10.50, $13.50, or $16.50.

And she bought them at the store where quality is always the first consideration, because "cheapness" of itself is always extravagant.

TWINE LEADS FIELD IN THE FIRST ROUND OF BRITISH OPEN, JONES HAS 73

HOYLAKE, Eng., June 16.—(AP)—William Thomas Twine, tall young professional golfer from the Bromley and Keckley club in County Kent, shot a record 68 over the Wallasey course today to lead a big field of nearly 300 in the first qualifying round of the British open championship.

Leo Diegel, Archie Compston and Jim Bradbeer, a London veteran, were tied for second place with scores of 70, but Diegel and Compston played the course of the Royal Liverpool club, over which the championship proper will be fought out. This course is at least two strokes harder than Wallasey.

Until Compston, a late starter, came in with his 70, Diegel led the half of the field playing at the Royal Liverpool. Diegel and Compston equalled the course record.

Bobby Jones returned a score of 73 over the Royal Liverpool, one stroke above par. George Von Elm played Wallasey in 71. This, too, was one stroke over par. Horton Smith and Don Moe, also assigned to Wallasey today, returned scores of 75.

MacDonald Smith and "Long Jim" Barnes had the same score—77—Smith playing at Wallasey and Barnes at Royal Liverpool.

All the Americans, professional and amateur, have a good chance to qualify, although Joshua Crane of Boston and F. C. Stevens, Jr., Los Angeles, who had 77 and 79, respectively, may have to do as well tomorrow as they did today. Estimates tonight fixed 158 as the probable figure needed to qualify after the final 18 holes tomorrow.

Tomorrow the courses and starting times will be reversed.

Horton Smith, one of the last out at Wallasey today, will tee off early at Hoylake. Jones played during the noon hour today and there will be little change in his starting time. He moves over to the other course.

Douglas Grant, American living in London, played well and returned a score of 74.

The field today was cosmopolitan, with players from Greece, Africa, Cuba, France, Italy, Spain and other countries.

Leo Diegel, Agua Caliente, Mexico, 37-33—70.

(*) George Von Elm, Detroit, 39-32—71.

(*) Robert T. Jones, Jr., Atlanta, 36-37—73.

(*) Don Moe, Portland, Ore., 39-36—75.

Horton Smith, New York, 40-35—75.

James Braness, New York, 39-38—77.

(*) Joshua Crane, Boston, 38-39—77.

(*) F. C. Stevens, Jr., Los Angeles, 40-39—79.

DETROIT, June 16—(AP)—The Detroit Tigers won the rubber game of the series with the Philadelphia Athletics, 9 to 8.

The A's pounded Waite Hoyt for four runs in the third and four in the fifth, but Elon Hogsett pitched fine ball after Hoyt was driven from the mound, and Tiger sluggers put on batting rallies in the closing innings, tying the score in the eighth and scoring the winning tally in the ninth.

Alexander hit a home run with two on in the fifth. Roy Johnson hit two homers over the left field wall. The score:

Shyma Club After Games

The Shyma club is without a game for Saturday and would like to play an out of town game either with New London or Montville teams. The Shymas would like to arrange for twilight games to be played at Taftville. For arrangements call the Shyma club 742.

Scene—The office of one of our town officials.

Characters—Woman who wants to dig out some family history; the official and his stenographer.

Enter woman who sees official dictating to his stenographer.

Woman: "Good morning, I hope I am not disturbing you but I would so like to find out about a Mr. Brown who lived here about 1803 or '10. Do you mind if I look through the records?"

Official: "Oh no, madam, go right ahead. They are in that case over there. Now, Miss Letters, where were we?"

Woman: "Did you say there were in this case? There are so many books I am sure I don't know where to begin."

Official: "Yes, madam, those are the records of all the people in the town for the past 150 years. All right, Miss Letters, we will continue."

Woman: "I hate to bother you, but could you get me volume No. 3 up there on that top shelf. I can hardly reach it."

Official: "Just a minute, madam, until I get the step-ladder. There, here it is. Now, Miss Letters, will you read what you have taken, please."

Woman: "Pardon me, but would you be so kind as to get me volume No. 5. I'm not sure what I'm looking for is in this volume. I know you're awfully busy but I must get this done today."

Official: "Here it is madam, is there any other you would like?"

Woman: "No, thanks, I guess this will be enough."

Official: "Now, Miss Letters, we will go on with the dictation. Just where were we when we were interrupted?"

Woman: "I wonder if I could borrow a pencil and paper. I've found something I would like to copy. Thank you so much."

Official: Miss Letters take . . . .

Woman: "This is not the Brown family I'm looking for, it must be in volume seven. Would you mind getting it for me?"

Official: "Hadn't I better get them all down for you? It might save time, you know."

Woman: "That would be a good idea."

Official: "There you are, there's the whole lot and you can find the Brown family in those I hope. There, Miss Letters, maybe we can finish the letter now."

Woman: "Oh, my, just look here. There, doesn't that say that John Brown was tried for horse-stealing in the town court?"

Official: "Yes, it does."

Woman: "Well that's what I wanted to find. Now that woman can't high-hat me when she knows I know about this. Good morning." (Exit woman with a self satisfied smile and without even a thank you for the trouble by the official.)

Official: (heaving sigh of relief) "Thank heaven she's gone. Perhaps we can get something done." (Goes to dictating letter again).

Woman: (returning) "I beg your pardon, but would you be willing to swear to it that that record is correct. You know I wouldn't want to get into trouble."

Official: "Yes, madam, I'd swear to, at or with if it will help any. Good day."

RED SOX BEAT WHITE SOX FOR SECOND TIME

CHICAGO, June 16—(AP)—Ted Lyons' efforts directed toward a tenth victory were not successful today and the Boston Americans made it two straight over the White Sox, 6 to 3.

Two wild pitches in the seventh inning, one of them a "fluke", when the ball, made slippery by a slight rainfall, oozed from his hand, led to Lyons' defeat. The Red Sox built three runs about them and two walks, a single by Narleskey and Oliver's double.

Lyons gave 8 hits and the White Sox reached Jack Russell for nine. It was Lyons' sixth defeat as against nine victories this season. The score:

GRIMES TRADED TO CARDINALS FOR SHERDEL AND FRANKHOUSE

BOSTON, June 16—(AP)—The Boston Braves today exchangeod Burleigh Grimes, veteran National league pitcher, for "Wee Willie" Sherdel and Fred Frankhouse of the St. Louis Cardinals pitching staff.

The deal was completed by Emile Fuchs, president of the Braves, after a telephone conservation with Sam Breadon, owner of the St. Louis team, who was in St. Louis. Fuchs had just returned from New York where he had been conferring with "Gabby" Street, manager of the Cards.

Grimes is a high salaried pitcher, his pay for pitching being estimated at from $15,000 to $20,000 a year. He came to Boston this season from Pittsburgh, where he had been a holdout, in exchange for Percy Lee Jones, a pitcher, and an unnamed sum of money. Since joining the Braves he has started and won but three games and lost five games. He was knocked from the box today by the Cincinnati Reds.

Sherdel is regarded as a steady member of the Cardinals hurling staff and Frankhouse has been successful as a relief pitcher. Sherdel, who is 35 years old, is looked upon by the Braves managament as a pitcher wise in the ways of the majors through his many years as a big leaguer and Frankhouse as a comer who should develop with plenty of regular work which is assured him by the present condition of the tribal hurling staff.

SHIRES TRADED TO SENATORS FOR BRAXTON AND TATE

WASHINGTON, June 16—(AP)—Art Shires, Chicago first baseman, will come to the Washington Nationals on a trade announced tonight by Clark Griffith, president of the local club, in which Garland Braxton, pitcher, and Catcher Benny Tate will go to the White Sox.

Griffith said Shires will not be given the first base assignment regularly as long as the veteran Joe Judge is able to play. However the latter is out of the game temporarily with a "Charley-horse."

"Judge is still the best baseman in the league," the Nationals' chief said, adding that Shires is to be used principally as a reserve player and pinch hitter. Griffith said no cash was involved in the transaction.

Braxton has seen service principally as a relief pitcher while Tate has seen little service as a regular during his long stay with the Washington team.

SHIRES TRADED TO STRENGTHEN THE CLUB

CHICAGO, June 16—(AP)—Manager Donie Bush of the White Sox tonight said Arthur (The Great) Shires, Sox first baseman, was traded to Washington to Strengthen Charles A. Comiskey's club, and for "no other reason." His relations with the once-verbose athlete, he said, were "the best in the world."

GRIMM'S HOMER IN 9TH WINS FOR THE CUBS

NEW YORK, June 16—(AP)—A five run rally in the ninth, terminated by Grimm's home run with the bases loaded, gave the Cubs the 5 to 5 decision over the New York Giants today.

Grim's blow, coming after the Cubs had tied the score, nullified the four homers made by the Giants off Charlie Root in the first three innings. Terry, Jackson, Allen and Leach drove out the circuit drives while Hogan added another in the last of the ninth to give New York all of its runs on homers.

Carl Hubbell and Charlie Root, after sticky starts, settled down and held the hitters well in check after the third inning. Hubbell weakened in the ninth, however, Stephenson's single scoring the tieing run and rimm's four-base fly cleaning the bases. The score:

PHELPS PITCHES ROBINS TO WIN OVER CARDINALS

BROOKLYN, June 16,—(AP)—Behind the steady pitching of Ray Phelps, the league leading Brooklyn Robins defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 5 to 3 today. Phelps lost a shut out victory in the final inning when High's line single through the box injured the lanky Robin's pitcher's hand and the Cards were on to scorg three runs.

Babe Herman led Brooklyn's 12-hit attack with a double and two singles in four trips to the plate, driving in three runs. Johnson was the starting pitcher for the Cards but retired in the fifth in favor of Lindsey, who was followed by Frankhouse. The score:

SHARE VALUES IN THE NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE AT NEW LOW LEVELS FOR YEAR

NEW YORK, June 16—(AP)—The world-wide period of deflation asserted itself forcefully on the financial markets today. Prices of stocks and commodities melted away rapidly in the severest liquidation of the year.

Share values on the New York Stock Exchange broke precipitately, plunging literally hundreds of issues, including many of the list's bulwarks, to new lows for the year. Wheat, corn and cotton were sharply depressed. Only the high grade bonds showed any steadiness and the general tone of that market was irregular. New York bank stocks were weak.

The volume of stock trading gave a clue to the sources of the selling, for with sales totalling more than 5,600,000 shares it was apparent that professional operators were not responsible for all of the liquidation. Large holders of equity securities had obviously become discouraged not only with the market's recent performances, but with the prospects for as prompt a business recovery as had been thought likely. Quotable comment by prominent bankers was, of course, withheld but one prominent financier expressed the view that over-production was still an evil to be dealt with.

The prospects that second quarter earnings, which will be appearing in another fortnight, would be disappointing added to the general pessimism in speculative circles. Doubtless the tariff was seized upon by the bears as a selling point, but the part that this legislation played in today's decline was difficult to determine. Of perhaps more influence was the weakness of grain in the Chicago market. Wheat closed 3 cents lower and corn was off 1 cents. Cotton slumped $1.75 to $2.55 a bale on the New York exchange

Although some of the stock selling seemed to be coming from important holders, brokerage houses reported a fairly lively business on the buying side. Leading stocks were taken on the scale down by large interests, including investment trusts that had been pursuing a policy of watchful waiting. However, the forces favoring the decline were not to be denied and the market closed at the bottom.

The weakness of the list during the morning was relieved early in the afternoon by the appearance of support, but this was quickly overcome in the final dealings and net losses in the active high grade shares ranged from 2 to 10 points, and to 20 or more in others. Seasoned investment issues were conspicuously weak.

It was a hard day for such seasoned veterans as American Telephone, U. S. Steel, American Can, N. Y. Central, Atchison, Consolidated Gas, Standard Oil of New Jersey and Westinghouse Electric. The last named, with Telephone, Steel and Can, sank to a new low and net declines in the stocks mentioned ran from 4 to 10 points. Westinghouse closed 11 1-4 lower.

More spectacular breaks from 20 to 22 points, appeared in Allied Chemical, American Machine and Foundry, J. I. Case, Peoples Gas and Worthington Pump, while Vanadium, Houston Oil and Auburn Auto were off 12 to 15 at the close.

The heaviness of the commodities, particularly the grains, was disconcerting. Buying power of a large part of the poulace is affected by the prices of these staples, and with July wheat breaking to nearly 95 cents at its low point, the stock market was quick to make sympathetic response.

Money again eased. Short term time loans, were cut half of one per cent to the lowest in several years. It was reported that the New York Federal Reserve rank had reduced its buying rate on short term bills by 1-8, and at least one prominent acceptance dealer cut its bid price by the same figure on 90 day paper.

Crude rubber, coffee and sugar joined the decline in the other commodities. Rubber futures made new 1930 lows, while sugar, under liquidation by Cuban houses which apparently were selling on the tariff news, under liquidation by Cuban houses which apparently were selling on the tariff news, declined to the lowest levels of the season in nearly all positions. The close in this staple, however, was fairly steady, at net losses of 5 to 7 points. Coffee eased 11 to 21 points.

Final quotations on Chicago wheat disclosed breaks of 2 7-8 to 3 1-4 cents a bushel. Corn lost 2 to 2 1-2 cents.

Foreign exchanges eased. Sterling sagged slightly, but the Spanish peseta dropped several points.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, June 16—(AP)—The listed bond market gave one of its most ragged performances of the year today, when the weakness of stocks triumphed over easy money conditions to cause wide fluctuations.

Selling of stock privilege issues—convertible and warrant bonds—was heavy and several sank to the lowest level of the year. Best grade bonds in the strictly investment domestic list showed the narrowest fluctuations and were generally steady, but the rest were irregular, and one and two point losses were common. Foreign bonds and United States governments held their ground.

Much of the selling was ascribed to necessity occasioned by demands for further protection of stock market accounts. A constructive factor which bolstered many of the prime investment issues was the further easing of time money rates on short maturities, the reductions establishing the lowest rates of the year. Call money remained at 2 1-2 per cent.

The influence of the weakness in stocks was evident in the price movement of some of the most actively traded convertible and warrant bonds. New 1930 lows were established by Atchison 4 1-2s, off 1 5-8; and International Telephone 4 1-2s off 1 1-4. American Telephone 4 1-2s lost 2 1-2; St. Paul 5s sagged 2-4 to equal the 1930 low; General Theatres 6s, 3-4; Philadelphia Reading Coal and Iron 6s, 3; Anglo-Chile Nitrate Warrant 7s, 2; Pathe warrant 6s, 2; Walworth warrants 6 1-2s, 4 5-8, and Warner Brothers Pictures 6s, 1 1-4.

The steadiness of legal issues of railroads was in sharp contrast with the sectionary turn the convertible issues of the same companies took. The fluctuations among secondary rails was more marked. Chicago and Eastern Illinois 5s broke 3 1-2 points to a new low for the year.

There were more signs of easing among utilities. The loss in the International Telephone convertible 4 1-2 was duplicated by the debenture 5, which was close to the low of the year on the movement.

Among industrials, a heavy turnover took place in the National Dairy 5 1-4 which lost 1-2 point, to touch 97, the low of the year. Richfield Oil 6s, International Hydro Electric 6s, Cuna Cane Products 6s, Pan-American Petroleum 6s, Porto Rican Tobacco 6s, were at the lowest levels of the year, yielding one to two points.

Foreign issues were active and steady. South American governments were firm. Chile Bank 6s made a new 1930 high. Turnover in German 5 1-2s was reduced and the price eased 3-8 to 99, the offering price.

Liberty 1st 4 1-4s, and Liberty 4th 4 1-4s showed strength and enhanced their high price of the year.

A depressing factor in the market today was the huge total of new offerings with which the week started. They included the $60,000,000 Union Gulf corporation 5 per cent bond issue which was oversubscribed.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, June 16.—(AP)—Disturbed by stock market weakness and by much talk of probable foreign retaliation against United States agricultural products, wheat prices today fell as much as 4c a bushel. All other grain values collapsed with wheat, breaking the season's new record, and in some cases overturning figures that went back for many years—July wheat, for example, plunging down below any point heretofore touched since 1914 and rye since 1900. The day's lowest prices were simultaneous with announcement that the new tariff bill had reached the white house for President Hoover's promised signature.

Closing quotations on wheat were nervous, 2 3-4—3 1-2c a bushel lower than Saturday's finish. Corn closed 1 7-8—2 1-8c down, oats 3-8—1c off, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 37c.

Heavy general selling that has been a feature of the wheat market of late came quickly into prominence again today the moment trading opened. Sharp downturns in Liverpool wheat quotations had preceded the start of business here, and there were also dispatches at hand telling of further rains in Canada and the American northwest beneficial to the spring wheat crop. Of still greater significance apparently to the average trader was the fact that President Hoover had made known his intention to sign the new tariff bill, and that in various quarters opinions were being expressed the result would be further tightening up of European import duties on wheat from the United States.

Despite the ensuing urgent pressure to sell wheat future deliveries, the trading pit gave no evidence of any such excitement as sometimes accompanies an unusual downward sweep of values. Lack of confidence on the part of buyers and a consequent dearth of orders to purchase was given by some observers as the chief characteristic of the trading. General uncertainty prevailed as to whether prospective world supply and demand conditions had yet reached a point that would afford an adequate basis for purchases on an extensive scale. Friends of higher prices vainly pointed out that wheat today was down nearly 13c a bushel compared with a year ago, and that July delivery of wheat at Kansas City representing the new crop now being harvested in the southwest had fallen to below 90c a bushel, contrasting acutely with the farmer's old-time ideal of $1.

Corn and other grain went swiftly downhill, carried along by the momentum of wheat. For the first time in a long while, corn prices were in the "sixties," December delivery which stands for the 1930 crop, being quoted at as low as 68 5-8c a bushel. Oats were also weak despite reports that the oats crop is now promising a smaller yield than was expected.

Although hog values much of the time today were steady to strong, provisions were unable to withstand the effect of grain weakness.

A COLD CELLAR FOR YOUR HOME

A cold cellar, or vegetable closet, is a handy apartment to have in any house. Moreover, virtually any home may have one, impossible as that may seem at first. For example, there is the space geneath the rear veranda—or the front veranda for that matter. It would have to be excavated, of course, and walled up. Then some sort of wall would have to be built between the main cellar and the cold cellar. Possibly a bit of wall would have to be constructed to keep out the outside air.

All this doesn't involve a tremendous amount of expense, and the satisfaction which comes with owning a cold closet is more than enough to offset the initial expense. Don't forget, either, that once this work is done there is no cost whatever for upkeep. The cellar should be closed in as snugly as possible to keep the cellar heat from penetrating. The dirt floor should be left uncovered. Then cut through a small window which can be opened or closed as needs require. It need not be more than a few inches square and should be set high in the wall.

KITCHEN CURTAIN TEXTILES VARIED

Of curtain textiles for the kitchen there seems to be no end; they include water-proof percale and gingham, cheviot, chambray linen and cotton in linen weave.

With the advantages of durable, scrubable colors, appealing designs, labor-saving devices and step-saving arrangements, comfort and beauty may be part of the home manager's daily life in her kitchen, to a degree almost unknown in grandmother's time.

THE FALL GARDEN

Many gardens are started with enthusiasm in early spring, but with the coming of midsummer efforts are relaxed and the garden looks dilapidated. But not so with the real gardener says The American Home. He mops his brow, hitches up his belt, digs in for the second half of the outdoor season and soon has his reward. There are plants to be staked, weeding, thinning, watering and spraying all to be done if the garden is to look attractive all summer. The sweet peas and dahlias require liquid manure, and the tea roses should be mulched with grass clippings to keep moisture in the ground. The rose bushes that have stopped blooming should be pruned back about six inches, and if the weather is favorable you may have a second period of bloom before frost. To gather one or two roses in early December is ample reward for the effort expended.

MODERNIZING WORKS TWO WAYS

Modernizing the old home is not only the wise thing to do from a living and economic standpoint, but also as a matter of civic pride and beautification it is a most praiseworthy and valuable project.

ATTRACTIVE HOUSE AT EAST GREAT PLAIN

One of the most rapidly developing sections of the town is that at East Great Plain where many new houses have been erected and others are in the process of construction. The above is one of the most recent houses to be completed and was built and owned by Anthony Banas, contractor and builder. The house is on the New London turnpike just north of the East Great Plain school. It is a very attractive house set high above the street with a terraced lawn and cement walk and steps leading to the street.

The exterior is very attractive in wide colonial clapboards stained a deep brown. There is a small porch in front and another porch in the rear. The interior is well finished and every modern convenience has been built into the house.

The large living room extends across the entire front and is very spacious and well arranged. The floor is of oak and the walls are finished in hard plaster. The lighting fixtures are of antique gold. The dining room is to the rear of the living room and corresponds in general finish to the living room. The kitchen is of good size with plenty of light. This room is finished in green tile and white plaster. There are two built-in cabinets and a built-in ironing board. Plenty of closet room is another feature of the kitchen.

On the second floor are three bedrooms, one a large double room and two smaller ones. The bathroom is in green and white tile with porcelain fixtures.

The house is heated by steam and the plumbing is of brass throughout.

NORMAN-FRENCH TYPE POPULAR, ATTRACTIVE

Of all the various styles of architecture now being drawn upon by people of discrimination who are building homess, the Norman-French seems to be the most popular.

Working in this style, a certain picturesqueness of outline combined with a pleasant variety in the diverse materials used gives a house both interesting form and unusual wall textures.

Whether round, octagonal or square, the tower is the principal characteristic of the Norman houses.

As the tower form allows a good place to have both the entrance hall and the staircase to the second floor there is no great additional expense entailed.

The square tower, however, is the most economical of the three types. This is the style which has been selected to grace the house illustrated.

In this instance both the main entrance and the service entrance open from the first story of the tower.

The service entrance is concealed from view on the front of the house by a woven wood fence which also hides the service yard.

The living room door is at the right when the house is gained through the main entrance. This is a large room, extending the entire depth of the residence and taking up over half its width.

Windows pierce three of the walls and an ample fireplace is centrally located on the fourth. As the kitchen is situated on the other side of this fireplace wall, the same chimney can be used for both fireplace and cook-stove.

Both dining room and kitchen have windows on two sides, assuring cross-ventilation.

In the upper story are three bedrooms and two baths. Each bedroom has windows on two sides and a large closet. Two linen closets open from the hall.

The cost of this house will vary in different sections of the country from $11,000 to $13,000.

NEW LONDON WOMAN FINED ON TWO LIQUOR LAW CHARGES

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, June 16. — Alice Marks, colored, of 11 Pearl street, was presented in the police court this morning, charged with violation of the liquor law on two counts, keeping with intent to sell and possession. She was fined $450 and costs. Mabel Cooper, married and residing in Hartford; George Wesley, George Cross, and Percy G. Borland, all colored, were charged with frequenting, but upon recommendation of Prosecuting Attorney Max Boyer, the charges against them were nolled. The Marks woman, who has a long police court record for various offenses, has been the proprietress of the drinking resort but a comparatively short time. Numerous complaints had been made to the police because of the many men and women entering and departing from the house during the night and early morning hours and a search warrant was issued by Judge Daniel M. Cronin and the place was raided Saturday night.

Thomas E. Nelson and his wife, residing at 79 Garfield avenue, were presented, the former charged with breach of the peace and the latter with breach of the peace and intoxication. The cases were continued until the 28th inst. Nelson, who is a machinist's mate stationed at the submarine base, went to his home Sunday night about 7:30 o'clock. His wife had been drinking. A quarrel resulted because of the woman's condition and after a harsh exchange of words a fight was started. The screams of the woman and the wrecking of the household furniture and smashing of windows attracted neighbors and a call was sent to the police.

Walter Paterson, watchman, employed at the state pier, was charged with driving while under the influence of liquor and was fined $100 and costs. He was arrested on Main street Sunday afternoon. The manner in which he guided his auto caused other drivers to use their best skill to avoid a collision and while Peterson's car was going from one side of the road to the other, State Police Officer John Smith happened along. He observed the manner in which Peterson was driving and commanded him to drive to the curb and stop.

Leo Khtikian, 104 St. James place, Springfield, Mass., was charged with violation of the city ordinance which prohibits the using of an automobile for a bathhouse. He pleaded guilty to the violation and was fined $5 and costs. Khtikian spent the day in New London Sunday and during the afternoon went to Ocean Beach. He observed the large number of swimmers enjoying the bathing and decided to indulge in a swim. Instead of renting a bathhouse, Khtikian went to his automobile and was in the act of disrobing when he was discovered by Patrolman Albert Iverson and arrested.

Andrew Pedro, 19 1-2 Mitchell court, was charged with breach of the peace and his case was continued until the 28th inst. Pedro went to the home of his sister-in-law, 619 Bank street, Saturday night and quarreled with the woman. The woman made complaint to the police and Pedro was arrested several hours later by Patrolman George Bruhne.

Max Soltz, 291 Montauk avenue, was charged with parking in a restricted area and driving without a license in his possession. The former count was nolled, but on the latter charge a fine of $5 and costs was imposed.

R. A. Reynolds, Richmond, Va., was charged with failing to stop at an automatic danger signal, corner of Bank street and Montauk avenue. He did not present himself in court and his bond of $15 was declared forfeited.

Berareino Petrucci, 36 Truman street, was charged with a similar offense and was fined $5 and costs.

Several automobile drivers were charged with various violations of the traffic laws and as none of the drivers appeared in court their bonds of $2 each were declared forfeited.

FIRE CAUSED $20,000 LOSS AT SUMMER COLONY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, June 16. — Fire visited Hawks Nest, a summer colony located near Sound View today and before the blaze, the worst in the history of the colony had been subdued by tons of water, one cottage was razed, the damage being estimated at close to $20,000. The fire completely destroyed six of the cottages. They were owned by H. P. Garvin, Hartford; Frederick C. Burnham, Hartford and Edward Ladd and S. H. Crane, Springfield, Mass. Garvan will suffer the greatest loss for he owned three of the cottages, partially insured. He estimates his loss at fully $5,000.

All of the cottages were occupied. The fire originated in one of the Garvan cottages, occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Streeter of Windsor. Mr. Streeter had started for the depot to board a train and Mrs. Streeter accompanied him a short distance. When she was returning to the cottage she discovered that it was a mass of flames. The cottage was located in a cluster of summer homes, and fanned by a brisk wind the fire spread rapidly and quickly communicated to the other cottages. Assistance was obtained from New London, Niantic, Saybrook, and Waterford, the Niagara pumper being dispatched from this city. When the New London company arrived a line of hose was stretched to the water's edge and tons of water pumped onto the burning cottages. The last of the cottages to be attacked was razed in order to check the flames and had this not been done, there is no telling how many additional cottages would have been destroyed.

Mrs. Harold Kallmeyer and infant daughter, 18 Mountain avenue; Mrs. J. Dayton Eaton, Groton; Mrs. Lester Eldridge, 10 Bulkeley place; Mrs. Alonga Huntley and infant daughter, 329 Broad street; Miss May Sizer, 11 Crescent street; Miss Anna Robishaw, 205 Shaw street; Gloria Munsch, 962 Bank street; Mrs. William O'Brien and infant daughter, 246 Colman street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital were discharged Sunday and today.

William Setari, 32, of 21 Ann street, died Sunday night at the Mitchell ward of Lawrence-Memorial hospital and where he had been a patient but a few days. He is survived by a wife, four children and one sister. Mrs. Setari had been employed several years by the Ideal Coat & Towel company as manager.

FIRM STAND AGAINST COMMERCE HIGH SCHOOL

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, June 16—The city council this evening again took a firm stand against the continuance of the high school of Commerce as a separate institution. This action came about on submission by the board of school visitors of resolutions passed last week. Resolutions accused the council of interferring with and dictating to the board, but acceded to the desire of the city council to withhold appropriations for the school of Commerce.

The resolutions asked if the same instruction was to be given in the William Memorial Institute as was given in the high school of Commerce.

Councilor Miner defended the action of the city council and said it was justified in its attitude toward the school of Commerce. He denied that it was demoralizing to the educational system.

The school board is to discontinue its plans for a commerce school at the end of the school year.

In replying to the resolutions Mr. Miner accused the school board of wrongfully representing the case.

E. K. Mansfield, 85 North Broadway, White Plains, N. Y., made complaint to the police late today that a house his wife is the owner of and which is located at 479 Ocean avenue, near Pacific street, has been damaged of late, for many windows have been smashed. Automobile Patrol Officer Clarence Martin was sent to the house and his investigation revealed 40 lights of glass smashed. It was also revealed that the damaged had been occasioned by three mischievous boys, whose ages range from 7 to 8, and who reside in the neighborhood. The parents of the youths were informed of the damage caused and assured that the damage sustained by Mrs. Mansfield would be paid.

Clara Aquist, five feet five inches in height and wearing a white dress and Mary Kauchmkas, five feet five and wearing a green and white dress escaped from the state farm for women at Niantic late this afternoon. A request to the New London police was made to keep a lookout for the young women.

A man, intoxicated and soliciting alms from pedestrians on State street this afternoon was arrested by Patrolman Edward Riordan and will be presented in the police court tomorrow.

As a result of the large number of floating and shiftless men who refuse to work and who obtain plenty of liquor, Captain of Police Charles A. Finney today instructed all patrolmen to rid their beats of the so-called type of "bums." The stragglers infest State street, North Bank, Potter, John, Douglass and Atlantic streets where they make a nuisance of themselves.

Sigmund J. Pankiewicz, attached to the U. S. S. 3, stationed at the submarine base, was arrested this afternoon charged with parking his automobile overtime on State street. He was released with a warning to observe traffic rules and then drove his car to the municipal pier, where the same regulations exist as are in force on State street. He was re-arrested and was released a second time with a warning. Other drivers to be arrested, but released with a warning were George H. Nord, Newington Junction, Vt.; Helen R. Haskell, 192 Montauk avenue and Irving J. Lamay, Saybrook. Each driver posted a bond of $2 for court presentation tomorrow.

Emory W. Card, 81 Cedar street, Norwich, was arrested Sunday night by Patrolman Lawrence Fardy charged with violation of the city's parking ordinance, but was released with a warning. Card drove to the public service stand, Union station and parked his car in the space set aside for taxicabs.

In the future anyone found in a drinking resort that is raided by the police will not be molested as has been the case heretofor. Although when such arrests were made there was no intention of prosecuting those captured in the raid, other than the proprietor of the resort or an employe, the so-called frequenters were taken to police headquarters, compelled in most cases to hire a bondsman and then present themselves in the police court the next day when their cases were nolled. But in their arrest and presentation in court the men or women obtained a police record. Judge Daniel M. Cronin now makes it known that such arrests are without power of the police for a drinking resort does not constitute a disorderly house and he has instructed the police to refrain from making such arrests in the future. The only raids where frequenters may be arrested are when houses of ill fame or gambling resorts are raided. The law authorizing the arrests of frequenters of a drinking resort was repealed by the legislature several years ago, but in New London whenever a liquor resort was raided the raiding officers had instructions from their superior officer to also arrest whoever was found on the premises, which act was illegal and without foundation of law, it is said.

Werman and Sons, renders valuable assistance of a beneficial nature to its employes and earnestly solicit the patronage of the general public in making this affair a success.

Unique Lobby Display

A unique lobby display is now on exhibition at the Broadway theatre, where Manager Fitz has constructed an authentic-looking prison cell in advance of William Powell's "Shadow of the Law," which opens at that playhouse tomorrow. Apparently of solid stone blocks, with a forbidding-looking iron door, heavily riveted, and with a massive lock and hinges, and inch bars, the cell houses a life-size cut-out of the unfortnuate Powell, and while real enough in appearance, is just a sample of Manager Fitz's skill with hammer and brush.

A. T. Otis & Sons Moved to New Quarters.

The many friends of the A. T. Otis & Sons store, which is now celebrating its sixty-fifth anniversary in moving into its new and enlarged quarters at 13 Bath street, have received special invitations to visit its store in its new home Tuesday and Wednesday of this week.

The same employes and enlarged delivery service reaching to all parts of the city will be some of the items emphasized in their new location.

Mr. Robert W. Otis, for many years manager of the West Side Otis store and of late manager of the A. T. Otis and sons on Franklin street, will be in personal charge of the new establishment on Bath street. In addition to the regular lines formerly carried new lines of important merchandise will be added to the line of fancy groceries and novelties.

Broadway Theatre.

This is Buddy Rogers' last day at the cool Broadway in his scintillating comedy of love, lyric, laughs and lingerie, "Safety in Numbers," for other cities demand his youthful presence and Buddy and his chiffon clad girlies, to say nothing of his $25,000,000, must be on their way to new fields. Tomorrow brings to the Broadway screen something new again in melodrama with William Powell in "Shadow of the Law," a compelling story that thrills from the opening title to the final fade-out. Powell needs no introduction to Broadway fans, but this time they are due for a surprise in the appearance of a new Powell—not the suave smooth detective of the Van Dine stories, not the cool, calculating gambler of "Street of Chance," but a quiet living engineer, drawn by merciless circumstance into a sinister web that lands him in prison. Innocent, he is convicted of a murder that you know he did not commit, and sentenced for life. Desperate, he stages a jail break, gets clear away and with pluck and luck establishes a new identity, rising high in his vocation. Meeting romance, he cannot embrace it, for the grim "shadow of the law" haunts his every moment. Tracked down by a scheming woman, intent on blackmail, he takes a daring, heart-rendering chance and there we'll leave you, for the climax you must see for yourself. Suffice it to say that this picture alone would make Powell a star without his previous success. His capable support includes Natalie Moorhead, Regis Toomey, Marion Schilling and a dozen other favorites. The Broadway's "hot weather" featurettes, booked for laughing purposes only, include cartoons, screen songs, comedies and sketches forming a perfect foil for the sterner stuff of the feature drama, "Shadow of the Law."

Breed Theatre

From the East Side of New York to the battlefields of France and back again to a climax of immense power and thrilling realism—that's "Born Reckless," the exciting story of gangster life, romance and heroism now showing at the Breed theatre.

Directed by John Ford, "Born Reckless" is the first sincere attempt to portray gangsters as they really are. Edmund Lowe gives a memorable performance in the principal role and Catherine Dale Owen, Lee Tracy, Marguerite Churchill, Warren Hymer, Frank Albertson, William Harrigan, and other favorites are all excellent. The picture is an adaptation of Donald Henderson Clarke's novel, "Louis Beretti," with screen play and dialog by Dudley Nichols.

GALES FERRY

Mr. and Mrs. Alton Stoddard left Saturday morning to motor to Charleston, W. Va., where they will visit former village residents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Hurlbutt, and family. Mrs. C. Alton Chapman, of the Lester district, sister of Mrs. Stoddard, accompanied them to Trenton, N. J., for a visit to her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar York.

Tuesday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. Henry W. Hurlbutt, the Ladies' Aid society meeting was called to order by the vice-president, Mrs. Elmer E. Tubbs, in the absence of the president, Miss Alice Satterlee. Mrs. Tubbs read a note of appreciation from Mrs. George H. Wright for the gift of a plant during her illness. A report for the nominating committee given by Miss Mabel Smith, recommended continuing in office the officers of the previous year: Miss Alice Satterlee, president; Mrs. Elmer E. Tubbs, vice-president; Mrs. Dudley C. Perkins, secretary-treasurer, and they were re-elected, as were also the four directresses, Mrs. Fred E. Richards, Miss Sarah T. Latimer, Mrs. Courtland E. Colver and Mrs. Henry W. Hurlbutt.

On recommendation from the president, Mrs. Charles Hoyt, Mrs. Carl B. Lawson, Mrs. Nelson Parker, Mrs. Avery W. Main, Mrs. Harold H. Critchlow and Mrs. Billings F. S. Crandall were elected a committee of six to help plan and prepare the work of the society. Eighteen members were present at roll call. The matter of the church bulletin board was opened for discussion. An all-day meeting was decided on for Thursday, June 26.

The meeting of the Home Missionary society auxiliary followed, the president, Mrs. John Harold, presiding. Mrs. Horace A. Newbury was chairman of the program, which opened with devotions conducted by Mrs. Marie Cathcart. The recording secretary, Mrs. Morton E. Crawford, read the roll and minutes of the last meeting and the treasurer, Mrs. Courtland E. Colver, gave a report. It was decided to hold a food sale and the officers were appointed to have charge of arrangements. Mrs. Rufus W. Hurlbutt, corresponding secretary, read a letter from Mrs. George H. Wright and made an announcement for the Woman's Missionary magazine. It was voted to pledge the same as last year for the national and conference work and the date of the annual sale for the Silver Lake work was announced. Mrs. Nelson Parker reported for the nominating committee. Officers were re-elected, as follows: President, Mrs. John Harold; vice-president, Mrs. R. Irving Hurlbutt; recording secretary, Mrs. Morton E. Crawford; treasurer, Mrs. Courtland E. Colver; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Rufus W. Hurlbutt; mite box secretary, Mrs. C. Alton Chapman. The program continued, as follows: Reading, Lest We Forget, an article on temperance, by Mrs. Dudley C. Perkins; hymn, God Will Take Care of You; reading, Cathedral of Memory, Mrs. Colver; song, Faith of Our Mothers. Mrs. R. I. Hurlbutt conducted the mission enigmas and presented white roses with the numbers. The next meeting will be held in September with Mrs. Harold, at the Submarine base. A social hour followed when ice cream, cake, cookies and iced tea were served by the hostess and members of her family. A birthday cake, made by Mrs. R. I. Hurlbutt in observance of the 50th anniversary of the organization of the W. H. M. S., was served.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

"Song of the Flame," a musical drama starring Bernice Claire and Alexander Gray and Noah Beery, and "Personality," a comedy of married life with Sally Starr and Johnny Arthur, are the two pictures which comprise the double-feature bill that will start at the Palace theatre tomorrow and which will be shown through Friday of this week.

"Song of the Flame," which is now being shown in the largest cities in the country at top prices, was filmed entirely in technicolor; the music was composed by George Gershwin with many Russian folk songs in addition; it was the greatest light-opera that Broadway has ever known when produced on the stage; there is a large cast of stars besides the leading players.

Noah Beery in "Song of the Flame"

"Song of the Flame" paints in color and sound the spectacle of the Russian revolution, which is more massive and impressive than anything heretofore shown on the screen.

"Personality," although much different from "Song of the Flame," is bound to be popular because it is based on the cover series of Liberty magazine which is read the nation wide. Everyone is familiar with the adventures of Sandy, the $40 a week draughtsman, and his wife, Lil Morse. Lil and Sandy are impersonated by Sally Starr and Johnny Arthur. Both prove themselves to be experienced comedians and get in a good many laughs. Everybody who is married or expects to get married ought to see this comedy.

"Ladies of Leisure," the peppy, jazzy story of night life starring Barbara Stanwyck, Lowell Sherman and Ralph Graves, which was adapted from the David Belasco stage play, will be shown at the Palace for the last times today. This is all about an artist and his model, who is a lady of the streets, and how he tries to reform her.

CONNECTICUT COLLEGE CONFERS DEGREES UPON 105 GRADUATES

Connecticut college held its twelfth annual commencement Monday, graduating a class of 105, after their four years of scholastic work and training at the college at New London.

At 9:30 a. m. the academic procession of trustees, faculty, alumnae, and the graduating class, formed in front of Knowlton house to move to the quadrangle where the commencement was held.

As in the recent inaugural of President Katharine Blunt, a huge canvas erected over the quadrangle protected those gathered there from direct exposure to the sun. A platform, attractively adorned with evergreens, had been set up at one end for the speakers, trustees, faculty, and college choir.

The commencement program opened with an invocation by the Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Congregational church, New London. This was followed by a hymn, Yea, Thank the Father Evermore, by Rheinberger, rendered by the college choir. The chief speaker of the exercises, Miss Jane Addams of Hull house, Chicago, then delivered her address, Women in Modern Social Movements.

Before the conferring of degrees by President Katharine Blunt, the college choir again sang, this time, the Lotus Flower, by Schuman. The one hundred and five degrees then were conferred.

The announcement of honors and prizes, followed the conferring of degrees.

The commencement exercises concluded with a hymn, Our God, Our Help in Ages Past, and prayer and benediction by the Rev. Paul F. Lanbenstein. During the recessional the audience rose and remained in place while the academic procession retired.

The degrees were conferred upon the following:

BISHOP JAMES CANNON, JR., WAS ASSAILED IN THE HOUSE

Representative Tinkham Declared That Until the Bishop Gives An Accounting of a $48,300 Contribution He Will Stand Convicted "In the Eyes of All Honest Men of Having Appropriated That Money To His Own Uses"—Applause Greeted Tinkham's Description of One of Cannon's Statements As a "Falsehood"—Dealt With the Churchman's Appearance Before Senate Lobby Committee.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—(AP)— Assailing Bishop James Cannon, Jr., for his refusal to tell the senate lobby committee how $48,300 contributed for the 1928 anti-Smith campaign had been expended, Representative Tinkham, republican, Massachusetts, charged in the house today that until an accounting is made the churchman "will stand convicted in the eyes of all honest men of having appropriated that money to his own uses."

Reading from a prepared speech in a calm, even tone, Tinkham asserted that Cannon appeared before the lobby committee voluntarily and that his refusal to explain the disposition of the $48,300 contributed by E. C. Jameson, New York capitalist, "can give rise only to sinister implications in the mind of any honest man."

At one point in his speech which was applauded at the beginning and end, Tinkham described one of the bishop's statements as a "falsehood." He also charged the Southern Methodist churchman violated the federal corrupt practices act by failure to make a report on the $48,300.

In addition, Tinkham asserted that if the Methodist Episcopal church, South, had known all of the facts presented to the lobby committee "it is inconceivable that he would have been continued by it as one of its spiritual leaders."

The appearance of Cannon before the lobby committee followed testimony by Tinkham that the churchman had received $65,300 from Jameson and that only $17,000 of the amount had been reported to congress.

A final report by the lobby committee on its examination of Cannon was to have been made to the senate today, but Chairman Caraway postponed it until tomorrow in order not to interfere with legislation, he gave notice that he would "have something to say" when the report is made.

It will consist merely of the transcript of Cannon's examination which shows that he refused to answer questions about his political activities.

Senator Blaine, republican, Wisconsin, contends that Vice President Curtis is required by law to report Cannon to the district attorney for possible contempt proceedings, but Chairman Caraway and at least one other member of the committee, hold the opinion that the bishop did not legally refuse to answer questions because the committee ruled it had no authority to inquire into his political activities. Vice President Curtis has declined to comment.

Tinkham gave a list of twelve questions which he said Cannon "feared" before the lobby committee. The first seven dealt with the Jameson contribution. The others were:

"Whether or not at the time he was receiving money from E. C. Jameson he owed any money to Kable and company or Harry L. Goldhurst, 'who operated a 'bucket shop' and who subsequently was prosecuted and convicted by the United States for using the mails to defraud and with whom Bishop Cannon is now known to have had extensive transactions shortly before his receipt of contributions from E. C. Jameson?

"Whether or not he had any dealings with one Joseph Radlow, a partner of Harry L. Goldhurst, who subsequently, it is stated, organized with said Harry L. Goldhurst a 'bucket shop' under the name of the Cosmopolitan Fiscal corporation?

"Whether or not he had dealings with the Cosmopolitan Fiscal corporation organized by the said John Radlow and Harry L. Goldhurst?

"Whether he incurred any financial obligations in connection with extensive stock options signed by the said Joseph Radlow and executed October 4, 1928, when he was receiving contributions from E. C. Jameson?

"Whether any of the money received from E. C. Jameson was used by him on account of any personal indebtedness?"

Tinkham characterized as a "falsehood" the statement made by Cannon in a telegram to Chairman Caraway that he had not reported receipts and expenditures because it was not required by law.

It was "obviously made," Tinkham added, "with the intent of not accounting for the $48,300 alleged in his telegram from February 12, 1929, to E. C. Jameson to have been spent in the state of Virginia." Tinkham reviewed the federal corrupt practices act in an effort to show a report was required.

The Massachusetts' member denied Cannon's charge before the lobby committee that his investigation was inspired by Roman Catholics.

"The charges were not made by any Roman Catholic," he asserted. "They were made by me, an Episcopalian, whose ancestors came to this country as Pilgrims in 1620 and who were firm in their conviction that church and state should be separate, a conviction which I have inherited."

Concluding, Tinkham said:

"Bishop Cannon came before the committee voluntarily. His refusal to answer questions when he was under oath and subject to cross-examination concerning the use he had made of $48,300 for which he had made no accounting in any way can give rise only to sinister implications in the mind of any honest man.

"If his transactions would stand the light of day, if there was no taint of scandal or illegality in connection with the use which he made of this money, to preserve such reputation as he may enjoy and to clear his name he should have welcomed the opportunity to make an explanation, to disprove the charges made against him and to confound his alleged enemies, and he owed it to the church which he officially represents and which recently re-elected him to his exalted office to do so.

"If that great church of which he is a bishop had been in full possession of all the facts presented to the senate lobby investigating committee and here reviewed, it is inconceivable that he would have been continued by it as one of its spiritual leaders.

"Under all the circumstances, until Bishop Cannon has made, under oath, and subject to cross-examination under duress or otherwise, a statement of when, where and for what purposes he expended the $48,300 entrusted to him by Mr. Jameson for which he has made no accounting, he will stand convicted in the eyes of all honest men of having appropriated that money to his own uses.

"However, in view of the peculiar operations of his mind, it is doubtful whether even under oath and subject to cross-examination, he would make a clear and unequivocal statement or explanation of the expenditure of Mr. Jameson's money."

CONTEST OVER RUGGIERO RICCI, CHILD VIOLIN PRODIGY

NEW YORK, June 17—(AP)—Playing a program of difficult concertos before an audience of thousands is as simple for Ruggiero Ricci, child violin prodigy, as swimming is for a fish, Miss Beth Lackey, guardian of the lad and his brother Giorgio, testified in supreme court today.

Her testimony was given in habeas corpus proceedings brought by the boy's father, Pietro Ricco, San Francisco handmaster, who seeks to regain guardianship on the grounds that she is trying to exploit Ruggiero by having him give ten concerts this fall and winter.

Leaning tensely forward, her hands clasped, Miss Lackey, who appears to be about 30, said Ruggiero felt no self consciousness or embarrassment when playing in public.

She said that although she had received numerous offers for the boy violinist to make tours of Europe, South America, the United States and the West Indies and to make a sound picture, she had "no intention of taking him abroad."

BELIEVE EIGHT PROMINENT TOLEDOANS DROWNED

TOLEDO, O., June 17—(AP)—The belief that eight prominent Toledoans who have been missing since Saturday when they started for Pelee Island in a speed boat, lost their lives in Lake Erie, was accepted by relatives and friends here tonight, following the recovery of the body of John Liptack, 25, mechanic on the boat.

Liptack's body, encased in a life preserver, was found this afternoon by the crew of the coast guard cutter 173, two miles southeast of West Sister Island, a few miles from where the speed boat was found Saturday night, minus all passengers.

The hands on a wrist watch worn by Liptack were at 10:50. Coroner Frank G. Kreft expressed belief that the watch stopped when the men entered the water. This would indicate, he said, that the eight missing men were pitched into the water less than two hours after they left Toledo.

RUM RUNNERS FIRED UPON FOUR DRY AGENTS

GOLDSBORO, N. C., June 17.—(AP)— Two suspected liquor runners early today fired on four prohibition enforcement agents who were pursuing them in an automobile, killing one and wounding another.

P. L. Flinchum, 33, was killed and H. Y. Andrews, 41, was wounded in the left arm and right leg. B. A. Dale, 40, and F. E. Street, 52, the other agents, were bruised and cut when the automobile which Flinchum was driving swerved from the road and crashed into a tree after he was shot.

The liquor runners escaped after the shooting. Officers apparently were without a clue to their identity beyond the meagre descriptions the enforcement agents were able to give. The liquor car was of a low priced make and descriptions of it were sent to neighboring towns and cities.

THIRD SHOOTING AND STABBING AFFRAY DEATH

THOMPSONVILLE, June 17.—(AP)— The death today of Mrs. Angelo Santanello, 31, brought to three the number of deaths resulting from a shooting and stabbing affray here last Wednesday.

The Santanellos were eating lunch in their home when Comporetto, said to have been in a jealous rage, entered the place and attacked Mrs. Santanello first and her husband second, as he went to her defense.

Three children were orphaned by the tragedy. One, a girl of 9, witnessed the scene.

The shipping board added further increases could be expected at the Bethlehem, Newport News and New York companies because of five vessels to be built by them under recent board loans. The vessels are to cost $14,425,000.

Liner Olympic Beat The Tariff Deadline

Saved Importers About $130,000 Extra Customs Duty, Effective At 4.30 P. M. Yesterday.

NEW YORK, June 17—(AP)—Cutting the ocean from under the pressure of pounding engines, the liner Olympic breasted the tariff tape off Sandy Hook late today and saved importers with cargo aboard approximately $130,000 in extra customs duty.

Had she passed Ambrose lightship after 4:30 E. S. T., her cargo would have come under the provisions of the new tariff bill signed by President Hoover today, but she beat the deadline by slightly more than an hour, despite a slow start that left her behind schedule for the first leg of her race against time.

More than a dozen smaller craft also beat the new levy by steaming in during the day, but at least four which had hoped to arrive were not yet sighted when the customs house closed for the day and so the consignees will have to pay the new rates in the morning. Those four were the Malmyo from Calcutta, the Exeter City from Bristol, the Soemba from Batavia and the Steelore from Cristobal.

The new tariff provisions officially go into effect at midnight, but actually they became effective at 4:30 as the customs house closed at that hour and no more papers could be filed until the morning. Even if some of the tardy craft come into the harbor tonight they will come under the new rules because it will be impossible to enter the manifolds until the hours after the legal deadline.

Even as it was, an extra hour of grace was allowed the racing steamers, customs officials staying at the posts to check in late arrivals. Tomorrow and thereafter duties will be levied by customs men well drilled in the provisions of the new bill, which they have been studying since the act was passed by congress and President Hoover announced that he would sign it.

Owners of some of the ships racing to port announced yesterday that if the race were lost the ships would be diverted to a port in some other country with less stringent tariff, since importers who had ordered cargo for sale in this country would not be able to dispose of their goods except at a loss.

Late today, however, it could not be determined that any ships were being diverted from their courses, and it was generally believed that consignees who lost in the gamble of hissing steam and ticking clocks would swallow their loss, if such there really was, and just mark it down to the fortunes of commerce.

PRESIDENT HOOVER SIGNED THE TARIFF BILL

WASHINGTON, June 17— (AP) — President Hoover, in a simple ceremony at the white house, signed the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill today and turned over to the treasury the job of putting into effect overnight a law which has required congress nearly a year and a half to write.

Theoretically the new law was to take effect at midnight, but actually the more than 1,000 new duties and administrative features will not become operative until the customs houses open at 8 a. m. tomorrow, eastern standard time.

DECLINE IN STOCK PRICES WAS CHECKED YESTERDAY

NEW YORK, June 17—(AP)—The drastic decline in stock prices was checked today, but the action of the market was both an encouragement and a disappointment to Wall street.

During the early trading, a huge amount of forced liquidation of weakened marginal accounts was absorbed with remarkable ease. The rally which followed, however, was a feeble affair indeed, compared to the sharp technical rebounds that usually come upon the heels of a severe decline. Furthermore, renewed selling cropped out in the last half hour.

Although prices fluctuated over a fairly wide range during the day, closing quotations in the main, disclosed negligible changes. The price index of 90 representative shares at the close of the market showed a gain of only 1-10 of one point.

LEGGE CONFIRMED AS FARM BOARD CHAIRMAN

WASHINGTON, June 17—(AP)—The senate today confirmed the nomination of Alexander Legge for reappointment as chairman of the farm board.

Legge was approved by the senate without a record vote and after brief discussion.

The senate also confirmed the nomination of Charles C. Teague, of California, for reappointment on the farm board representing the fruit and vegetable industry.

Senator McKellar, democrat, Tennessee, voiced opposition to Legge, declaring "I regard him as wholly unfit for his post." With a chorus of ayes the senate then approved the farm board chairman. McKellar alone voiced a "no" on the viva voce vote.

Legge and Teague were reappointed for six year terms.

A partner in his enterprise, Joseph Pavano, was also fined a similar amount, by Judge George Griswold, in town court.

New Britain firemen and two constables responded to the call for help on June 3 when fire broke out in Carbo's barn.

Dwight W. Morrow Swamps Opponents

Wins Republican Nomination For U. S. Senate From New Jersey By An Enormous Majority.

NEWARK, N. J., June 17—(AP)— Returns from 1,282 districts of 3,304 in New Jersey, for republican nomination for full term, United States senator:

Fort	81,816
Freilinghuysen	12,965
Morrow	109,069

NEWARK, N. J., June 17.—(AP)— The conceded winner of the republican nomination for United States senator from New Jersey, Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, who in a campaign speech, urged repeal of the 18th amendment, tonight continued to pile up a lead over his three opponents as returns poured in.

On the basis of early returns, Morrow ran ahead of his opponents even in the dry, rural counties.

Representative Franklin W. Fort, who entered the race as a dry with the aid of the Anti-Saloon league, conceded the election on the basis of returns from about one-thirtieth of the districts in the state.

In a telegram to Ambassador Morrow at his home in Englewood, Fort said:

"Please accept my very heartiest congratulations and assurance of my earnest support throughout the coming campaign. I have not the slightest doubt you will be a fine and distinguished addition to the United States senate."

In the contest for the unexpired term of Walter E. Edge, which runs until March 4, 1931, Ambassador Morrow ran far ahead of his only opponent, John A. Kelly, from the very first. Kelly, who also ran for the full six-year term, was a poor fourth in the returns of that contest.

Former Senator John S. Frelinghuysen was greatly outdistanced in the early returns by Representative Fort. Frelinghuysen, like Morrow, advocated repeal of the 18th amendment, but differed with the ambassador over the method of liquor regulation to be substituted for it. Morrow urged restoration of states' rights in settling liquor questions, while Frelinghuysen declared for some method of centralized control.

The heaviest vote today in most places was recorded between 3:30 and 8 p. m. (E. S. T.), when the so-called commuter vote was registered. Threatening weather in the early part of the day kept many voters from the polls, but even a light rain in the early evening could not damp the ardor of those who voted after returning home from across the Hudson.

Candidates of the democratic, prohibition and socialist parties, who will oppose Morrow at the polls in November for both the full and short terms, were given uncontested nominations.

CAMPAIGN STATEMENT BY DWIGHT W. MORROW

NEWARK, N. J., June 17.—(AP)— Opening his campaign for the republican nomination for United States senator from New Jersey in a 3,000-word address here, Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow on May 15 said that if elected he would be prepared to vote for a resolution submitting to the states a constitutional amendment which would restore to them the power to determine their policy toward the liquor traffic.

Mr. Morrow said he looked forward "to the time when the old leaders in the temperance movement will appreciate that they have not reached a final solution of a world-old problem by the present 18th amendment."

"I look," he said, "to the time when the moral teachers of the country will realize that, in the battle for a great social reform, there was wisdom in the old system of experimenting in 48 laboratories, rather than in one."

POLICE CONTINUE HUNT FOR DETROIT KIDNAPERS

DETROIT, June 17.—(AP)—Local and state police continued their hunt for Detroit kidnapers tonight with eight alleged members of one gang booked on suspicion and information in their possession on which they were basing their search for six others.

Five of the suspects were balked in their efforts for release on habeas corpus writs today when they appeared before Circuit Judge Arthur Webster. The court adjourned their hearings for 48 hours on request of the prosecutor's office and fixed bonds totaling $800,000 for their release.

The five suspects are: Harry Hallisey, Howard Barkley, Mr. and Mrs Stanley De Long and James Riley. The latter is from Elkhart, Ind.

All but Riley were ordered held for bond of $85,000.

Riley was ordered held under bond of $25,000.

P. J. M. Hally, assistant prosecuting attorney, in requesting the postponement of the hearing, informed the court that he hoped to have warrants ready within 48 hours charging the suspects with abduction.

THREE ARABS EXECUTED FOR SLAYING OF JEWS

JERUSALEM, June 17—(AP)—The execution of three Arabs convicted of having murdered Jews during the Palestine riots last August today precipitated another difficult situation for British authorities in dealing with the Moslem population in the Holy Land.

The three men were hanged in the prison yard at Acre. The Arab executive, supported by Christian church leaders, vainly attempted to obtain a reprieve for them.

Arab leaders immediately countered by calling a general strike throughout Palestine, which was rigorously observed by Moslems. British police guards in Jerusalem and other important cities were reinforced and kept on the alert.

MAYOR OF CHICAGO REBUKED IN ILLINOIS LEGISLATURE

Representative Igoe of Chicago, Democratic Floor Leader, Declared That Mayor Thompson Should Be Held Responsible For Conditions In Chicago — Also Took a Fling At Ruth Hanna McCormick, Republican Candidate For the U. S. Senate From Illinois—City Council Is Scheduled to Start Its Investigation of the Police Department Today.

CHICAGO, June 17—(AP)—Politics stirred today on the eve of two investigations into Chicago crime and political corruption and culminated in a rebuke to Mayor William Hale Thompson delivered at the special session of the legislature at Springfield, called to relieve Chicago finances.

"If we want a connection between the hoodlums and gangster and politics we don't have far to look," declared Representative Michael Igoe, of Chicago, democratic floor leader in the house. "We have a mayor in Chicago who should be held responsible. Connected with the rotten chief or the city hall is little Red Riding Hood, who wants to carry the republican standard into the United States senate."

Ruth Hanna McCormick is the republican candidate for the senate from Illinois. Her primary victory last April carried the Thompson forces back into power in Cook county republican affairs, but she disclaimed any alliance with the Thompson machine.

Igoe, charged further on the floor of the house that Commissioner William Russell and Chief of Detectives John Stege, both of whom resigned yesterday, were made goats for the mayor.

The resignations of the two police officers followed public indignation against gang shootings which crystallized with the assassination of Alfred J. Lingle, Tribune crime reporter, a week ago.

The city council is scheduled to start its investigation of the police department tomorrow. A grand jury already has been instructed by Chief Justice Denis J. Normoyle of criminal court to get at the truth of the connection between crime and politics.

Also, Mayor Thompson is expected to send to the city council tomorrow the name of a man to succeed Commissioner Russell. Meanwhile, John H. Alcock, known as "the iron man" of the police department, has assumed command, as he has done temporarily twice before.

Although Mayor Thompson is reported as favoring a civilian for the police comissionership, it was thought he might leave Alcock in command for the remaining 8 months of his term as mayor.

Rench formerly was chief of police of Stickney and his bungalow allegedly served as a Capone rendezvous.

Yesterday Albert Capone, Scarface's elder brother was sentenced to Leavenworth for defrauding the government on income tax returns.

COMMITTEE SUPPORTS NAVAL TREATY 14 TO 4

WASHINGTON, June 17— (AP) — Overwhelming support for the London naval treaty when it comes to a vote in the senate foreign relations committee on next Monday was indicated on a test roll call today.

By a vote of 14 to 4 the committee rejected a motion by Senator Johnson, republican, California, to defer consideration of the pact until President Hoover gives up the papers relating to the London conference hich he has refused the committee.

Agreement was then reached for the vote on the treaty next Monday morning and advocates of the pact contended that the four votes enrolled today for postponement represented the full strength of the opposition in the committee.

Senators Johnson, Moses, New Hampshire; and Robinson, Indiana, republicans and Shipstead, farmer-labor, Minnesota, voted for postponement.

Two committee members were unrecorded, Goff, republican, West Virginia, and Black, democrat, Alabama. While he has been counted among the supporters of the treaty, Senator Black was represented as favoring the Johnson motion for postponement.

In a brief statement today Brewster conceded his second defeat within two years for the same nomination. He was routed by Senator Frederick Hale in 1928 by a margin of 33,000 votes.

Governor William Tudor Gardiner drifted easily into the republican renomination by a majority of 19,028 over his opponent, former Mayor John Wilson of Bangor. Gardiner polled 57,280; Wilson 38,252.

BODY OF MAN FOUND BY BOYS PICKING DANDELIONS

NEW YORK, June 17—(AP)—Boys picking dandelions today found the body of a man identified as Noel Saylor, 30, of Brooklyn, with a bullet through his head in an abandoned automobile at Creedwood, an isolated section of Queens.

Beside the body was a newspaper clipping several days old describing the death under similar circumstances of Joseph Mozynski. On it was written in pencil "Here's how."

Police have been unable to connect either of the victims with gang activities. Until two weeks ago, Saylor lived in an apartment with another man in Brooklyn. Attendants there say he left ostensibly to get married.

Mozynski was said by a woman companion to have been shot to death in the Whitestone section of Queens by a holdup man.

CHINESE REBELS PRESSING THE NATIONALIST TROOPS

SHANGHAI, June 17—(AP)—Thrown back today in their drive upon the sister cities, Wuchang, Hankow and Hanyang in central China, rebel armies, nevertheless, advanced in several other sections, making the nationalist government's tenure precarious.

Led by President Chiang Kai-Shek, 50,000 nationalists defeated the southern rebels main column south of Wichang and recaptured Tochow and Changsha in Hunan province another rebel column approached Shasi, important Yangtse river city above Hankow, while still another swung eastward into Kiangsi province, threatening Nanchang and Kiukiang.

The latter column, already joined by bandit hordes, may unite with communist armies that have been devasting Kiangsi, and threaten the nationalist capital, Nanking.

Meanwhile, 60,000 northern Alliance rebels were reported to have captured Tsinan, capital of Shantung province after a week of fighting. For several days their artillery fire was heard in Tsinan and it was rumored the nationalist commander had agreed to surrender the city.

Other northerners, pushing nationalist forces southward along the railway, reached Chumatien, about 175 miles north of Hankow, their objective.

PARADE FEATURES TODAY'S REUNION PROGRAM; WOMEN ENTERTAINED TUESDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, June 17. — The Community Reunion week entertainment for women was held at the Elks' home this afternoon. The attendance of about 75, including several women from out-of-town, was considered good owing to inclement weather conditions. The women were entertained in the main living and music room of the home. The spacious chamber had been tastefully decorated for the occasion with bouquets of cut flowers. Bridge and whist were enjoyed and Leonard Davis, Willimantic's famous 15-year-old violinist, favored with selections. He was accompanied by Gertrude Simoneau, also of this city. Leonard's playing was received with enthusiasm by an appreciative audience. Excellent refreshments were served in the library. This feature was in charge of the following general committee: Mrs. John Reilly, chairman; Mrs. Archille J. Vegiard, Mrs. Carl Israel and Mrs. Dwight Abel, assisted by delegates from several ladies' organizations. At the conclusion of the entertainment the women visited the industrial display in the Elks' dance hall.

Tonight, from 8 to 9 o'clock, a crowd gathered at Elks' park when a pleasing concert was given by the B. P. O. Elks band, Charles N. C. Wheeler, director. Additional attractions at the park included the industrial exhibit, various amusement rides and refreshments.

INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION IS INTERESTING TO OLD TIMERS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, June 17.—The industrial exhibit at the dance hall at Elks park proved to be very interesting to the former residents of Windham who have returned for the Community Reunion week. The various exhibits of the products manufactured in Windham show the changes in the industries during the past decade or more.

The dance hall was prettily decorated with flags, flowers and ferns and the exhibits were attractively displayed. With the exception of one exhibit all the manufacturing plants exhibiting are located in Willimantic.

The Smith and Winchester Mfg. Co., manufacturers of paper making machinery, had a very attractive exhibit showing the magnitude of the business. Included in the exhibit were brass bearings, aluminum castings, small and large gears, paper cutters of various sizes and blue prints of the large paper making machinery which the company produces.

With silk manufacturing as one of the principal industries of the community there were a number of interesting exhibits. The Kobe Silk mill showed skeins of silk in various shades and some of the manufactured products.

The Willimantic Silk company had a similar exhibit showing the raw silk, silk skeins and silk dress goods as well as dresses made from the finished products.

The Holland Mfg. Co., which disposes of its entire output to the wholesale garment trade, showed a very interesting display of raw silk and silk thread manufactured by them. The silk was of various shades. A measuring devise was also on display.

The Windham Silk Co. also showed silk in the raw, silk thread and floss and some of the woven silk.

The Rossie Velvet Co. had a very attractive display of velvet of the shades now in vogue.

One of the largest exhibits of the show was that of the American Thread company which showed various types of cotton thread, linen thread, darning cotton, embroidery thread and many other kinds of thread. The exhibit was well arranged and drew the attention of many.

The Vandermans Mfg. Co. displayed combination bench vices, grey iron castings and steel tool chests of various sizes as well as a number of iron specialties.

Metal screens in steel and aluminum frames were exhibited by the Willimantic Screen company.

The Kirby Optical company of Mansfield had a very attractive and large display of the optical supplies manufactured by the company. These included spectacle frame, eye-glass frames, gold eye-glass chains, hairpins and other pins.

The exhibits drew large numbers during the afternoon and evening and it proved one of the enjoyable features of the Reunion week program.

OVER 600 ATTEND ST. JEAN BAPTISTE FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY BANQUET

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, June 17. — The main event in the 50th anniversary celebration of the St. Jean Baptiste Benevolent society of Willimantic, established May 30th, 1880, was held at the state armory tonight in the form of a banquet and entertainment. Despite inclement weather which caused a delay in the opening of the event forcing a curtailment of the program there was an attendance of over 600 men and women. The hall was festively decorated and the tables were artistically adorned with cut flowers. At each plate were carnations and valuable souvenirs of the event. The menu, featured by roast chicken, was served by Wilfred A. Cote.

Rev. H. C. Belec, as master of ceremonies, opened the program about 8:30 o'clock with America, sung by the assembly. Invocation was by Rev. J. J. Papillon. Mayor Walter R. King was then presented by Alexis Caisse, president of the society. Mayor King called to attention the glory of a 50th anniversary and paid high tribute to the late Father Florimand DeBruyeker and the early French residents who established a strong church and school in this city. "You people have done wonderful work in the community and many of you have held high honors in the city government. On behalf of an appreciative community I extend you a hearty welcome to the city of Willimantic.'

The response to Mayor King's welcome was by Attorney Harry S. Gaucher who greeted the mayor as "the business mayor," the mayor who is making history through his belief in the economic principles of pay as you go. Attorney Gaucher went on to say that an organization of the type at hand has its constructive place in a cosmopolitan city and should bear this position in mind at all times.

President Alexis Caisse then delivered a welcome to the visitors on behalf of the local society, the audience including society members and guests from various parts of New England. At this point President Caisse made a presentation of $50 in gold to the lone survivor of the founders of the society, Honore Belair, now 83 years of age. Rev. Belec responded on behalf of Mr. Belair who occupied a seat of honor at the official table.

REV. H. C. BELEC

Another presentation was made to all of the officers with good wishes to the entire society and was in the nature of a huge floral basket given by Mr. and Mrs. Amie J. Martineau. Enjoyment of the excellent banquet was then in order. During the dinner music was rendered by the Community orchestra, one of the city's leading musical organizations, under the direction of Mary R. Blanchette. The orchestra rendered the following program:

OVER 600 ATTEND ST. JEAN BAPTISTE

Haydn....Symphony "Militaire" in G Major
Bemberg ..... The Hindu Chant
Martini ..... Plaisir d'Amour
Delibes ..... Les Filles de Cadix
Thomas...Me voice dars son boudoir (Mignon)
Celia Guerney
Mendelssohn ..... Selections from "Elijah"
Leonard ..... Scenes Humoristiques
The Donkey and the Driver
Cat and Mice

Another delightful entertainment feature was provided by Celia Guerney, a local contralto who has won fame as a member of the Little Theatre opera in New York city. Miss Guerney was heard in a series of four charming numbers. She was accompanied at the piano by Miss Sylvia Langnan.

The regular speaking program opened with a toast to the Pope by Rev. J. J. Papillon, pastor of St. Mary's church. This was followed by a stirring toast to the United States by Elie Vezina, general secretary of L'union St. Jean Baptiste d'Amerique, of Woonsocket, R. I. Mr. Vezina recalled the sacrifices of the early French residents in the establishment of the splendid churches and schools which are the heritage of the present generation. He pointed to these early members of the St. Jean Baptiste society as the pioneers who laid the foundation for the education, culture and progress of the Franco-Americans of succeeding generations. Secretary Vezina said that the St. Jean societies stood squarely for naturalization and for the adoption of the U. S. A., as a permanent home.

The toast to the ladies was given by Rev. U. O. Bellerose of Putnam in the absence of Elphege J. Daigneault of Woonsocket who was unable to be present.

The message from the original St. Jean society of New York was conveyed by Attorney Sylva C. Lachapelle of New York city.

Owing to the lateness of the hour the toast to Canada by Rep. Joseph Lefebvre, and the history of the society by Alphonse Chagnon were omitted from the program. Announcement was made that the solemn high mass which will conclude the celebration will be held in St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock instead of 9:30 as previously announced on Wednesday morning.

Visiting priests present tonight were: Revs. John C. Mathieu and Leo LaVallee of North Grosvenordale, U. O. Bellerose of Putnam, Ludovic Paradis of Occum, A. A. Jalbert of Baltic, John Landry of Plainfield, Henri Chagnon of Moosup.

State organizations represented were: L'Union St. Jean Baptiste, Federation of French Catholic societies, Artisans of America, Canado-Americains society, St Jean Baptiste society of New York and l'Union Franco-Americain of Connecticut.

Local organizations represented through delegations were: Ladies of Ste Anne, Children of Mary, Ladies of St. Anthony, Conseil St. Cecile, Conseil Florimond No. 74, League Sacred Heart, Garde Sacred Heart, Artisans of America, Foresters of America, St. Cecile choir and Federation of local French societies.

During a period of 36 years, from 1894 to 1930, St. Jean Baptiste society, according to a history compiled by Alphone Chagnon, has paid out in benefits for sickness, $28,181.68 and in 61 mortalities a total of $15,300.

ORGANIZING FOR RURAL ROADS

Connecticut has an organization that is working for the betterment of the rural roads. It is the Connecticut Rural Road Improvement association and its purpose is to "Get Connecticut out of the mud."

In order to get the public road-minded, where highway conditions alone are not sufficient, it has planned an official design in the shape of a wheel available for display on the radiators of automobiles and trucks. This disc of blue will contain the slogan of the organization and through its display it will be possible to show who are interested in and clamoring for better rural roads.

The mere placing of such a marker on an auto isn't going to get the improvement of the rural roads. It does, however, show that there is an organized effort being made, and it is through organization that results are going to be obtained. Without doubt, this is not the only organization that is working for this cause. There will be others, for the interest is widespread and the need is to be found in all sections.

Rural road betterment is not a new plea. It has been brought up in various forms for several years. It hasn't lacked for endorsement but it has failed to get an agreement among those who want the rural roads given state attention as to what should be done and how it should be done. There are those who want to launch out into additional taxation in order to provide for it. There are those who have detailed plans, but there hasn't been brought forward a bill that would command the support of all the rural road advocates. This seems to be one of the important points for consideration.

Put the rural roads in good condition so that they can be used throughout the year, eliminate the mudholes, give them a good gravel or macadam surfacing, drain and oil them for protection and use a part of the funds which are now available each year for road construction and maintenance for this purpose and it would not require many years before there would be a marked change in the more important of the rural roads.

There is need for organized effort to do it is going to be accomplished and such move as are being put forth at this time of the year are none too early for their effect upon the next general assembly.

FIGHT THE PESTS

There is hardly a year goes by but what some new pest is revealed which calls for prompt and effective measures if it is to be successfully combatted. There are all kinds of worms, beetles, moths, borers, bugs and caterpillars to make life miserable for the grower of crops. They know what ravages have been caused by their activity, what havoc has been wrought in spite of opposition, and yet they cannot fail to appreciate the importance of offering more than a passive resistance.

This year it will not be possible to expect much of a let-up on the restrictions imposed in the fight against the corn borer. Rather may it be expected that they will be extended, but even with that pest still rampant it becomes necessary to take up the cudgel against the Japanese beetle.

The answer to all these pests is that if they are not kept where they are and reduced in numbers they will spread over greater areas and cause steadily increasing destruction. It is much easier to fight such pests at the beginning than it is to wait until they have had unobstructed privileges, when their numbers are that much greater and the area which they have infested is much larger.

Thus, when the appeal comes to include the Japanese beetle in the list of pests to which no quarter should be shown, there's no use balking. If quarantines have to be established they will be much easier to bear than if no effort were made to stop the progress of the destructive nuisance, though quarantines are not much more welcome than the pests for those in the quarantined area.

NEEDLESS HIGHWAY SLAUGHTER

When it is set forth in the report of the national conference on street and highway safety that more than half of the 31,000 persons killed by automobiles last year were pedestrians, who were run down by automobiles, and that more than half of all automobile accidents, involving, in addition to the fatalities, the injury of a million people, occurred at street crossings and intersections, it is easy to understand where the need for greater safety prevails.

Furthermore, when it is set forth that virtually all of the accidents are preventable, there is furnished real food for thoughtful consideration.

The need of crossing streets carefully gets frequent emphasis. Apparently it fails to make the necessary impression upon the great body of pedestrians and the smaller number of motorists, but with the proper amount of cooperation on the part of all highway users there could be large reductions made in the frightful toll that is exacted each year in deaths and injuries.

The hope of the conference is that through uniform methods of handling traffic there can be marked changes for the better. Certainly the steadily mounting lists of needless deaths cry out for action. The slaughter should be stopped. The situation is one where the motor vehicle and the pedestrian must have more respect for each other. They must likewise give recognition to the rights of the other. When this is done and when proper thought is given to the present-day danger in the highways, it can be seen where the casualty lists can be reduced.

There are times when speed is important, but there are times when good judgment must be exercised in order to prevent accidents. Responsibility rests upon the shoulders of all. It is vital that those crossing streets should stop, look and listen. Their own welfare requires it. It is equally important that motorists should give the pedestrian a chance. Instead of fighting each other, and thereby contributing to the casualty list, there should be combined efforts to protect and prevent. We are constantly reminded that so many deaths and accidents are needless, but we seem to be making no progress in checking them.

CHICAGO'S TROUBLE

That is a familiar statement which is made by Commissioner Russell of the Chicago police department in declaring, upon handing in his resignation, that Chicago isn't any worse than other cities and that conditions there are due to lack of funds and an inadequate police force.

It wasn't long ago that much effort was put forth by Chicago organizations to offset the impression that that city was crime-ridden and the center of great criminal activity. It was recognized as being bad advertising for the city and the desire was to overcome it. It was a laudable undertaking but there seems to have been too little attention devoted to the real trouble. Instead of trying to create a different opinion, the need seems to have been to create better conditions and eliminate that gangster activity which has prevailed and allowed to go on unrestrained too long.

It is possible that the commissioner of police who has resigned under fire is correct in his interpretation of the trouble. Pehaps it is so that no one else can do a better job than he has with what he has had to do with. More funds may be required and more police may be needed but it seems to have been necessary to get the public indignation aroused to an unusual point before tackling the problem in a manner that will bring the right solution.

It is perfectly apparent that if conditions are going to be allowed to go on in the future as they have been in the past there can be little relief expected. This is understood by President Randall of the Association of Commerce, who declares that little improvement can be expected from the removal of the commissioner and the chief of detectives unless their successors are given the authority to do the kind of a job that is expected of them. There must be the right kind of backing for anyone who is put at the helm. Simply changing heads will not get at the core of the trouble.

Chicago as a city has manifested too little interest in bettering conditions. It has failed to meet its responsibilities repeatedly when it had the matter in its own hands. It may well be disgusted with developments but it cannot expect to secure much improvement unless it does its part and lets it be known that its demands are real ones.

THE ST. LAWRENCE WATERWAY

Much significance is being attached by many states to the new support that is being given to the St. Lawrence development in Canada. These states in the Great Lakes region are much concerned over that outlet to the sea for ocean-going vessels. They want the benefit of such transportation. Efforts to obtain it by agreement between the United States and Canada have not as yet been successful, but it is a big project and it has been felt that in due time its advantages would be recognized and the work undertaken.

The new hope is furnished by the change in the attitude of the conservative party in Canada. With this country anxiously waiting to sign up for joint development, it has been recognized that Canada was furnishing the hindrance. The liberal party was on record as being favorable, but the conservatives were not so sure that Canada should proceed in any such arrangement. They had not been convinced that it would be to the best advantage of Canada.

That there has been a change of mind in that respect is indicated by the declaration in favor of such development by R. B. Bennett, the conservative leader. He has shown the conservatives are backing the idea, insisting that the Great Lakes traffic should be carried through the St. Lawrence and that it would be beneficial to Canada. They favor it because Canada needs it and development that would be sure to accompany it.

That this should be good news on both sides of the border can be appreciated. It is talk that has come at the opening of the campaign for parliamentary elections in Canada, but it is apparent that such views would not be expressed if they were not believed. This represents a change which it has been predicted would eventually come in Canada. The light has apparently been seen. The arguments for such development and the participation by Canada have been getting consideration, and with Canadian opposition removed little should stand in the way of speeding action on that important project.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WASHINGTON, June 17—Republican Leader John Q. Tilson of New Haven, the dean of the Connecticut delegation, made a pretty accurate prediction concerning the adjournment date, unless something happens this week to upset his calculations.

Tilson has all along said adjournment of congress would take place between the first and the middle of June, except once, when the senate had been unusually "uppity" he was discouraged, and replied, "There's no telling, what that senate may do to keep us here!" Now the outlook is for the week of June 15th, although there is still no telling "what that senate will do," and Tilson put marked emphasis on the word "that."

Col. Tilson will go to Johnsboro, Tenn., to deliver the 4th of July oration. It will be the 150th anniversary of the settlement of the town, and Johnsboro is near Tilson's birthplace.

Tennessee seems always to have regretted that Tilson left that state for New England. Tennessee is tremendously proud of Tilson and the personal and the official record he has made. She still claims him as her "own son" and in 1928 urged him for the vice presidency, with true southern ardor.

That Tilson holds the highest office on the floor of the house is a matter of pride to all New England, for he is second in rank only to the speaker of the house, and in fact, has more personal power than the speaker, in mapping out legislation. It's a feather in Connecticut's cap, as worn by Tilson, that it is largely due to his experience and wise methods, that the house insurgency did not run amuck, as has been the case in the senate.

"Oh no," said the door man at the white house, "you are not late, you have ample time to make the down stairs rounds, before the rooms are closed for the president's luncheon hour."

This was in reply to the question: "Am I too late?"

He had bowed in recognition, for we had been there often in other years, but we noticed he gave a side glance to the card handed him, which bore the magic word "admit." They take no chances of overstepping the rules down at "1600 Pennsylvania avenue" which city directories give as the location of the white house.

We had not been there by daylight since President Hoover came into office, and it is quite different from attending a formal evening state reception, where the crowds of people distinguished in high official life, the gay gowns and brilliant jewels of the women, coupled with the gorgeous scarlet, blue, green and crimson be-sashed, be-jeweled evening clothes of foreign diplomats, quite eclipse the furnishings of the house, even though they have formed a part of its tradition and history.

Then began what the tall colored door man called "making the rounds." We rubbed our eyes and wondered if we were seeing things, for many of the familiar paintings and old time furniture and ornaments were missing and in their places were beautiful but modern articles.

Although Mrs. Coolidge had hoped to make the white house furnishings carry a touch of colonial days, Mrs. Hoover had turned a cold shoulder to the plan, and had been weeding out, changing from room to room, or discarding such pieces as she felt were no longer in harmony, from a modern artistic view point. That may be so, but they were distinctive types of earlier white house areas.

For instance, those great Japanese vases, and that unusual wood work fire screen made by the empress of Austria and presented by her to President Arthur, have been taken away. The great chandelier has been taken down and in its place are modern crystal clusters, that match the wall brackets.

Old oil portraits have been weeded outfit, so those of us familiar with white house official rooms for many years are apt to wink, blink and think our memory is playing us false, when we fail to locate those prime favorites and distinctive types of early administrations.

Somehow the white house lacks the old time "homey" air as they say up in the north country, that it possessed under the Coolidge administration.

The Coolidges were New England born and bred; they carried a typical New England atmosphere with them, whether to a small cottage or to the white house; the president is a strict adherent to the dignity of office, but he didn't care if the whole world knew he had no use for those new fangled pajamas; or that he liked griddle cakes with plenty of Vermont maple syrup. He liked to play with his beautiful white collie, Rob Roy; he liked a touch of the old time family home life, and he saw to it that it was not lost or even dimmed, by any political office, even that of the president of the United States.

When the Coolidges moved to the white house, they came from a home life in the little city of Northampton, with only a few months of vice presidential life intervening.

When the Hoovers came to the white house, they merely moved from one big Washington house, to another, after having spent years and years abroad, when Mr. Hoover's business called him overseas.

The Hoovers are world-wide travelers; they plant their household goods wherever they pitch their tent, yet to a degree cling to a touch of California life.

Perhaps the marked difference in temperament of Mrs. Coolidge and Mrs. Hoover—both charming women—is best shown in the white house gardens, which bloomed with old time larkspur, iris and peonies, tended by Mrs. Coolidge with loving personal care; the kind of flowers you find in old homesteads up in the New England hills. Mrs. Hoover seems best to enjoy a part of the lawn, just beyond the gardens and which she has transformed into a flag-paved court yard, with rustic seats, and awnings, after the fashion in California.

No one here forgets that Mrs. Coolidge, leaving a quiet, domestic life, brought with her traits that make her the best loved and most admired first lady the nation has ever known. That indefinable charm, all her own, lost nothing in transition from cottage to executive mansion.

Mrs. Coolidge loves home—Mrs. Hoover loves adventure.

Perhaps you recall the story how once, when in China at the time of some insurrection, a bomb exploded so near the house where Mrs. Hoover lived, that it overturned the card table at which she sat playing solitaire, in the absence of Mr. Hoover. The table was upset, but not so the nerves of Mrs. Hoover. She simply turned the table right side up, redealt the cards and went on with her game. That is Mrs. Hoover.

Then again, last Christmas eve, she was giving a dinner and tree for the cabinet children when the fire that destroyed the presidential offices broke out. It was under the same roof as the room where the dinner was being served. Did Mrs. Hoover scurry the children home? Not a bit of it. She had them finish their ice cream, then she scuttled them upstairs to a chamber where, from the windows, they could see the flames shoot high in the air, while Washington's huge fire department raced clanging to the scene.

Mrs. Hoover is of the New World Mrs. Coolidge is of New England.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, June 17—President Hoover may have been surprised at both the speed with which his Spanish war pension bill veto was overridden and at the size of the majorities in the two houses.

Certainly a house vote of 11 to 298 to sustain a veto, any veto, is startling. There may be precedents, but the Bystander could not find one in casual search.

Even the virtually unanimous passage of the bill originally in the house failed to give an advance indication of how sweeping would be the defeat of the veto.

Other bills unanimously passed have failed to muster even a majority against a presidential frown.

Not Surprising

But be that as it may, Mr. Hoover and his advisers hardly could have been surprised that the veto was beaten.

Regardless of the merits of the legislation or of the objections to it stated by the president, senators and house members have been under terrific pressure for months to do something for the Spanish war men.

Not a legislative day has passed, so far as the Bystander can recall, since the special session of the 71st congress convened, that has not seen concrete evidence of that pressure.

Every day senators have submitted without comment petitions and memorials from every part of the country praying for legislation in behalf of the Spanish war veterans.

Mr. Hoover's reply to the defeat of the veto indicated that he was resentful of suggestions made during senate debate that he had urged "a pauper provision against veterans or anything akin thereto."

There was a great deal about that said in the senate. Seeking the source of that word "pauper," you find this in a letter urging passage over the veto written to senators and representatives by Edward S. Matthias, chairman of the legislative committee of the United Spanish war veterans:

"The third reason assigned (by the president) for the veto is based upon the demand that there shall now be a requirement of proof of poverty, if not of pauperism, before a veteran of the Spanish-American war may receive a pension."

Influence

That letter was put into the proceedings of both houses although the house voted without debate.

The Spanish war men, never very great relatively in number, clearly have an influence over the country.

One explanation advanced is that, averaging as they now do 60 years of age, many have attained positions of influence which outweigh the lack of numbers.

REFORMER'S FATE

Dr. Harper Somerset took life very seriously. He was young enough to be filled with the enthusiasm of the reformer and one of his pet peeves was the foolishness of women in regard to health. Walking six blocks from the train to his loop office on a rainy or snowy day plunged him into righteous and frowning wrath.

Little girls and big girls, old ladies and flappers, mincing along in puddles of slush and water in their absurd paper-soled slippers and gauzy hosiery, wruffled in furs from the knees up, sniffling with colds and dying from pneumonia—he felt like crusading and blistering their vanity with some plain, harsh facts.

Since the wintry weather had set in he had been particularly annoyed by the sight of one especial pair of expensive patent pumps with slim, high heels and lizard trim which invariably flashed just ahead of him and were swallowed up in the same building for which he was headed. Passing cars skidding through water gayly splashed the chiffon hosiery above them with polka dots of mud and sidewalk slush clung dripping to their sides. The soles, naturally, were soaking wet.

He had no expletives sufficient for the case. They were small feet, but they so annoyed him that it was a positive shock one morning, when she slipped and he broke her fall, to find that there was more to her. She had a face and it was destined to be his Waterloo. At the moment all he felt was a sudden queer dizziness which made him wonder alarmedly if apoplexy was to be his final portion.

"If," he spoke with the sharpness of the privileged professional man, "you wore sensible footgear, my dear young woman, this wouldn't have happened. If I hadn't caught you, you'd have been in that slush!"

"Oh, thank you!" she breathed gratefully. Her expression inferred delicately that she considered him the fount of all wisdom. She had that sort of eyes and mouth. Without realizing it he was walking beside her into their building, afire with propaganda. "I wish," he said sternly, "I could force women by law to wear low heels, rubbers or galoshes on wet days. The way they dress is criminal."

They had paused before his office door and her eyes swept the nameplate. "Thank you, Dr. Somerset," she said almost meekly. "I never really saw it before in the right light—nobody ever explained it to me—but you put it so clearly!"

All that morning interviews with grouchy patients were embroidered with bell-like voice, deep blue eyes and an odd little curl of hair from beneath a quaint felt hat. And she was sensible. His logic had impressed her. This was his first convert. It was remarkable the number of wet, rainy mornings that they walked into the building together, he lecturing, she listening. She still wore the lizard shoes with the three-inch heels, but somehow he got the impression that any minute she was going to burst forth with golf oxfords, or maybe rubber boots. It was easy to handle women if you understand them as he did. Dr. Somerset's fall was a model for a ski slides. Sudden and quickly over. The day they started on their wedding trip was stormy, but the bride he escorted tenderly across the pavements and into his car had, he noted, glittering new pumps, with high, slim heels.

"You have the prettiest little feet, dearest," he murmured for the hundredth time. But, of course, I want you to be sensible and wear proper footgear in weather like this——"

"Oh, yes, indeed!" the new Mrs. Somerset nodded vigorously but sweetly. "You have absolutely convinced me. I'm going to begin right away. You make things so clear, Harper! Only, of course, I feel I must wear out the shoes I've got, mustn't I? We must be economical."

Dr. Somerset looked into her wide-eyed, trusting face. He had heard her mention that her trousseau included ten pairs of shoes. Within him stirred an uncomfortable feeling that in some way he was being fooled, but that was nonsense when he understood women the way he did and had convinced this particular one months ago that he was right. Time and again she had verbally marveled over the force of his arguments. Well, of course, he must give the little girl time.

And so, unwittingly, he started down the pathway she had laid out for him and which for sixty years, straight ahead, didn't have in sight a single pair of galoshes.—Chicago News.

YOUR HEALTH

Rest

By Edward Livingston Hunt, M. D., New York.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Rest means relaxation and nervous people should know its value, for they need it. Like play it must be both mental and physical—not while physical rest may mean either complete inactivity or a change of activity, mental rest always means turning the mind from the ordinary work, problems, or duties into other active channels, for the mind will not take "time out."

To rest physically means to relax and acquire self-control, a lesson which most people need to learn. Make it a rule to lie down in a quiet room every day and during the time practice thinking interesting thoughts—something you have read, a pleasant plan, or an amusing incident. Avoid arguments. Those who are easily irritated should be most on their guard to avoid disputes. Learn to avoid tenseness. The moment one is tense that is the moment to remember the railroad signs at the crossings—Stop—Look—and Listen. Tenseness is the red light—it means danger ahead.

To rest physically also means not to over-eat and not to over-drink. Nervous people require a good deal of food, but they must remember that many a man digs his grave with his teeth. Three meals a day are enough for any one. Too much meat constipates. Nervous people require a great deal of fat, fruits and vegetables.

To rest the mind means to keep it relaxed, and at the same time busy and active. Spend thirty minutes everyday reading; not newspapers and magazines, but a good book. Mystery tales and detective stories amuse and help to pass the time but they do not afford the brain real work and real rest. Good reading is food for the mind, rest for the body and a tonic for the nervous system. Another way to rest the mind is to have a hobby. This will also add great interest to life.

To rest mentally and physically means never to hurry and never to worry. Hurry tires and exhausts; it overdraws the nervous bank account. Worry destroys concentration, interferes with reasoning, and throttles creative thought. The nervous system thrives upon pleasant surroundings and, like a plant in the garden, needs good environment and plenty of water and sunlight. If you hurry and worry the nervous system will rebel. No man can stand financial worry—no woman can stand domestic worry. Laboratory tests show that strong emotions halt the movements of the stomach and intestines and fill the blood with sugar. A hurried dog will take no food; a worried cow will give to milk.

So I advise you to conserve your energy, to avoid friction and worry, to have many and varied interests and not to take life too seriously. Try to see the humorous side of life. Learn to play, work and rest, and do so in an intelligent way.

A YANKEE ABROAD

By DEWITT MacKENZIE

Presentations At Court

LONDON—American matrons and debutantes who are presented at the royal court here no longer may give interviews to the British press about their thrilling adventures.

The United States embassy has put a ban on that. And it is the press itself which is responsible for the move.

English reporters like to get the naturally excited American debutantes to enthuse over the Prince of Wales, the Queen's diamonds and the royal glamor generally.

The embassy decided that these weavers of romance were making American girls appear not only idiomatic but idiotic, and so drew the line on further interviews. Since then several humorists have gone out of business.

Difficult Task

One rushes to add that this situation is no reflection on the women. England likes to try to kid all Yankees.

One of the few Americans who doesn't draw this sort of fire is Bobby Jones. He is just so good at golf and has such a personality that he could stand on his head in Trafalgar square without exciting more than applause. But that doesn't help the embassy in the matter of debutantes.

One of the most difficult jobs encountered by the American ambassador is this yearly court business.

The ambassador is inundated with applications from women and girls who want to do genuflections before royalty. These applications are backed by all the influence, political and otherwise, which can be brought to bear. And out of this flood of appeals the ambassador must select the few whom he is allowed to present—there were only 30 for the four courts of this year.

Trained For It

General Dawes has selected the names himself, spending weeks over the job. He doesn't pass the buck to any of his subordinates.

Once the names are chosen, and the women have been assembled in London, the real work of the embassy begins.

A sort of school is established, and the girls are told what sort of gowns they must have made; they are taught how to wear them, and how to handle a train without falling full length on the stairs, as did a Laborite lady at one of the recent courts.

They are schooled in the wearing of their proud feathers, and they are drilled in making curtsies and in backing with gazelle-like grace from royalty.

One notes that Ambassador Dawes applied for a holiday in America effective right after the court season. The general was entitled to that vacation.

More than 600,000 birds have been banded for identification and study by the United States bureau of biological survey.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The Arrow-Hart & Hegeman Electric Co., Hartford.

Electricity! The word has a snap to it! Expressive words often do, and this one describes an element possessing the speed of light—quicker, trickier than the Old Boy himself!

Accustomed as we are to the everyday use of electricity, the devices commonly employed for keeping it in hand hardly occasion a passing thought. Just because it's so simple to "turn on the juice" one is apt to forget that the flow of this current doesn't start and stop of itself, but like a stream of water, needs some kind of a "faucet."

Hence the electric switch. To light a lamp, run a motor or heat a kitchen range requires a switch of some sort in the wiring system. Switches are so contrived that they make and break the circuit instantaneously in order to prevent a flash at the point where the current is interrupted. Not only must they accomplish this but they must be capable of prolonged service.

Last year the Arrow-Hart & Hegeman Electric Co., a Hartford company, produced over 50 million electric wiring devices embracing switches, sockets, attachment plugs, etc. This large output doubtless exceeds that of any other one company, but since there are many similar concerns operating in this country it shows the impressive volume of the industry.

The Arrow-Hart & Hegeman Electric Co. succeeded in 1928 to the business of two old-established companys in this field, namely The Arrow Electric company, organized in 1905, and the Hart & Hegeman Mfg. Co., organized in 1891. Its factories are located at Hartford, except for the porcelain plant operated in Washington, N. J., which supplies all porcelain parts used by the company.

The present officers are: Edward R. Grier, president; Samuel P. Williams, vice president; Benjamin C. Perkins, vice president; Monroe Guett, vice president; John R. Cook, vice president; Harvey C. Science Has Solved The Laxative Problem

Banish Constipation this easy way.

All you need is a little box of pleasant-tasting pieces of chewing gum, called "Feen-a-mint"—the modern chewing gum laxative. For Feen-a-mint has solved the laxative problem in millions of homes. The secret of Feen-a-mint's success is uniform "internal distribution" which scientists now know is essential to real efficiency in any laxative.

Because you chew Feen-a-mint it is effective in milder doses than ordinary laxatives. For the effectives of a laxative is not so much dependent upon the quantity swallowed as upon the thoroughness of its distribution throughout the alimentary tract.

While you chew this delicious bit of gum the tasteless laxative it contains is gradually released and mixed with the saliva. Thus it is carried to the intestinal tract smoothly, evenly without shock to the system or the distressing after-effects so common with old-fashioned laxatives. Each particle of the laxative in Feen-a-mint works with utmost efficiency, gently encouraging the intestinal muscles to resume the activity so necessary for healthful elimination.

The action of Feen-a-mint is thorough, gentle, dependable. With the proper dosage, it is not necessary to increase the amount of Feen-a-mint you take nor to switch to another laxative for a change. Feen-a-mint is harmless and contains no habit-forming drugs. Truly the health laxative. Ask for a package at any drug store.

Barber); Ivy oration, John Kinney Tingley; valedictory address, Fannie Rasin; presentation of diplomas; presentation of class gift, Ralph Lillibridge Gibbs, class president; award of prizes and medals; hymn; benediction.

Gave Valedictory Address

Miss Fannie Rasin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kalman Rasin of 21 Grant court, was the valedictorian of the class by reason of being the high ranking scholar and she also received the Frank T. Brown memorial prize of $20 as the pupil who has made the best use of opportunity.

Miss Rasin gave the valedictory as follows:

Mr. Tirrell and teachers: We thank you for the guidance and helpful advice which you have given us during these four years.

Mr. Palmer and trustees: We express our heartfelt appreciation for the opportunity you have afforded us of obtaining a secondary education in this community.

Classmates: It is four years now since we have anchored our ships of life in the beloved port of N. F. A. It is a safe harbor; its waters are calm. If occasionally we did venture out to sea it was our pilot, our parents, who directed the ship. If dark clouds gathered and threatened us, again it was our pilot who steered us clear of the storm. And if the storm did break over us, if thunder resounded and lightning flashed, whose hands shielded us and drove our ship to safety?

However, during these years we have not been idle. True, our ships lay in the harbor under the general management of our captains. But we were busy within the portals of N. F. A. collecting our cargoes. Our cargoes, we gathered from the world of books under the supervision of the teachers and we piled our ships high. Moreover, we brought things by far more valuable than gold and jewels. We brought experience, strengthened characters, sympathetic understanding and pleasant memories. Yet not one ship is full. For this burden of ours has been touched by the wand of a magician. The higher that the ship is loaded, the more space does it develop for a greater amount, the more lightly does it ride the waves. The greater number of hands our cargo passes through, so much the more does it increase, the richer do we become. No matter how many times we may exchange it, it is permanently ours to be wrested from us by no one. Would one of us refuse such wealth in thought? Then let us use our cargoes. Let us not allow them to rot away in our ships!

But come, our loaded ships await us and the wind is fair. Let us say our path lies over uncertain waters over which our pilots have once traveled and can never do so again. Therefore, must we take the wheel in our own hands. We are adventurers ready to travel the high seas of life, meet we "fair weather or foul," with stury hearts and though saddened by the loss of two of our companions, with cheerful countenances. Let us weigh anchor and away!

HOLY FAMILY ACADEMY GRADUATES CLASS OF TEN

The Academy of the Holy Family, Baltic, had a graduating class of ten girls when the graduation exercises were held Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock at the Church of the Immaculate Conception, following the solemn high mass celebrated by the pastor, Rev. W. T. O'Brien. The congregation of relatives and friends of the graduates filled the church. The musical programme was by the Academy choir, with Miss Nellie Milner, the church organist, at the organ.

Baccalaureate Sermon

Rev. John J. Reilly, curate at St. Patrick's church, this city, delivered the baccalaureate sermon, speaking with his characteristic eloquence and impressing upon the graduates the importance of the influence they may exert upon those around by remembering and adhering to the lessons and precepts which have been given them during their years at the academy.

In conclusion he said:

And Girls, then, graduates of Baltic Academy, a noble mission lies before you; you too have a calling, a vocation. You are young in years but the strength of your example may have no parallel. You have often heard the oft repeated saying, "A little child shall lead them." It would not be at all absurd if God, dissatisfied with the way maturer minds are running things and obtaining results, would turn to your young minds and look to you as ones more fit to carry out His program here on earth. Indeed, He has shown a tendency for this already. The Little Flower so exceptionally honored in so short a time, seems chosen by Divine Guidance to be a forerunner of this child apostalate. In the middle ages when the desire to win the Holy Land back to Christ burned so strongly in Christian hearts, thousands of children, impatient at the failure of the grown-ups, set out on what is known as "The Children's Crusade," to win the Holy Land for Christ. They failed, they even dropped on the way but their spirit should live today, inspiring you to win for Christ not mere territory, a stretch of earth, but to win Christ the hearts of men and you will do this very thing not by weary marches of feats beyond your strength but by living your own pure lives by thus becoming a source of good example to those around you, by ever keeping within that circle of light I have called the light of eternity, by asking God each night as you drop upon your knees, "How, O God, does this day look to You—how would this day look in the light that shines from heaven?"

Class Honors

During the exercises a number of the graduates received, in addition to their diplomas, special awards for excelling in the various subjects during the course of their studies. Gave Party For Seniors.

The musical programme during the bridge was by the school orchestra, which was hidden, but which played whenever a skillfully arranged imitation radio was turned on. There were vocal choruses,

COMPSTON LEADS IN BRITISH OPEN WITH JONES TRAILING IN 20TH PLACE

By FRANK H. KING
Associated Press Staff Writer

HOYLAKE, England, June 17—(AP)—Archie Compston, giant golfer from the English midlands, with medal rounds of 70-71—141, led the qualifying round for the British open, with Bobby Jones and seven other Americans trailing him.

All the serious contenders from the United States, Leo Diegel, Horton and MacDonald Smith, professional, and Jones, George Von Elm, Don Moe and F. C. Stevens, Jr., the amateurs, were tonight in the select company of 112 who comprised the 100 lowest scores and ties for the hundredth place.

Others of the 290 odd who started yesterday are free to go home with their alibis while the rest fight the real championship battle—72 holes medal play—during the coming three days.

Compston not only led the field but Henry Cotton, young British pro, was second with 142, and W. T. Twine, former Kent professional champion and yesterday's leader, stood third at 144. With the first three places occupied by Britons there was a tremor of pride—hopes that after all there was a chance to regain the old country's long lost open title which has gone across the Atlantic in eight of the last nine years.

Diegel tied with Percy Allise, British pro resident in Berlin, at 145 to lead the American group, while George Von Elm tied with Cyril Tolley with 147 to lead the amateurs among the qualifiers.

Bobby Jones was tied with six others for 20th place in the qualifying lists. He was not a golfing machine today as he scaled the heights of Wallasey and finally checked in with a round of 77, which he considered about the worst he had played in Britain.

They made him a life honorary member of the club when he finished but he did not make a speech about how he loves the Wallasey fairways as he does at St. Andrews.

Other disasters occurred at Wallasey. Diegel blew up after a great start which threatened Compston's lead and wound up with 76 when he seemed likely to score 70, and then a church near the clubhouse caught fire and golf fans and caddies helped choir boys and firemen to extinguish the blaze.

There were few real upsets in the qualifying tests. Arthur G. Havers, the 1923 champion, failed with a score of 299 and three of the oldsters who nowadays play more for fun than for the title were eliminated. Harry Vardon, 240, Alex Herd, 163 and James Braid 373.

MacDonald Smith had a fine round of 71, at Hoylake, to tie with Tom Green for the day's leadership at this course while Henry Cotton's 70 led at Wallasey.

Don Moe gave the Americans some shaky moments as he started unsteadily and continued to wobble all the way round, finally taking 80. Horton Smith played sound golf all the way scoring 76, the same score returned by George Von Elm.

All the Americans seemed to be satisfied to qualify without trying to break any records. Weather conditions continued ideal and if similar weather prevails for the next three days the winning score will be many strokes under the 301 open championship record for the course.

The pairings for the American players tomorrow:

Don Moe and Ted Ray.
George Von Elm and A. H. Padgham.
Bobby Jones and R. H. Oppenheimer.

THREE WASHINGTON CREWS VICTORIOUS OVER WISCONSIN

MADISON, Wis. June 17—(AP)—The University of Washington overwhelmed Wisconsin today by sending three shell crews to victory over the two mile Lake Monona course.

A crowd of 10,000 braved a steady rain and cold wind to watch the races.

The Huskies' varsity shell ran well ahead of the Badgers to clear the finish flag in 10:14, the fastest time ever made in a two mile race. By their record-breaking time, Washington was looked upon as a heavy favorite to win the four mile Poughkeepsie classic on June 26.

Wisconsin's freshmen eight put up a brilliant fight against Washington's Yearlings, but lost by two and a half lengths. The winners covered the course in 10:36 to make themselves formidable contenders for the frosh race on the Hudson. The Badgers stroked the course in 10:46.

The Westerners' junior varsity won by the biggest margin, rowing the course in 10:32.5 to beat Wisconsin by almost seven lengths.

The three Washington crews and the Badger varsity boatload together with coaches, manager and reserves started for Poughkeepsie after the races.

"Population Greater New London Now 38,000"—Headline in New London paper.

The geography class in a New London school is in session and the subject of the lesson deals with New London county.

Teacher: "Now children open your books to the map of New London county. You all have it? All right, now look at the mouth of the Thames river. Do you see that New London is located right there, that little black dot? Well, now take your pencils and draw a ring around the town of Waterford and the borough of Groton and mark it "Greater New London." Now hereafter when you think of New London, think of it as including that area. And when people ask the population of New London say it is 38,000.

Sammy Smart: "But, teacher, New London don't own Waterford and Groton, does it?"

Teacher: "Now Sammy, New London don't own these towns but they buy all their goods here so we include them as belonging to us."

Sammy Smart: "Don't people from Mystic and Stonington and Montville and the Sub Base buy things here but they're not included."

Teacher: "Yes, I suppose they do but it wouldn't look well for us to include them, people might think we were claiming too much."

Sammy Smart: "Do other towns such as Norwich and Willimantic do the same as we do?"

Teacher: "I don't know, we're not interested in those cities."

Sammy Smart: "But, teacher, do the people of Groton and Waterford want to be included in Greater New London? And what would they say when somebody asked them the population of their towns?"

Teacher: "Don't ask foolish questions, of course the people of those towns are glad to be called part of New London. Why shouldn't they? Then they could say their population was 38,000 too."

Sammy Smart: "But what good would it do for them to say that?"

Teacher: "That's enough, Sammy. The population of New London is 38,000. Now remember that. Class is dismissed.

BROWNS BEAT SENATORS IN FREE-HITTING CONTEST

St. LOUIS, June 17—(AP)—The St. Louis Browns won from the Washington Senators, 12 to 9, here today in a game which developed into a free-hitting, free scoring contest in the final innings. The victory gave the Browns the series, three games out of four.

The Browns went into the eighth inning with a 6 to 4 lead as a result of Goose Goslin's first homer since changing over to St. Louis, and piled six more runs atop their lead. The Senators answered the challenge by scoring five runs in the ninth, just three short of a tie.

Cronin also hit for the circuit.

The Browns ended their home engagement, leaving tonight for Boston to open a series with the Red Sox. The score:

Eppa Rixey failed to hold a three run lead in the second game and the heavy hitting Braves garnered 16 safeties off three pitchers before the game was over. The score:

The Norwich Industrial league, now becoming better known as the City league, enters its fourth year tonight at the Academy campus with the opening game of the campaign between the 1929 winners, the Smoke Shop and the Thermos Bottlers, the only other club now in the circuit that was in it the first year. The game will start at 6:30 and will be preceded by the annual ceremonies of the tossing out of the first ball by Mayor Lee Roy Robbins, flag-raising and a band concert, this by the Academy band.

Six Teams Entered

The six-team circuit this year again sponsored by the recreation commission gives promise of being the best yet in the twilight line around the city. Since the start just about four years ago this week, the circuit has known a phenomenal growth until now its strength is comparable to any of the city loops in the state. The six teams entered are the Smoke Shop, Thermos Bottle Co., Polish-American Citizens club, The Royals, Young Men's Italian society and Ideal Service Station. The first three were in the league last year.

Both the Smoke Shop and Thermos present somewhat changed lineups tonight from their last appearances in 1929. The Smoke Shop has taken on Mace Goldblatt, former Academy captain and at present starring at William and Mary college, to catch and captain the club, also Artie Couillard, at first base, last year a member of the pennant-winning Socony club in the New London City league, Dinty Moore, formerly of Riverview, at second, Art Breen, of N. F. A., at third and Magnan, of Riverview and Butsy Weisgraber, Academy luminary, as pitchers. These are added to Chubby Gibbs, Academy captain this past year, at short and Fitzgerald, LaCroix and Fagan in the outfield.

The Thermos has as added strength Enos Eccleston, catcher and captain, Joe Hamil, at first, Mondi Normandin at second, Carlie Krauss, at shcit and Nickerson pitching, all members of either J. B. Martin or Riverview and also Andy Kotch, last year with the Richmond Radiators.

Riverview Hurlers Tangle

The probable starting hurlers tonight will be Magnan and Nickerson, both members of the Riverview hurling staff this year.

The following are the former pennant winners: 1927, Richmond Radiators; 1928, United States Finishing Co.; 1929, Smoke Shop.

O'DOUL'S SINGLE GIVES PHILLIES WIN IN TENTH

PHILADELPHIA, June 17—(AP)—Lefty O'Doul's tenth inning single broke up a pitchers battle and gave the Phillies a 5 to 4 decision over the Pirates today.

Chester Nichols and Larry French locked in the hurlers duel and although hit hard at times, kept the batters' hits well scattered. The Phillies got twelve off the Pirates' southpaw while Pittsburgh got to Nichols for ten safeties.

Chuck Klein, after going hitless the first three times at the plate, connected with a single in the eighth inning to run his consecutive game hitting to 26. Pie Traynor put the ball over the fence for a home run in the sixth—the inning in which the Pirates scored all of their runs.

O'Doul's single in the tenth scored Denny Southern, who led off the round with a single and advanced to second on an infield out. The score:

ACADEMY TEAMS LOSE MANY BY GRADUATION

Graduation this year at the Academy takes a heavy toll on the athletic teams, making bare positions that will be not easy to fill.

Football and baseball are touched both in quality and quantity while the loss in track, although not so much in numbers, nevertheless amounts to something when it is considered that Capt. Sam Berkman, Johnnie Lenkeiwicz, Frank Barber and Beebe are now through tussling for the Red and White.

Coach Brigham has lost his entire outfield, his catcher and half of his infield in baseball. Capt. Chubby Gibbs, shortstop, Arthur (Micky) Breen, third base, Butsy Weisgraber, pitcher, left fielder, Hack Pepin, center field, Ed Flather, right field and Bud Fontaine comprise the list of departing athletes. Chet Berghinzo, who played in the outfield the first half of the year, also leaves. In football Chet Berghinzo, Ed Flather and Jim Mullen, ends; Gordon Cruickshank, center; Orria Hertz, tackle, Frank Wojstasiak, guard; and Frank Barber, Harry Sherry, Red Armstrong and Bill Brewer will fight no more battles in Wildcat regalia. Barber will be the one most missed for he was the mainstay of the 1929 eleven.

There was no basketball team at the school this year but those of the 1929 quintet who have gone are Frank Barber and Chet Berghinzo.

YALE TAKES WET GAME FROM HARVARD, 9 TO 5

NEW HAVEN, June 17—(AP)—Playing in a steady downpour of rain before an alumni crowd of 9,000, Yale defeated Harvard today in their 158th baseball game by a score of 9 to 5.

Yale relinquished an early lead of three runs, but pulled the game out of the fire in the seventh and eighth when Ben Ticknor weakened and three other Crimson pitchers proved to be no more effective. Yale scored three runs in each of these two innings.

Tomorrow the teams will meet in the second and last game of the annual series at Cambridge.

Harvard overcame the three run lead Yale piled up in the first inning on one hit and three errors when Ned Jennison, Eli twirler, allowed the visitors five hits and five runs in the third and fourth innings. Ticknor, who was a star for Harvard on the gridiron last fall, held the Elis well in check until the seventh despite the fact that he has performed mainly as an outfielder this season.

In the seventh he walked three men. Mackenzie scored on Vincent's sacrifice, but only after a heroic effort on the part of Desroches. Crimson third baseman to prevent it. Desroches crashed into the dugout to take the fly, and threw it back into the field before he collapsed, his chest badly injured. He recovered sufficiently to finish out the inning and then retired.

Booth and Walker were brought in on Warren's triple.

Bill Machale relieved Ticknor and struck out Maine to retire the side. Samborski and Devens were sent on the mound in the eighth after Machale weakened. Yale scored three more runs in this inning.

Several thousand Yale alumni, dressed in fantastic costumes and headed by a baker's dozen bands, paraded on the field before the game.

AIRSHIP MAKES LANDING IN FOG AND RAIN

Rain that fell in torrents and a fog that shrouded the countryside failed to postpone the coming of New England's own airship, the Neponset of New Bedford, which is on a tour of business and good-will of New England, to the Rose of New England, and shortly after 6 o'clock Tuesday evening its nose was first sighted breaking through the thick atmosphere in the neighborhood of Norwich Town. The adverse elements did not in the least prove to be a stumbling block to the several hundred persons who went to the field to view the landing of the aircraft at Gager's farm on the southerly slope of Mohegan hill on the Norwich-New London highway. This is the first commercial airship that has made a landing in this section.

Appearing out of the sky like a huge silver-shaped cigar, though the heavy rain and fog at times obliterated the craft, it circled over the city, and later motored over the Norwich Inn. After affording the local residents, who, through necessity, had to be out in the miserable weather, an opportunity to view the huge aircraft, the ship, flying low over the city on account of the low ceiling, headed toward its landing place at Gager's field. Awaiting the lighter-than-air ship was the ground crew, numbering 12, with the ship's own portable mooring mast, probably the most unique "hitching post" in the world, and other paraphernalia with which to keep the ship close to terra firma. Circling the spacious meadow, which will be its headquarters temporarily, the ship's pilot maneuvered the craft over the field and dropped to the ground as gracefully as could be, after the fashion of a duck alighting on water. The craft was then moored to its collapsible mast supported by guy wires attached to iron stakes. The mast, which is fitted out with a mobile base, allows the ship to remain above ground and swing back and forth according to the direction of the wind.

Upon the arrival of the ship on the field, the crew and the president of New England Aircraft corporation, A. G. Wadsworth, were extended a hearty welcome by Frank R. Murdy, president of the Norwich chamber of commerce, in the absence of Mayor Lee Roy Robbins, who was unable to be present. With Mr. Murdy were John M. Morley, a chamber member, and several members of the aviation committee of the chamber, who braved the elements. The aviation committee comprises Walter F. Lester, chairman; A. M. VanWagenen, J. Henry Shannon, W. H. Stebbins, George W. Moore, E. J. VanTassel, Joseph P. Connor and Charles W. Cassidy.

About 200 machines were in the vicinity of the field and at least 250 persons who had come to witness the ship's maneuvers and its landing. The ship will remain at its berth until 7 o'clock, this (Wednesday) evening, depending upon weather conditions, and during the day will take up city officials and members of the chamber of commerce for a sail in the realm of birds.

WESTERLY

PLAINTIFF WINS VERDICT OF $135 AND INTEREST

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, June 17—Jurors again reported on Tuesday morning in Washington County Superior court with Justice Pouliot of Central Falls, R. I., on the bench at the Union street courthouse. The first case taken up at 11:00 o'clock was that of A. M. Gencarelli & Co., of Westerly vs. Frank Cella of Pawcatuck to recover for masonry work done and waterproofing in the basement of the Cella block, so-called at the corner of West Broad and Mechanic streets on the edge of the railroad embankment at the New Haven railroad dry bridge over West Broad street.

The case outlined for plaintiffs, Angelo M. Gencarelli and Frank Sposato, was for the work performed in January, 1927, when a contract was entered into between parties, and the defendant was declared to be on the job all the time interferring with the workmen and directing them until March 7, 1927, when it was alleged that the plaintiff was of the opinion that the job could not be finished satisfactorily, the original contract being for $365. When some $250 worth of work was claimed as performed the contractor made a proposition that he would be satisfied if $135 was paid him and the job called off. A receipt was testified to by the plaintiff as given Mr. Cella who was to go to his home and secure the money in the amount of $135 but this he had failed to do at that time or even later. The jury was out but ten minutes and Foreman Robinson announced that a verdict was found for the plaintiff in the amount of $135 and interest which totalled $146.33.

A jury was then empanelled to hear the suit of Jimmy Durkin against Stanley Dreczko and wife, Mary Dreczko, all of Westerly in which the plaintiff, represented by Attorney Dunn sought to recover the amount of $600 leaned the defendants as "rent" for an automobile.

Following the disposition of the Durkin-Dreczko case Judge Pouliot will hear a number of equity matters in cases not requiring jurymen.

Julian Wells Maxson returned to his home on Saturday night after a several months' business trip to Norway and Sweden in the interests of the Erie Lay Boy of the Maxson Machinery Co. Mr. Maxson passed some time at Stockholm. When arriving in England he met a former Westerly school boy chum, Howard Clark Davis, who was on a business trip and they went to Henley and passed the day together. The previous meeting of these Westerly men was about a year ago when both were in Berkeley, Cal. Mr. Maxson states that they are wondering where they will meet next.

Miss Mabel A. Saunders has returned to her duties as deputy town clerk of Westerly after a vacation trip with her sister, at Lake Mobonk, N. Y.

Employes of the South County Public Service Co. of Westerly were engaged on Tuesday morning in removing two of the iron poles formerly used to carry the supporting wires for the trolley wire of the old Norwich and Westerly Electric railroad.

A double-decked motor bus of the New England Transportation Co., with some 20 or more executive secretaries and officials of the A. A. A. on a Good Will trip through New England with several private autos and official cars crossed the Pawcatuck river bridge into Westerly shortly after 11:00 a. m. Tuesday. The party came to a stop at the main entrance to Wilcox park opposite the Westerly town hall on Broad street where they were met by representatives of the Westerly chamber of commerce, with Dr. John Champlin, Sr., president. Others in the welcoming group as they stepped into Wilcox park were Frank A. Sullivan, publicity committee, Town Councilmen Horace E. Burdick and Isaac G. Smith and Town Clerk Everett E. Whipple. Henry L. Burdick, the chamber traffic committee chairman was also present with motion picture camera to "take" the group as they approached and departed from the Wilcox ornamental fountain.

Either there are more turtles or there are more smart alecks who are determined to run over every turtle they see, judging by the number of smashed turtles in the roads these days. It is a common sight to see one of these small turtles going across the road, and it seems to be the duty of many motorists to run over them, instead of steering out for them.

THOUGHT "WELCOME" TAG WAS POLICE SUMMONS

Shortly after Miss Helen Catherine Farrell, 28, and Albert Sabin Bradley 28, both of Providence, arrived here this morning to be married, Chief John McFarland tagged the car they had parked in the business section, opposite the postoffice.

Protestations were quick to reach the ears of the officer that no time limit had been exceeded, etc., etc., until someone in the bridal party thought to glance at the card and to be smilingly shocked upon reading "Welcome to Danielson," and the further announcements relative to parking regulations not applying to motorists from out of town and as to the glad hand that this community extends its visitors.

The card is of the type that the police will hand out during the tourist season, and mayhap regularly hereafter. As the card confers special privileges on visitors here they are very much appreciated by those who had them attached to their cars. And, oh yes, Miss Farrell, entering upon matrimonial life for the first time, and Dr. Bradley, who previously has been married and divorced, proceeded to the home of Deputy Judge Charles S. Francis on Academy street and were duly wed.

The bride gave her occupation as nurse, the groom as fireman.

DEALER FINED FOR SELLING WATERED MILK

Joseph Sochol of Attawaugan was brought before Deputy Judge Francis in the town court this morning and was fined $7 and costs for selling milk that had been diluted with water. A state inspector, who took a sample of the milk from this dealer, found it to contain 17.91 per cent of water.

Edward Frechette of Oak street also was to have appeared in court today to answer to a charge of operating a motor vehicle while he was intoxicated, but the case was continued until Monday. He was arrested by State Officer H. Theodore Strand.

There was another continuance in cases against Arthur Roberts and William Roberts, both of East Killingly. These cases also go over to next Monday. They are charged with having set fires without having permits and with breach of the peace.

There is special interest here in the announcement relative to the gift of four scholarships to Connecticut college from the estate of the late Marinda C. Butler Robinson, for many years a resident of Danielson. The scholarships are annual and are of $450 each.

Mrs Robinson, who during her final years of residence here was a widow, her husband, Dr. Rienzi Robinson, having been one of the county's leading physicians for many years prior to his death, was greatly interested in Connecticut college from its beginning.

She worked diligently, unceasingly and with a striking measure of success to create the fund for the construction of Windham House at the college. Her enthusiasm for the project inspired other well-known women throughout the country to emulate her example and to expend their best efforts toward consummation of the project.

Her gift of the scholarships to Connecticut college is typical of her attitude in life toward the institution.

Laurel in Full Bloom

Laurel, Connecticut's beautiful state flower, is in full bloom just now in nearby territory and is very beautifully colored this year. Forest fires early this spring swept over some areas where laurel was to be found in abundance in the past, and ruined it, but there are other sections of the town where the flower is to be found in as great profusion as ever.

Hitch hikers have appeared in numbers along highways in this section within the past week, and with as great persistence as ever are jerking thumbs at passing motorists for rides. Observation as to their success in getting toted about the country free of charge is, at least in this section, that it is not so good as in years gone by. A great many motorists apparently feel that there is too much risk in picking up strangers nowadays.

No-parking signs are now in place along the easterly side of School street between Center and School streets and motorists are obeying the newest restriction as to leaving their cars while they go shopping, to the theatre or on some errand or other. The extreme congestion caused in the section of School street mentioned when cars were allowed parked on each side of the street made the new regulation necessary.

Lieut. Harry Boyd, U. S. A., graduate of the United States Military academy at West Point, the past week, is visiting here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Boyd, of the West Side. Completion of his course at the military academy suggests that towns hereabouts are no longer represented at the famous institution, and that it would be nice if one or more youths might win appointments, though necessarily hard to get.

Services for William Potter, who died Sunday in Brooklyn, were held this afternoon at L. E. Kennedy's funeral home here. Rev. C. C. Rowlinson, pastor of the Brooklyn Congregational church, conducted the service. Burial was in the South cemetery at Brooklyn. Relatives acted as bearers.

A touring party from Arizona rated the farthest from home of today's visitors in Danielson.

It is understood that Thursday half-holidays for store forces will not be inaugurated here this year until July 10, as the first Thursday of the month is the day before the Fourth, and the Fourth is a full holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry D. Crosby are at their cottage at Oakland Beach R. I., for the summer season.

Mrs. Clinton Ellison and son, Jr., have gone to Newmarket, N. H., for a visit with her parents.

The suggestion was heard this morning that a newly-erected sign on Davis park reading "No More Ball-Playing" does not mean that the boys can play there "as much" as former.

In Quarantine Area

The town of Killingly lies within the area of quarantine against the Japanese beetle, though this area is believed to be only lightly infested with this pest.

It was explained this morning by an executive of the company that only a very few, two score or thereabouts, out of upwards of 1,600 employes of Powdrell & Alexander are working on the three days a week schedule. The others are on full time.

John B. Labossiere of Fall River is visiting with friends in Danielson and other towns in this vicinity for a few days.

To avoid construction work at Jewett City, some motorists who travel regularly between Norwich and points hereabouts are going via Hampton and Windham, a route that adds about ten miles of driving.

PUTNAM

BELIEVE BOYS EYESIGHT WILL BE SAVED

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUNAM, June 17—The hoax that two gunmen riding in a Ford coupe registered in Massachusetts, had shot Edward Carpenter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Carpenter of Grove street, perpetrated by Ralph Perry, 8 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Perry of Grove street almost caused serious embarrassment to a number of innocent persons yesterday afternoon when the alarm was spread throughout the countryside.

Officers investigating accepted the statement of the Perry and Carpenter boys that the latter had been shot. Police alarms were flashed to state troopers in Massachusetts and Rhode Island and all highways and by-ways leading into both states were posted with troopers ordered to halt all Massachusetts registered Ford cars of the coupe design.

The Carpenter boy, a patient at the Day Kimball hospital was reported today as somewhat improved. Although his face is severely burned by gasoline fumes, an eye specialist who is attending him, said today that he believed the child's eyesight would be preserved.

Late yesterday afternoon while the two boys were walking to their homes they stopped along the roadside and dropped a match into the gasoline tank of an abandoned truck. The flames did not take effect for several seconds after the match was tossed into the tank, and Perry peered into the cylinder to investigate. An explosion followed. At the hospital today it was said that one side of his face is badly burned. Much of his hair was singed and his eyes were also burned.

Carpenter and Perry concocted the weird tale of bandits between themselves and both stuck to their story, avowing they were telling the truth. Gasoline fumes on the hands of the Perry boy and the nature of the injuries of the Carpenter lad exploded the tale of fleeing gunmen.

OBITUARY

James E. Chase

James E. Chase of East Killingly died at his home in that village today after a brief illness. He was 79 years of age. Charged With Assault

Oliver Gobin of North Grosvenordale is under arrest in that town on a charge of assault upon Joseph Bruneau. Both are milk men and sell their dairy products in the villages of Grosvenordale competing with one another. According to Bruneau, the complainant in the action, Gobin, is alleged to have taken one of his milk bottles from a customer. He enquired of his competitor for his property. Gobin, according to Bruneau, leaped from his wagon and dealth him a blow. The case will be tried before Justice P. P. Tourtellotte in North Grosvenordale Thursday afternoon.

The tank, the chief said, today, is complete as far as the iron and steel work is concerned. At the present time painters are at work painting the inside of the cylinder.

The end of the riveting work came as a relief to residents of the Oak hill section, who were forced to arise in the morning at seven o'clock when the workers began their day's work.

She was the daughter of Joseph and Delima (Briere) Sarette and was well known in Putnam where she resided for many years.

The city's two hour code of parking regulations is being faithfully observed by motorists. Since the inauguration of the code two weeks ago, the police have not as yet been forced to call any driver's attention to infractions of the recently enacted laws. Captain Dubreuil said today that the new ordinance is proving effective in solving the traffic problems in the business district.

State Officer Henry M. Mayo of the Danielson barracks was in Putnam today examining applicants for motor vehicle operators' licenses. An unusally large number of prospective drivers greeted the officer this morning as he arrived to conduct road tests.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE-AWAKES

Palisades.

And still we climb,
Upward into those sheer and threatening cliffs
Storming against the sky.
As though to stop our impudent assault.
The sun laid great hot hands upon our backs,
And bent them down.
There were no bluff, good-humored winds to push us on;
There were no shrubs to grasp, no staff to aid;
Laughter was all we leaned on. . . .
And then
At last the height, and the long climb over!
And laughing still, we drew long, panting breaths;
And our pulses jumped with a proud and foolish thrill,
As though we had gained not merely the top of a hill,
But a victory.

Up here the gaunt earth seemed to sprawl,
Stretching its legs Leyond the cramping skies,
And lie upon its cloudy back and yawn.
Rhythmical breezes arose,
Like a strong man awaking from sleep,
Like the measured breathing of Day.
And the earth stirred and called up.
An unseen path sprang from the undergrowth,
And dodged among the bushes lightly, beckoning us on;
Vine-snares and rocks made way for us;
Bushes threw themselves before our feet;
The eager little armies of the grass,
Waving their happy spears, ran on beside us:
And when we slackened, when we thought of resting,
The running grasses stopped, the earth sank back into itself,
Became a living pillow, a soft breast,
And every branch held out its comforting arms.
The wind pressed close, and, growing gentle, sang to us:
And so we sat beneath the mothering trees.

—From "On the Palisades," By Louis Untermeyer.

The Fountain in Post-Office Square.

(Erected as a monument to the memory of George Thorndike Angell, by the school children of Boston, Mass.)

Soft gray wings a-fluttering
Round the fountain's brink;
Tired horses standing there
In heat to drink:
Warm and weary drivers
Full of chat and jest
As they wait, loose reins in hand,
Glad for chance to rest.—

What a picture does it make
In the noisy mart,
Midst the tumult and the strife
Of the city's heart,
That tall column rising fair,
Monument to love—
Love for man and thirsty beast,
Sparrow wee and dove!

Little children, we it was Placed the fountain there—
Topped with golden eagle bright
In the sunlit air—
Monument to the great soul,
Champion of the weak,
Oppressed and dumb, lacking voice
For themselves to speak.

—Louella C. Poole.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE-AWAKES.

There are many kinds of watchdogs, and there are many worthwhile stories told about watch-dogs. This is said to be a true story of a watchdog in the time-keeping sense.

While haying, a California rancher lost a valuable gold watch. Some time later, accompanied by his dog, a water spaniel, he went out in the field to hunt for the lost timepiece. But after searching fruitlessly for a good while, he concluded to give up the hunt and return to the house.

Noticing his dog standing quietly at some distance away, he called to it and went on. But pretty soon he noticed that the dog was not following. Turning, he saw it standing steadfastly at the same spot. Repeated calls failing to move it, he returned to find out what kept the creature from obeying his commands. And upon reaching the spot he saw, to his pleased surprise, that the dog was "pointing" at the lost watch.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE-AWAKES.

My Trip to Mars.

Dear Uncle Jed: One day our teacher told us to write a story about a trip to Mars so this is the story that I wrote:

I was watching the stars one night when I began to wonder if I could go to Mars. Then suddenly I felt myself being pulled up into the sky. Someone had ahold of my hair! I thought I would pinch myself to make sure I was not dreaming, but having my hair almost pulled out by the roots hurt enough so I decided not to try.

Then suddenly I felt that I was standing on the ground and the man who held me by the hair was standing nearby. I gazed around to see if I could see my house but no, it could not be seen, so I became very frightened and wondered where I was.

Then I had a new surprise for I saw many people standing by me. But they were not like any people I had ever seen before, for they had pure white skin and curly yellow hair. They wore long white garments of silk.

"Are they angels," I asked myself. No they could not be for they had no wings.

"Where am I?" I asked of one of the women nearby.

"You are in Mars," she answered cooly.

"In Mars!" I said to myself. I had just opened my mouth to answer her, but something in the distance caught my attention for I saw something round, flying in the sir toward us.

"Here is our chariot," said a young man and he motioned for me to come.

When I came closer to it I saw that it was only a tin pan.

"Get in," commanded the man.

"Get in?" I asked. "Why it is too small!"

The man kicked up a rock and was just going to hit me with it when suddenly I jumped into the tin pan, and lo! it grew larger and larger and all of the people jumped in.

The pan rose up into the air carrying us with it.

Soon the pan came down with a bump and we all tumbled out. I looked around and saw a large building about one hundred stories high. Around the house I saw many men making stars out of tin. Then I saw that the stars were standing in the air. I immediately began jumping from one star to another.

Then I felt myself slipping from one of the stars. I fell down with a thump.

I opened my eyes only to see that I had rolled down a hill and hit a rock. While watching the stars I had fallen asleep so you see it was only a dream.

My Kitten.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you. I am going to tell you about my kitten. I have one kitten and her name is Mirry. Her coat is almost black, with some white spots and her eyes are blue. I give my kitten milk every day. I like my little kitten. I hope all the Wide-Awakes will like my story.

A Clever Calf.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you and the Wide Awakes about a a calf called "Fancy." Last year we bought a little heifer, one or two days old. Her fur was so shiny that at once we named her "Fancy."

She grew up and was a very big pet. Everybody liked her because she was so pretty. This June she will be one year old. There was no gate that she could not get over. If it was a tall gate she would put her head between the bars and push till she was able to get through. If it was a small gate she would jump over. Then she would go into a hay-field. This kept on a long while till my father could stand it no longer. For she would not go out during the day, but towards evening. My father took her and kept her in the barn a few nights. One day he let her out to see what she would do. For two evenings she went from gate to gate and kept mooing, afraid to go over, but the third night she went over. As soon as she went over my father put her in the barn for a week. Now she no longer goes through gates, she only stands by them and moos. She is of a deep brown and white, and is very clever. I wish you and the Wide Awakes could see her. I am sure you would like her.

A Brave Prince.

Uncle Jed: Once upon a time there was a brave prince. The king liked him very much. He was going on a journey to St. Philip's grotto. When he came to the grotto a house suddenly appeared. A hideous ape was outside. Then came the inmates of the house. They were rough, lazy people. They beat the prince and made him do all the work. One night when he was bleeding from a beating the people of the house had given him the ape said:

"Lead me in the wall of the house three rights running and you will be free."

The prince rose up, took the ape and walked to the wall of the house.

The wall of the house opened and they walked through. When he came out he saw the ape standing on the outside, too.

The next night the walls nearly shut; but the third night he was safe. When he came out the third night there was an old man, a beautiful lady and the prince's army.

The old man said: "This is your army and this is your bride." The old man vanished and the house vanished, too.

My Five Pets.

Dear Uncle Jed: I think it is about time I should write to you and the Wide Awake friends so I'm going to tell you of a few of my pets. First we have five police puppies. They are five weeks old. Their names are Woodchuck, Lindy, Blackie, Beauty and Girlie. The mother's name is Lady. We also have two little white mice. They are very cute. They are pure white with pink eyes. My mother feeds them bread dipped in milk. They like that pretty well for there isn't any left by the next feeding time.

We also have a cow, we call her Jolly, she is so gentle and good. She gives us lots of nice, pure milk.

We also have another day who is a collie. His name is Uno. We have had him a long time. In fact we had him when we lived in Norwich or rather Hallville. We like him real well.

I won't tell you about my pigeons and kittens and cat as my older brother will tell you about them.

Hoping all my little Wide Awake friends like my story, I'll say bye-bye for now. A little Wide Awake,

A Robin.

Dear Uncle Jed: I hope you and the Wide Awakes will like my story. A robin was singing in an elm tree near Mary's house. Mary was sitting on the porch with her sewing in her hand. She heard the robin and stopped sewing to listen to it. Pretty soon she saw another robin alight on the branch beside it. The mother robin stopped singing and both robins flew away. Mary followed them into the apple orchard. They lit on the biggest apple tree. Then she saw the mother robin sit in a nest which was on the highest branch. She ran to tell her mother about them. After she had told her mother she went out on the porch to sew again. Later the father robin came back to look for some worms. Mary's gray cat was sleeping under a shrub. It woke up because a fly settled on its nose. It saw Father Robin trying to pick a worm out of the ground. The cat was just going to catch the robin, when it saw the cat and flew away before the cat could catch him. Mary went into the house to tell her mother of the narrow escape the robin had. The next day Mary's father put a bell on the cat so the birds would hear it and fly away before the cat would catch them.

Nokomis, A Pony.

Dear Uncle Jed: Once upon a time there was a little girl and she was named Lucy She was nine and she lived on a farm. Lucy did not like to see the big horses, but only liked to have a little pony.

There was an auction going on, and she told her father to go and see if there were any little ponies, and if there were to get one for her.

So he said: "What color do you wish to have?"

She said: "Any color you can get."

So her father set off and on his way met an Indian who asked him if he wanted to buy a pony.

The man asked: "How much do you want for it?"

The Indian said "How much do you want to give me for it?"

Lucy's father said: "Twenty-five dollars."

The Indian said: "The pony is yours."

He took the pony home and told Lucy about the Indian and pony.

Lucy loved the pony very much because it came from her Indian girl friend's father. She gave the pony the name of Nokomis.

A Reward.

Dear Uncle Jed:

Once a baker walked slowly homeward. He had a basket of bread and pastry on his shoulder. In the darkness he could see a moving creature. He went towards it and found it to be a woman. She asked him for some food, and he gave her all he had in the basket.

This woman was rich and was only pretending to be poor. She walked home with the food, and next day she met the man who gave it to her. Taking a purse of gold from her pocket, she said:

"A good deed is always rewarded."

It made him a rich man. And now his grandsons and granddaughters tell of the baker's reward.

At A Picnic.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the second time I have written to you and I hope you will enjoy my story. The name of it is "Going on a Picnic."

One bright sunny afternoon in the month of May my friends and I decided to go on a picnic in the woods. We took with us many things to eat such as sandwiches, fruits, nuts and many other things. We walked and walked until we could find a good place. At last we came to the spot we had planned for. We put down our food and all sat on the grass. Suddenly we heard a great big noise and there in the back of us was a tiny little squirrel eating our nuts. We were much surprised but we did not make any noise. Suddenly the squirrel disappeared and we all went home because it was getting late. We enjoyed the afternoon very much.

Saved By A Dog.

Dear Wide Awakes: One day a homeless and hungry Newfoundland dog was walking along a dusty street. A boy took pity on him and tossed him some bones with little meat on them. The dog tried to show its gratitude by licking the boy's hands.

Three weeks later this same boy went fishing. As he was walking along the bank his foot slipped and he fell over the bank. He yelled as loud and as hard as he could, and a dog that heard his cries, jumped into the water, seized him by the collar and dragged him to the shore. It was hard work but the dog managed to reach land. The boy took the dog to his home where it lived ever afterwards.

A Question and Its Answer.

Dear Uncle Jed: For many years the question as to whether or not stones grow has been in my mind but just recently it was answered. In previous years when I have helped my mother pick up stones from the same places where we had picked some the year before I had felt discouraged because I always thought stones grew. I would remark to my mother, "Oh, gee! why do rocks have to grow anyway?" but then I did not know that in reality it is this:

Many thousands of years ago a great glacier swept over this country carrying huge boulders and soil from some country far north of us. It deposited the boulders along its course. Seeds, dropped by birds and animals who came from some region where there was vegetation, began to grow on the barren soil.

When it rained, parts of the boulders were washed away and the soil covered them up. In other places trees and shrubs broke the boulders apart. After a few years the stones hidden beneath the soil are washed to the surface and there are deposited within our sight and we think they grow. My but hasn't nature a queer way of playing pranks on us, Uncle Jed?

And now I hope all the Wide Awakes who read my story and had the same question in mind find it settled to their satisfaction.

A Thirsty Crow.

Uncle Jed: There was once a crow that was very thirsty. It flew down to a pitcher on the ground, hoping to find some water in it, but so little that the crow could only wet the tip of her bill. A thought came into her head at once. She could not get to the water, but she might cause it to rise to her. She picked up a pebble and dropped it into the pitcher, then she picked up some more. As she dropped them in the pitcher the water rose. Before she had dropped in many it had risen so she could drink with ease.

My Trip in a Balloon

Dear Uncle Jed: One day as I was walking along the road I saw a penny. I picked the penny up and went to town where I went into a store. I had planned to buy some candy, but as I entered the store, I saw a large bunch of brightly colored balloons and I quickly changed my mind and bought one. When I reached home with it I blew it up and tied a string to it. While I was holding it, it began to pull me up from the ground. I hung on to the string tightly and soon I was about a mile above the earth.

After going a little higher I saw a large ugly looking hawk coming toward me and when he got near it he gave the balloon a hard pick with his beack and I heard a loud pop and before I knew what had happened I felt myself falling. Before I reached the ground, I fell right into a tree and I hung on by a branch. There happened to be a road near by and as I looked down it I saw a man walking toward the tree where I was. As he came nearer I shouted to him and asked him to help me down. He went to the nearest house and borrowed a ladder and borrowed the same from the tree. After I had climbed down, I thanked him and after walking about five miles, I reached home. As I went in through the doorway I felt someone shake me. I opened my eyes and there stood my sister. It was all a dream and now I found it was time to get up to get ready for school.

A Ball Game

Dear Uncle Jed: It is quite some time since I wrote you a story, but I hope you will like this account of a baseball game I had in one of my dreams.

Our home team was up at bats, with the score five to three in favor of the opposing team. What a game our team had played so far! Anyone from another town would think they were children knocking out flies.

Hurrah! Here was one of our best batters coming up. It was Jack and he sure could hit. First strike was called. He put down the bat to rub a little more dirt on his hands. He strikes at another ball and its another strike. Strike two, and here was our best batter tossing the game.

A fan in the grandstand hollered out, "If you can't do better than that Jack, they'll be taking you out on a stretcher." Another fan hollers out, "Am going down there and see if you can do any better."

Then the cheer leaders start in. Jack certainly needed the cheering and he was getting it, too.

At last, here's the pitcher winding up. It was a fast ball, right over the plate, but Jack was watching for it and he swung his bat knocking it out for enough to make a home run and bringing in another run besides, thus tieing the score. How the fans cheered Jack then!

Amid all this cheering, I awoke, and still I could hear cheering. For a minute I waited, listening, but finally jumped out of bed and ran to the window. There was my Girl Scout troop, waiting for me to go to camp with them. It didn't take me long to put on my Scout clothes then, and join them to go off to camp and spend the day.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Peter's Vain Search

How curiosity can burn us
Regarding things that don't concern us!

—Peter Rabbit.

Peter Rabbit had it on the tip of his tongue to ask more questions of Jerry Muskrat, but before he could do so Jerry dived, hitting the water with his tail as he did so and startling Grandfather Frog so that the old fellow actually jumped off his big, green lily-pad before he realized what the noise was. From where he sat Peter Rabbit could watch Jerry as he swam under water. When Jerry's head finally appeared above water, it was right opposite the Laughing Brook where it enters the Smiling Pool. Jerry turned and began to swim up the Laughing Brook and in a moment disappeared.

Peter Rabbit scratched a long ear with a long hindfoot. Then he scratched the other long ear with the other long hindfoot. Peter does this when he is thinking. I suspect that he has an idea that it helps his thought. "So Jerry Muskrat has a new home," muttered Peter. "Well, if that is the case, it ought not be hard to find. But why I haven't noticed the roof of it, I do not at all understand. Probably it is a little way up the Laughing Brook. Anyway, that is the direction he took. I don't think he need be so secretive about it. It is all very well to keep secret a thing that is well hidden, but I don't see any sense in trying to keep secret something that any one who passes can see. Certainly, every one who ever visited the Smiling Pool saw Jerry Muskrat's old house and knew whose it was."

Peter slowly hopped over among the alders and made his way to the Laughing Brook. It was swampy in there and Peter got his feet wet. He didn't mind this though he had no intention of getting more than his feet wet. He hopped along slowly, looking this way, looking that way, and looking the other way. In short, he looked every way. He was looking for a house built by Jerry Muskrat.

"Perhaps," thought Peter, "that roof will not be very high. It's a new house and perhaps he will not have built it very big yet. However, if he is living in it, it must be of fairly good size. It must be high enough for him to have a dry bed. It must be big enough for me to find it without much trouble."

But Peter didn't find it. He hunted all through the swamp near the Smiling Pool. Then he made his way up the Laughing Brook till he reached the edge of the Green Forest and the banks were higher and there was no place for such a house as Jerry Muskrat had had in the Smiling Pool. Finally, Peter sat down to rest and once more he scratched each long ear with a long hindfoot.

"I do believe," said Peter to himself, "that Jerry Muskrat was fooling me. I do believe that he swam over to the entrance to the Laughing Brook just to make me think that that new house of his was somewhere up there. And all the time it probably is down the Laughing Brook, below the Smiling Pool. I'll go down there and look. Probably Jerry just hid and then swam up there as soon as I was out of sight. Some day I will get even with him. Yes, sir, some day I will get even with him."

So, after he had rested a bit, away went Peter, lipperty-lipperty-lip, back to the Smiling Pool. As soon as he came in sight of the Smiling Pool, he spied Jerry Muskrat sitting on the Big Rock. Jerry was opening a clam. He didn't see Peter. Peter had opened his mouth to tell Jerry what he thought of him when he decided that he wouldn't let Jerry know that he had been looking for his house. So Peter drew back out of sight and waited until Jerry Muskrat had dived and disappeared. Then Peter hunted around to the little swamp below the Smiling Pool, and there he had no better luck than before.

STOCK PRICES RALLIED SLIGHTLY, BUT MARKET CLOSED HIGHLY IRREGULAR

NEW YORK, June 17.—(AP)—Stocks and commodities recovered their equilibrium today. On the share market prices rallied after the completion of necessitous liquidation in the forenoon, while wheat, corn and cotton advanced measureably from Monday's final levels.

However, stocks dipped from the day's highs in the last half hour and the close was highly irregular, with net changes in the leaders only nominal in either direction. The price index of 90 shares rose just one-tenth of a point. The unsettlement in the late trading started in the copper shares, many of which broke to new 1930 lows after another reduction in the price of the metal, and it closely followed a stiffening in the call money rate.

Stocks came out in large blocks at the opening as impaired margin accounts were disposed of. Some selling was reported to be coming from out-of-town banks which were said to be liquidating frozen loans that had been standing since the fall panic. Active issues broke 3 to 6 points in the course of this movement, but the firmness of United States Steel, which opened a shade higher and incidentally never got below yesterday's close, was instrumental in starting a rally. The much better tone displayed by the grain markets was also an important factor in the recovery and by 2 o'clock, or about the time President Hoover was signing the tariff, active stocks were selling 1 to 10 points above the morning's lows. The final selling virtually halved these advances.

The firmer tone to call money reflected the withdrawal of funds placed here by out-of-town banks for the period of the treasury financing. This loan calling, amounting to about $50,000,000 in two days, contracted the available supply of money and the rate was advanced to 3 per cent from 2 1-2 about mid-afternoon. Time money was unchanged and dull.

Best of Sections, according to the weekly unofficial estimate, showed a decline of 3 per cent during the past week, bringing the average for the industry as a whole to 68 per cent. U. S. Steel's output was about 72 per cent of capacity against 75 a week ago. While the independents operated around 64. These figures are sharply below those for the corresponding periods of record-breaking 1929.

Another indication of the easiness of business was the drop of $32,000,000 in commercial borrowings, revealed by the weekly Federal Reserve member bank statement. This item had shown a small gain in the previous week. New York city bank loans against securities dropped $123,000,000, but there were gains in this account at other reserve centers, with the result that the net reduction was $41,000,000.

Domestic copper was cut to 11 3-4 cents a pound, the lowest in some 16 years, although there was no change in the export price. Selling of the copper shares carried Anaconda, American Smelting, Granby, Calumet & Hecla, Cerro de Pasco, Inspiration and Andes to new 1930 minimums on losses of 1 to 5 points.

Fluctuations in numerous prominent stocks were fairly wide. American Telephone sold down to 206 3-4, recovered to 212 and closed unchanged at 209 1-2. American Can's low was 121 1-4, its high 126 and its close 123, for a net gain of half a point. Atchison got down to the new low of 205, snapped back to 212 and finished at 212 1-2 or 5 3-4 higher. Chesapeake & Ohio gained a similar amount. General Electric, North American and International Telephone were up about a point net, while Radio, Consolidated Gas and Westinghouse lost 1 to 2.

General Motors, National Biscuit and Standard Oil of New Jersey closed firm. Steel, which had been as high as 182 5-8, closed at 160 3-4 up 2 1-2.

The advance in wheat carried prices up 1 7-8 to 2 3-4 cents, while corn improved 1 1-2 to 2. Cotton closed 8 points higher to 2 points lower. It was apparent, however, that the adjustment of professional positions from Monday's lows was in some measure responsible for the advances in these markets as well as in stocks.

Foreign exchanges were again easy, with most of the leading European rates slightly off.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, June 17.—(AP)—To-day's bond market was the most active in several weeks. Trading was on a broad scale with many inactive issues appearing on the tape, and the total sales reaching a figure unsurpassed since the first week in May.

The general course of the market was irregular, due principally to the tendency of bonds influenced by stocks to turn downward, and to the easing of secondary issues. Traders found encouragement, however, in the firmness of prime investment bonds, although the extent of the trading in these issues was dwarfed by the activity in convertible and warrant bonds, the price movement was narrow, and the net changes for the day were about 1-4 of a point either way. Another feature was the further gain by United States governments, which have been consistently strong for several weeks. All Liberty issues established new high prices for the year and held the top at the close with the exception of Liberty 4th 4 1-4s which yielded slightly under the most extensive trading of the group.

Stock privilege bonds made some attempt to join the rally in stocks but failed for the most part to recover their losses. Several new lows for the year were recorded, among them Atchison 4 1-2s, St. Paul 5s, and General Theatres 6s. Losses ranged from a fraction to 1 1-2 and the reaction was less pronounced than Monday.

Among warrant bonds amusements were especially weak, with Loews 6s off 5 points; Pathe 7s off 2, and Shubert 6s off 3.

The weakest spots in the list developed among secondary rails and industrials. Chicago & Eastern Illinois 5s lost 2 points to reach a new 1930 low. Seaboard Air Line issues were more active than usual and yielded ground heavily, two issues declining 3 points to new 1930 low prices.

Texas Corporation 5s and National Dairy 5 1-4s were the most active industrials and eased slightly, the latter to a new 1930 low mark. Oils and sugars were easier, and among the bonds in new low ground for the year were Certainteed 5 1-2s, American Natural Gas 6 1-2s, Cuban American Sugar 8 1-2s, Manati Sugar 7 1-2s, and Hudson Coal 5s, the latter with a drop of 4 points.

Foreign bonds were irregular. Bolivias 7s gained more than 2 points Budapest City 6s yielded more than a point on a heavy turnover. China Hu Kuang Railroad 5s broke nearly 5 points to a new low. Scandinavian issues were active and higher. German governments were steady, but municipal and industrial issues of that country eased slightly. Principal Europeans were steady and dull.

Offerings of $1,032,000 City of Plainfield, N. J., 4 1-2 per cent gold bonds will be made tomorrow.

New foreign financing tomorrow includes the $4,000,000 Central German Power Company 6 per cent gold note issue. It is offered at 98 1-4 to yield 6.50 per cent.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, June 17.—(AP)—Reports of huge quantities of wheat being bought for Europe at prices cheaper than in the World war jerked the wheat market suddenly upward today. It was estimated that trans-Atlantic purchases from Canada and the United States totaled 4,000,000 bushels today and that the aggregate for the last five days has been 20,000,000 bushels. Meanwhile, there were reports of terrific dust storms again sweeping over Canadian wheat territory.

Closing quotations on wheat were strong at about the day's top level 1 7-8c to 3c over yesterday's finish. Corn closed 1 1-2a7 1-8c up, oats 1a1 3-8c advanced, and provisions varying from 17c decline to a rise of 27c.

In the provision market the effect of grain strength offset a break in holding values.

(Special to The Bulletin)

STAFFORD SPRINGS, June 17.—The town school committee has authorized the teachers' committee to fill the vacancies in the teaching staff for the coming school year. The positions to be filled are those of sub-master, or assistant principal in the high school, which Chester E. Baston has occupied for the past two years; teacher of English in the junior high school, and also the vacancy in the Orcuttville school, where Miss Florence Pinney has taught for a number of years. Mr. Baston's resignation has not yet been accepted but he has notified Principal Earl M. Witt of the high school that he has decided not to return to Stafford Springs next year. Mr. Baston has taught science and has acted as coach for the high school athletic teams and his work in this line has been particularly successful with the basketball quintet. The school has had the fastest basketball squad in its history and its success during the past winter was in a large measure due to the efforts of Mr. Baston.

The book is dedicated to Attorney Edward M. Day, of Hartford, former Colchester resident, graduate and trustee of Bacon academy, who, during the past year, presented the remodeled chapel building to the academy for use as an assembly hall and domestic science quarters. Members of "The Baconian" board were: Editor, Oscar Horwitz; business manager, Samuel Jaffe; faculty advisor, Miss Alice B. Condren; humor editor, Peter Hominick; photograph editors, David Horwitz, Edna Kashkin, Allan Horwitz; junior editor, Gertrude Seger; sophomore editor, Michael Busel; freshman editor, Minnie Jaffe; literary editor, Dorothea Gersten; sports editor, Vivian Cohen; associate business managers, Ruth Mintz, Gladys Kalman and Sarah Lieberman.

Next follows an outline of the class history, pictures and description of the activities of the different school organizations, the Student council, the Science, French, Dramatic and Home Economics clubs, the basketball, baseball and track team. A page of jokes and several pages of advertisements complete the book, which is a great improvement over previous class publications and shows the result of much thought and hard work on the part of the students.

A score or more of persons marveled as Uncle Jimmy Kelly, operator of the courthouse elevator at Memphis, Tenn., for twenty years, stood in a hall and ordered his empty elevator up and down—and watched it obey. "Up," he shouted, and it went. "Stop," he ordered and it obeyed. "Down," he commanded and down it came, apparently obeying his voice for the elevator was empty. "We're testing it," he explained. "There's a repairman up at the top of the shaft operating it from there"

POETRY

Life's Sunny Side

What—you 'are dull today?
In a sad mull today?
Up, and be social and stirring, I pray.
Why so lugubrious?
Take a salubrious
Walk, and we'll talk, for I've something to say.

Verily, verily,
Things will go merrily
When you are merry and busy and brave.
But if not cheerfully
Tempered, but tearfully,
Life is a tyrant, and you are its slave.

If you go wilfully,
However skillfully,
Nursing your moods and your delicate whims,
Life will be dumb to you,
All things will come to you,
Touched by a shadow that saddens and dims.

Life has two sides to it,
Take the best guides to it,
Look at the best and the brightest, my friend,
Be a philosopher,
Don't look so cross over
Matters you never can alter or mend.

Look not so dismally
Down the abysmally
Dark—hanging over the precipice brink.
Worst of all bias is Hypochondriasis—
Sunshine is healthier than shadow, I think.

If you would drive away
Gloom, and would live away
Honey-like peace in your innermost cell,
Work—like the humble bee,
Soft let your grumble be;
Burn your own smoke and the world will go well.

—By C. P. Cranch.

A Hillside Farmer

Dawn—and the mist across the silent lane;
Each day its little round of petty tasks.
"Are you not very lonely?" some one asks.
"Here where the old folks stay, and no one new Comes in to start a farm? You should go, too;
Valleys grow better grain."

This may seem still and lonely, but for me
Hill-tops are wider than the open land.
Maybe you never could quite understand
How dear it is to me—this loneliness.
You think the hills are narrowing. I guess:
But, oh, how far we see!

—John Farrar.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

On concrete highway, four rooms, ideal for chickens, cows or hogs.—Atlanta Journal.

"A man quiets down as he grows older," observes a psychologist. He has more to keep quiet about.—Boston Transcript.

Old Man—The man who marries my daughter will get a prize.

Young Man—May I see it?—Exchange.

Slum Visitor—How much did ther give your husband this time?

Wife of Notorious Law-breaker—The tiniest little paragraph—'e won't 'arf be wild!—London Opinion.

Mrs. Newlywed—John, I don't like your stenographer!

Mr. Newlywed—Now, dear, you have no cause for jealousy, whatever! Why, that girl refused me four times before I ever met you!—Detroit News.

KALEIDOSCOPE

Four pastors in Raymond, Wash., charter a bus to carry children to Sunday school.

Harry and Joseph Russell, sixteen-year-old twins of Kansas City, Mo., must wear silk ribbons of different color in their coat lapels, Judge Lee Judy ordered. Harry has been ordered to stop driving the family car after having been arrested for speeding. After that incident, it was always Joseph that was driving when the car was stopped by the police.

The American colony at Istanbul, Turkey, is chuckling over the linguistic mishap of an elderly American woman missionary, who are long years in Turkey, visited the United States. Lunching in a sedate New York tearoom, the missionary called a waitress and tapping her glass of lemonade, said: "Please bring me some booze." The waitress stared, but the dignified old lady repeated her order unruffled. Unwittingly she was using the Turkish word for "ice."

Galileo, the famous Italian astronomer, was the first man to look at the heavens through a telescope, in 1610.

Some of Hertz's original apparatus, used in the German Museum at Munich.

In a hostess it's Graciousness

in a cigarette it's Taste

THE SUCCESS OF A HOSTESS depends upon her ability to make others feel at home; that of a cigarette, upon better taste.

HOW ELSE EXPLAIN Chesterfield's constant gains, its ever-mounting popularity with smokers everywhere?

THERE IS NO SUBSTITUTE for the delicate mildness and rich aroma that belong to Chesterfield, nor for Chesterfield's unique blend and cross-blend. "In a cigarette it's TASTE!" Yes, and in a Chesterfield it's . . . "TASTE above everything".

We state it as our honest belief that the tobaccos used in Chesterfield cigarettes are of finer quality and hence of better taste than in any other cigarette at the price.

Broadway Theatre

Deliberately casting off the detective roles which have made him a national figure, William Powell reaches the dramatic peak of his career in his new production "Shadow of the Law," which opens at the cool Broadway today. This time the debonair Powell is on the other side of the police desk, the innocent victim of a chain of circumstantial evidence which nets him a life sentence for murder. Richard Tucker is the victim of the affair, for which lovely but cold-blooded Natalie Moorhead is responsible. Her evidence convicts Powell, and her's alone can clear him of the horrible sentence. She steadfastly refuses to tell the truth, but is lured by an offer of cold, hard cash, after Powell has engineered a daring jail-break, changed his name and appearance and located himself successfully as a plant manager in a southern town. There romance meets him in the guise of pretty Marian Schilling, but the man, haunted by the ever-threatening "shadow of the law," dares not confess his love until he conceives the idea of buying the evidence which will clear him. The woman, a notorious schemer, responds but again terrifies the man by a threat of blackmail demanding $50,000 as the price of her silence, and still refusing to testify on his behalf. Sheer, stark, thrilling drama, enlivened with deft bits of comedy, makes "Shadow of the Law" one of the few four-star productions of the season. A roaring slapstick sketch "Actions Speak Louder Than Words," with Bill and Joe Mandel, "Toys," a clever bit by the Ormonde sisters and a large company, "La Paloma," a giggling screen-song, a Pathe comedy "The Perfect Match," and the latest Fox movietone news, complete a corking mid-week bill. Rumor has it that the goofiest show of all time, with Bob Woolsey and Bert Wheeler, of Rio Rita fame, is headed this way, and that those comical birds "The Cuckoos," will build their nest at the Broadway Saturday.

WILLIAM POWELL

Palace Theatre

A double feature bill which is incomparable because of its excellence and appealing qualities will be shown at the Palace theatre today for the first times and it will be continued through Friday of this week. Included on the bill are "Song of the Flame," a screen adaption of the light opera famous on Broadway, with Bernice Claire, Alexander Gray and Noah Beery in the leading roles and "Personality," the screen version of the popular sketch which appears weekly on the cover of Liberty magazine starring Sally Starr and Johnny Arthur.
"Song of the Flame" is based on the Russian revolution and the spirit and realness of the situation is reproduced with more impressiveness than anything which has ever been shown on the screen. The music, much of which was composed by George Gershwin, displays the voices of the stars to great advantage and besides Miss Claire and Mr. Gray whose ability is already well known to theatre goers, the audiences will have the pleasure of hearing Noah Beery's basso profundo sing his big songs.
Never before has such a production been made. Never before have gigantic mobs of 5,000 people been assembled to make the scenes of rioting so realistic. Every possible effect was tested to make the film more complete and nothing was used that did not correspond in each detail to the setting. "Song of the Flame" is the most stupendous venture of the motion pictures and its reception has proved that the effort was well worth while.
In direct contrast to this, but none the less enjoyable, is "Personality," the comedy of married life. The adventures of Lil and Sandy which are so human and so every-dayish are laughable and real in their simplicity. Every married man should see this picture and surely any engaged couple will find plenty of fun in the mishaps of this delightful pair. And of course there is a mother-in-law who furnishes many laughs and since no home is complete without one she is the type well known to those who suffer from them.
This is a double feature bill which is worth the price many times over and no one can afford to miss it in the coolest spot in town.

LOCAL FAN TELLS HOW SHARKEY LOST FIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NOANK, June 17—Jake Hogan came back from New York after attending the Sharkey and Schmelling big fight at the Yankees' ball field. Hogan is a real sport when it comes to seeing boxing matches. He has not missed a world's championship heavyweight fight in 41 years. He came back in his Marmon sport model car in the fog, all smiles.
Several asked him about the big fight. He claims on Saturday night he was asked by President Billie Fitzgerald to come to the Sardine club meeting to be held on Branch avenue, so Hogan stopped at the Sardine club rooms. He told the president he would, so inside he went, and found the hall all dolled up with American flags, for it was Flag day. A sign read over the door that led into the ball room, "Welcome," Hogan, the man who has not missed a championship fight in about 41 years, and 100 members, crowded both sides of the hall and about 30 women were on hand to hear what Hogan had to say about the big battle. The speaker of the evening was Clifford Sullivan who had a silver tone voice and he said, "We have with us tonight the prize fighter sport who would walk miles to see a fight. So if everybody will be still while Hogan tells his story about the big fight in New York, recently, we will be all glad to hear him." From the hand he received from the crowd it was thought the roof would cave in. Hogan says, "What do you people think I am, Lindy, what flew to Paris, in a airplane? I have only been to see a big fight in New York. Well, I thank you for the noise. It shows you want to hear about the fight between Jack Sharkey and Max Schmelling from Germany, who is across the pond from where he hangs his bat. A large crowd was there, around 80,000 fighting fans. I got a ringside seat where I could almost touch the fighters and it started to rain a little so the big fight got an early start."
"When Fighting Sharkey of Boston came into the ring the fans gave him a real ovation, and he knew the fans were with him, for once, and that made him happy, and, when Schmelling came through the ropes he was given a big hand and he looked like Jack Dempsey.
"It was not long when the gong rang for the battle and Sharkey came out of his corner, ready for the battle of his life. Both men shook the good right hand. Sharkey seemed to have the footwork and was fast on his feet and was sending the blows in like raindrops on a tin roof, to Schmelling's face, and would dance out of danger without sometimes getting a blow, and all the fight fans never saw Sharkey in such good condition as he sure trained hard for the championship fight. For three rounds Schmelling was batted hard and was ready to be put away and came that fourth round with the Boston fighter way ahead on points. Near the end of the round came the sad news.
"The German fighter was standing on one leg, almost ready to close his eyes so he could not see the lights on Broadway shine when Sharkey raised up and it went low but it was an accident for the American fighter, but it lost him the championship of the world. The referee did not see it, only one judge and the managers were mad and excited.
"It was a shame to see a fighter like Sharkey licked on a foul after putting up the best fight of his life. He hit Schmelling with everything he had. So that is the story of the big battle." The members gave him another big hand, also a fish chowder with cake and coffee by Steward William Crowell.

TWO MEN GIVEN SUSPENDED SENTENCES IN NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, June 17.—Two men charged with beating their wives were presented in the police court today, but because of the fact that the women were not seriously injured and that they depended upon the support of their husbands for existence, Judge Daniel M. Cronin was lenient, for he imposed jail sentences in each case and then suspended judgment. By the act of the court the men have terms in jail staring them in the face. Louis Pierson, 20 High street, was one of the accused. He went to his home last night and, after engaging in a quarrel with his wife, started to abuse her by using physical strength. The woman made complaint to the police with the result that Pierson was arrested. Judge Cronin sentenced Pierson to jail for 30 days, and then suspended execution of the sentence.

The other man was Robert Bailey, 242 Crystal avenue. He also went to his residence about 8 o'clock and a short time later when a harsh exchange of words resulted, Bailey attacked and struck his wife several blows. Mrs. Bailey made complaint to the police, but before officers arrived at the house her husband had vanished. Later, Patrolman Ernest Opperman found and arrested the husband.

George H. Nord, 365 Newington Junction, Vt.; Helen R. Haskell, 192 Montauk avenue; Sigmund Pankiewicz, Submarine base; Irving J. Lamay, Old Lyme, and John Ruse, Neptune, N. J., were charged with violation of the city's traffic laws and as none of them appeared in court their respective bonds of $2 were declared forfeited. George W. Woude, 26 Moore court, Peter Collins, Waterford, and Nikifa Kargorodoff, New York, were also charged with traffic violations, but they were not prosecuted, the drivers being released with a warning to obey the rules and regulations for driving and parking in the future.

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. Chester L. Jones, 65 Neptune avenue, of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Dorothy A. Jones, to Albert Cook Woodruff, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert C. Mr. Woodruff is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania and Miss Jones received her education at Principia, St. Louis, Mo.

Mrs. Elizabeth Clevier, 33 Hill street, today made complaint to the police because of the conduct of children residing in her neighborhood. The woman stated that she is daily caused much annoyance by the acts of the youngsters and that their conduct was apparently deliberately planned. Besides the annoyance, Mrs. Clevier said that her property has been damaged

The New Haven railroad has a force of laborers engaged, together with a ditcher, at work in the depot yard removing an accumulation of surplus dirt and refuse, prior to the big crowd arriving here Friday for the annual Yale-Harvard boat race on the Thames river. Tomorrow or Thursday the space between the tracks will be treated to a coat of sand in an endeavor to allay the dust.

There was a noticeable absence of fishermen in such large numbers as have visited the municipal pier nearly a week today, for the mackerel that have been biting in great numbers are not being caught. Whether this condition is caused by the several hundred of fish having been removed from the river or because the choice sea food has been diminished, is not known. Today, there were not 50 fishermen at the pier at any one time, while for several days previous the dock was crowded with wielders of the pole and line, there having been 25 men and youths on the pier at one time Saturday and Sunday.

Rosario Rinardo, a youth residing at 86 Grand street, was arrested last night by Patrolman George Bruhns at the request of the state police, who hold a warrant charging the youth with taking an automobile without permission of the owner in Waterford last week. Rinardo will be presented in the Waterford town court next Monday.

Another building is to be included with the group of structures that house and take care of the patients and the operating of Lawrence-Memorial hospital, for at the meeting of the city council, held last night, an application was approved for the construction of a building which, when completed, will be used as a laundry. The new structure will be 97x38 feet and will cost $35,000. The site of the new building will be on the Ocean avenue side of the property.

Raymond J. Bradley was arrested tonight by State Police Officer Peter Busch, charged with perjury. He was held in bail of $250 and Louis Elfenbein qualified as surety on his bond to assure Bradley's presentation in the police court tomorrow morning. Bradley, it is understood, gave false testimony, recently, when he applied for a license to drive an automobile. When the alleged statements made by Bradley were investigated and it was determined that he had falsely testified, a warrant for his arrest was issued and served by Officer Busch.

Marian Williams, West Hartford and Groton Long Point, was arrested this afternoon by Officer Clyde Murphy charged with violation of the city's traffic rules and regulations. The woman was released with a warning to adhere to the traffic laws in the future.

Piles Go Quick

No Salves or Cutting

Thousands of Pile sufferers have not yet learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with internal medicine. Neither cutting nor any amount of treatment with ointments and suppositories will remove the cause.

Bad circulation causes piles. There is a complete stagnation of blood in the lower bowel and a weakening of the parts.

Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, after years of study discovered a real internal remedy and called his prescription HEM-ROID. WEDDING

Twomey-Brennan

At St. Mary's Memorial church Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock a very pretty June wedding took place when Miss Anna Teresa Brennan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick F. Brennan of 176 Prospect street was united in marriage by Rev. George J. Donahue, the pastor, to Walter Joseph Twomey, the son of Mrs. Dennis J. Twomey of No. 20 Grove street. Miss Kathryn Brennan, a sister of the bride, was bridesmaid while Daniel Driscoll, a cousin of the groom, acted as best man. The bride was beautifully attired in a white ivory satin gown and wore a veil of duchess lace caught up with orange blossoms. Her bridal bouquet consisted of calla lilies and lilies of the valley.

Miss Brennan, the bridesmaid, was charmingly gowned in a period style blue amber color taffetta and tulle and wore a picture hat of flesh color to match. Her bouquet consisted of choice spring flowers. Following the church ceremony a reception and wedding breakfast was held at the home of the bride's parents at 176 Prospect street, when relatives were present from New York, Boston, Waterbury and Springfield, Mass. The bride was the recipient of many and beautiful and useful gifts. Mrs. Twomey was formerly a stenographer at the office of Schwartz Brothers Furniture Co., while Mr. Twomey is an inspector of equipment for the Southern New England Telephone company. The newly married couple left late in the afternoon by automobile for an extended trip. Upon their return they will occupy a newly furnished home at West Haven. Mr. and Mrs. Twomey have a large circle of friends in this vicinity who extend to them best wishes for a happy and prosperous married life.

A benefit bridge party was held at the home of Miss Marie Gadle on Prospect street Thursday evening. The proceeds of the successful affair will be donated to St. Francis' hospital at Hartford. The winners for the evening were: First prize to Mrs. Mildred Maher; second prize, won by Mrs. Edward Riordan and consolation, Miss Jane Sullivan. Refreshments of fruit punch, assorted cakes, cookies and ice cream were served by Miss Gadie.

DANIELSON

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur E. Baldwin of Norwich avenue have sent to Taftville Fire company, No. 2, a check for $25 in appreciation of the services rendered by the department when their store and residence was partially destroyed by fire. They also presented the Totokett Hose company of Occum a check for $10.

For some time the village has been having very poor mail service. At the time of the new contract, the government arranged to have only two mails each day delivered to the local postoffice instead of four, as previously. Boston and Providence morning papers did not arrive for their subscribers until night. There has been general dissatisfaction regarding the arrangement, and finally it was believed that a proper schedule had been completed by having the papers taken to Norwich and re-mailed to Taftville so that they would reach here by noon. This plan did not materialize, however, and the Boston and Providence publishers, and newsdealers, faced with the possibility of wholesale cancellation of subscriptions, are now delivering the papers via truck so that they arrive early in the morning. In the meantime, Postmaster Edward Adams took the matter up with the postoffice department authorities, who have now consented to have an extra mail sent into Taftville at 11:15.

Third Selectman Philias Poirier, assisted by a number of the property owners in the Merchants-Hunters avenue section, have been busy for the past few days cleaning up the old dump in Blissville, which is located just across the Lisbon bridge. Careless people who use this spot for a place to leave their garbage and refuse, from tomato cans to discarded automobiles, have been leaving the debris in the roadway, so that entrance to the dumping grounds has been closed. Selectman Poirier has issued a plea to all who use the place to be certain that their garbage is deposited in the proper place and not in the roadway, as seems now to be the custom.

Most of the roads and streets in the Maennerchor section have been given some thorough attention and a coat of tarvia by men employed by the town of Norwich under the direction of Second Selectman Charles P. Bushnell.

Examinations are in progress at the Wequonnoc school. Closing exercises are to be held Thursday.

Local members of the Eastern Connecticut Mills association are to attend the joint annual outing of the organization and the Blackstone Valley association next Saturday at Jim Smith's inn.

The lower grades of the Sacred Heart school held their closing exercises Tuesday afternoon, when prizes were awarded for excellence in the various studies pursued during the school year.

The annual Children's day service of the Taftville Congregational church school was held Sunday morning, the service taking the place of the regular Sunday morning service of the church. The church was attractively decorated with roses, peonies and laurel. The entire school took part in the program of music and recitations. Miss Hilda Troeger was chairman of the committee, with Mrs. William Penner as associate chairman, the teachers of the school being the other members of the body. During the service two children were baptized by the pastor, Rev. William Penner.

Mrs. Earl T. Webb and her daughter Margie Lorraine of Biggers, Arkansas, are visiting the former's mother, Mrs. E. Belhumeur of 28 Norwich avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Strumpfler of Brooklyn, N. Y., are guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Adam Schmidt and family of Blissville.

Harry Jervis of New Haven, a former Taftville resident was in town over the week end for a visit with friends.

William Gigel of Hartford has been a recent visitor at the home of friends in town.

Edward Fernley of Providence, R. I., was a recent caller on George W. Weller.

A number of relatives and friends from Worcester, Mass., accompanied the body of the late William Hendricks, former resident of Taftville, which was brought here Monday morning for burial in the family lot in Sacred Heart cemetery on the Old Canterbury turnpike.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest G. Stranz and little son Jackie are to return this week to their home in London, England, after a month's visit with Mrs. Stranz's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Seddon of South B street. While in this country, Mr. Stranz, who is vice president and European representative for the Kraft-Phenix Cheese company, made business trips to New York, Chicago and Montreal, and during his stay here was visited by his mother of Spokane, Washington.

Local people were interested to note the picture of Saunders MacLane, a member of the senior class at Yale university in the New York papers Monday. Young MacLane was born in Taftville, the son of the late Rev. Donald B. MacLane, at one time a pastor of the Taftville Congregational church, and Mrs. MacLane. He graduates from Yale with the highest marks ever attained by a student in the entire history of the institution.

Christopher Krauss of Blissville and John Troeger of Hunters avenue have returned from a short stay in New York.

BUILDING LOAN DECLARES DIVIDEND AT 6 PER CENT.

At the monthly meeting of the board of management of the Norwich Building and Loan association, held Tuesday evening, a dividend at the rate of 6 per cent per annum was declared for the current six months, to be credited to shares in July. This will complete a period of five and a half years, during which time dividends have been credited on shares at the rate of 6 per cent per annum.

On July 15, the association will mature the shares in Series No. 7 at a value of $207.26 per share. Also in July a new series, No. 31, will be opened for subscription. Present shareholders will have the opportunity to increase their subscriptions by taking shares in the new series and those not members now may become such.

The secretary reported that the association has more requests than it can take care of from those who wish to buy or build a home and members of the board suggested that the membership of the association be increased, thus serving the double purpose of helping those who would invest and also providing extra money to assist those desirous of owning a home.

DR. PAUL F. GADLE DIES WITH HEART ATTACK SITTING IN HIS AUTOMOBILE

Dr. Paul F. Gadle, 36, of No. 196 Central avenue, prominent local physician, was found dead in his car in front of the Ponemah Wheel club, Norwich avenue, Taftville, about 8:30 o'clock Tuesday evening. He was discovered slumped over the steering wheel of the machine, the motor and lights having been turned off. His eye glasses had fallen upon the front seat. Death was caused from acute endocarditis.

It is the opinion of the medical examiner, Dr. C. C. Gildersleeve, who, with Coroner Edward G. McKay, was called and investigated the sudden death, that Dr. Gadle was driving along the road near the clubhouse when he felt the heart attack coming on. He immediately operated his car to a position beside the road, turned off the lights and engine, and toppled over.

The body, which was found by George Kramer of Greeneville and others, was taken to the office of Dr. George Thompson in Taftville, where it was viewed by Medical Examiner Gildersleeve and later given in charge of Undertakers Hourigan Bros.

Dr. Gadle was born in Norwich, Aug. 24, 1893, the son of Joseph P. and Margaret Murtha Gadle, and contained his early education in St. Mary's parochial school, after which he completed courses in study at Norwich Free Academy, class of 1912, and was then for a year a student in the preparatory school of the University of Vermont. Deciding upon the profession of medicine as his life work, he entered the medical department of the University of Vermont, where he was graduated with the degree of M. D., class of 1917. He was honor man of his class and its president, also was a member of Alpha chapter, Phi Chi fraternity.

After graduation, Dr. Gadle was for a time interne at Fairny Allen hospital, Winooski, Vermont, then returned to Norwich and for 18 months was house physician at the Backus hospital. With this hospital practice experience to accompany his college training, he opened offices in the Thayer building here and at his home on Central avenue and began the practice of medicine, in which he has been prominently identified for the past 11 years.

At St. Patrick's church on Oct. 10, 1923, Dr. Gadle was united in marriage with Minnie I. Donovan, by Rt. Rev. Msgr. Michael H. May, the rector. Besides his parents, who live in Norwich, he is survived by his widow and two children, a son, Paul C. Gadle, whose fifth birthday anniversary was on the date of his father's death, and a daughter, Mary Grace Gadle, 17 months old. He also leaves a brother, Joseph P. Gadle of Harland road and two sisters, the Misses Marie and Loretta Gadle of this city.

Dr. Gadle was a member of the Norwich Medical, New London County Medical and Connecticut State Medical societies and of the American Medical association. He was for a number of years head of the local milk inspection bureau, was a democrat in politics, a member of St. Mary's Memorial church and of White Cross council, No. 13, Knights of Columbus. He saw service in the World war, having been honorably discharged as a lieutenant, and during the war was commissioned as house doctor at the Backus hospital, where for some time lately he has served as anaesthetician.

Dr. Gadle was one of the most promising younger physicians of the city, where he had won a good practice and was universally liked by a legion of friends and acquaintances. The news of his sudden death cast a shroud of sorrow over the town. All those who knew him expressed their heartfelt sympathy to the family in their bereavement.

BLAST FILLS EYES OF OCCUM WORKER

Late Monday afternoon an unexpected explosion of dynamite blew a blast of gravel and dirt into the face and eyes of Arthur J. DesSureault of Canterbury turnpike, Occum, inflicting very serious injuries, which may result in the loss of his sight, although it is impossible to determine how serious the results will be yet. John Coffey of Occum, who was working with him on some blasting work at Hilltop garage, Taftville, received the blast of grit in his arms and legs and is confined to his home by his injuries.

DesSureault, who is a brother of Rev. F. R. DesSureault, pastor of Sacred Heart church, Taftville, is a patient at the Backus hospital to which he was taken immediately after the accident by Dr. Leone F. LaPierre, who was called to attend him. Tuesday, there was a consultation with out of town specialists.

The men were just finishing work for the day when the accident happened. The blast, which did the damage, is said to have been from a drill hole which ran into a crevice.

Severe Itching Burning Pimples on Shoulders. Healed by Cuticura.

"My trouble was pimples. They broke out on my shoulders and part of my back. They were hard, large and red, and scaled over. Some of them festered. At times the itching and burning were so severe that I had to scratch to obtain relief. Scratching irritated them and caused eruptions.

"I tried other remedies which relieved me for a while and then the trouble would reappear. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and after using four cakes of Cuticura Soap and three boxes of Cuticura Ointment I was healed." (Signed) Peter C. Giglio, 140 Harwinton Ave., Torrington, Conn.

TO TEST THE NEW FLEXIBLE PROVISIONS OF TARIFF BILL

Without a Record Vote the Senate Adopted the Borah Resolution to Provide An Immediate Test—Resolution Directs the Tariff Commission to Investigate and Report At the Earliest Possible Date the Differences In Cost of Production Here and Abroad of Shoes, Furniture and Various Other Commodities.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—(AP)—As the customs service grappled with initial problems under the new tariff act, the senate today adopted without debate or a record vote the Borah resolution to provide an immediate test of the new flexible provisions.

The resolution directs the tariff commission to investigate and report to the senate at the earliest possible date the differences in cost of production here and abroad of shoes, furniture, bells, wire fencing, wire netting, cement, hoes, shovels, spades, scoops, forks, rakes, scythes, sickles, grass hooks, corn knives and drainage tools.

"If the flexible provision is going to do the wonderful things they say it will, let's get it to working," said Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, author of the resolution. He voted against the tariff bill.

While most of the articles named for the inquiry are farm implements, Senator Borah said he was particularly anxious to determine whether the six cents a hundred pounds levy on cement, on the free list prior to today, was founded on the exact difference in production costs.

In a recent speech in the senate he estimated the farmers would have to pay an annual additional cost of $76,000,000 for their cement under the six cent rate.

Bells, wire fencing and wire netting were added to the inquiry list in an amendment by Senator Bingham, republican, Connecticut.

While the senate was disposing of the Idahoan's proposal, the house ways and means committee obtained assurance from Postmaster General Brown that if no minimum of limit were placed on the importation of Cuban cigars, the United States could negotiate a parcel post convention with Cuba guaranteeing collection of full duties on all shipments.

Mr. Brown testified before the committee on the Hawley resolution to restrict cigar importations to not less than 200 to a package. In view of the postmaster general's assurances, Representative Hawley, republican, Oregon, said he would not press his proposal.

Under the old law cigar imports were limited to 3,000 or more per package. The new tariff act eliminates this restriction. Hawley said his proposal was designed to prevent importation of small packages that might escape duty.

The previous limitation, Brown said, caused the termination of a temporary parcel post agreement with Cuba. The 300 minimum proposal, he added, would be "an insurmountable obstacle to the negotiation of a new parcel post convention."

In negotiating a new convention with Cuba, Brown promised a stipulation would be made that all cigar importations, regardless of the size of the lots, pay the regular duty.

"In view of your statement I believe this solves the problem," said Mr. Hawley.

The senate today concurred in a house resolution to provide printing 5,000 copies of the new tariff bill, after Senator Robinson, the democratic leader, inquired "what use" was to be made of them.

Senator Moses, republican, New Hampshire, suggested that "the minority members might send them out as a horrible example."

There were strong indications at the white house today that President Hoover would send to the senate before he leaves on his western trip next month, and possibly as early as next week, the nominations of several new members of the tariff commission.

Under the new tariff act, the president has 90 days in which to reorganize the commission but he may reappoint any incumbents he desires.

Just how many commissioners, if any, Mr. Hoover will rename has not been disclosed, nor have any names of likely new candidates appeared in the speculation.

The six commissioners now holding office are Edgar B. Brossard, Utah, chairman; Thomas O. Marvid, Massachusetts, and Sherman J. Lowell, New York, republicans; and Alfred P. Dennis, Maryland; Lincoln Dixon, Indiana, and Frank Clark, Florida, democrats.

INCOME TAX REDUCTION MAY HAVE TO BE DISCONTINUED

WASHINGTON, June 18—(AP)—With government expenditures climbing far beyond budget estimates for the fiscal year 1931, continuation for the one per cent reduction in taxes on income made for the calendar year 1929 seemed improbable today, although the treasury will complete the 1930 fiscal year with a surplus.

The one per cent reduction on all normal and corporation incomes was granted by congress at the recommendation of Secretary Mellon. He said the government in the 1930 fiscal year ending June 30 would have enough surplus to permit the cut. he declared falls in two fiscal years, $375,000,000 in each, and reduced estimated receipts by that amount.

Growing income tax receipts for the present fiscal year were expected to overcome the loss sustained through the lowered rates, but this situation was not expected to continue in the next fiscal year.

President Hoover in his budget estimate last December included figures in which the treasury set the surplus in revenue for the 1929 fiscal year at $122,755,96.

Since that time the Spanish war pension bill passed over the president's veto has added about $75,000,000 to the government expenditures for the coming twelve months and the farm board expenses are expected to be $100,000,000 more than the treasury had estimated.

In his budget message President Hoover estimated the government's income for the 1931 year at $4,225,000,000 and while congressional appropriations for the year have not been totalled it was said that they already had exceeded that amount.

N. Y. POLICE ON LOOKOUT FOR HOMICIDAL MANIAC

NEW YORK, June 18—(AP)—With Queensborough in the grip of widespread fear, Commissioner Mulrooney today marshalled his police forces to set a trap for a homicidal maniac who has threatened to commit his third murder tonight. Hundreds of police, many called in from vacations, guarded the borough, especially the isolated sections, to capture the slayer, who has shot two men in cold blood as they sat in automobiles with young women companions.

The police have a good description of the slayer who is described as a maniac with a craze for cheap melodrama. It was given the by the two girls who saw their companions slain.

One of the girls is Catharine May, 19. Last Wednesday she went riding with Joseph Mozynski, Queens grocer. Sitting in their car parked in an isolated section, they were approached by a man who asked to see the driver's license. As Mozynski showed it to him the stranger drew a revolver and fired. Taking the frightened girl by the arm, he led her up the road to a bus stop and told her to go home.

The other girl, Elizabeth Ring, 19, was the companion of Noel Sowley, 26, a radio salesman, when he was killed under almost identical circumstances Monday night. Fear kept her lips sealed until the body was discovered yesterday afternoon by boys picking berries.

The police seek a man, dressed shabbily and about 40 years old. He speaks English well, but with an accent. He weighs about 140 pounds and is about 5 feet 6 inches tall.

SIX MONTHS SENTENCE FOR WOULD-BE COUNTERFEITER

HARTFORD, June 18.—(AP)—An agent of the United States secret service, posing as an employe of a Waterbury engraving concern, effectively quashed a counterfeiting conspiracy which was apparently moving toward circulation of a large quantity of fraudulent bills in Connecticut, it was revealed in the trial of Anthony Scricca of Waterbury in the United States district court today.

The trial of Scricca started this morning and recessed until afternoon when Edward Mascola of Waterbury, counsel for the defendant, challenged ten jurors, came to a sudden unexpected conclusion late in the afternoon when Scricca decided during a second recess to change his original plea of not guilty to guilty. He was sentenced to six months in the New Haven county jail by Judge Burrows. Ohlsen, who pleaded guilty without trial, was sentenced to two months, and George Pandages of New Haven, who six years ago was a wealthy Waterbury citizen engaged in the restaurant business, received a sentence of four months on his plea of guilty. Joseph Karnofsky of New Haven, a fourth conspirator, pleaded guilty at an earlier term of court and was fined $500.

SETTLED FOR ILLEGAL POSTING OF CIRCUS BILLS

WATERBURY, June 18.—(AP)—Four attachments for alleged illegal posting of bills announcing the coming of the 101 Wild West Show were served on the manager of the show today at the Thomaston avenue grounds. In one or two instances the management admitted that the claims were valid but in the others raised a great question. All were settled. One claim cost the circus $122.50, another $65, a third $35 and the fourth $25.

Connecticut leads all other states in the Union in this type of litigation, the circus men contend. Nowhere else are so many attachments levied for bill posting as in the Nutmeg state. As one of the officials said today, the circus plays through some states for a week without an attachment. However, when Connecticut is reached, it is the storm signal to prepare for deputy sheriffs with attachment papers.

Morrow's Plurality Mounts To 299,619

With 54 Precincts Missing—Morrow Swept Every County In New Jersey.

NEWARK, N. J., June 18. —(AP) — Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow's plurality in yesterday's republican state primary for nomination as United States senator tonight had reached 299,619, with only 24 of the state's 3304 districts still unreported.

Only the pluralities received by Calvin Coolidge and Herbert Hoover in 1924 and 1928 exceeded the landslide for Morrow. Latest indications were that the final tabulation would boost his lead over 300,000.

The vote, with the 24 scattered precincts missing, stood tonight:

Morrow	417,058
Franklin W. Fort	117,439
Jos. S. Frelinghuysen	47,789

Mr. Morrow ran on a platform advocating repeal of the 18th amendment and return of liquor traffic control to the states. He swept every county in the state, including Somerset and Essex, the respective homes of Frelinghuysen and Fort.

While Mr. Morrow's supporters attributed his overwhelming victory as much to his personal appeal as to his stand on prohibition, Rev. Dr. James K. Shields, state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, said the primary returns had done much to encourage the wets.

Dr. Shields issued a statement saying that "whether he willed it or not, Mr. Morrow's statements had made him the natural outstanding leader of the wets in New Jersey."

Dr. Shields added that Mr. Morrow had already been selected as the wets' "standard-bearer in 1936, and if elected in November, they will immediately raise the standard in 1932." Politicians understood Dr. Shield's to refer to rumors that Mr. Morrow is regarded as possible presidential timber.

At his home in Englewood, Mr. Morrow received telegrams from all sections of the United States and Mexico congratulating him on his victory. A statement from the white house said he "would have every possible support" from the president and administration. Both his republican opponents had promised to support him in the campaign next fall.

In the senatorial election, Mr. Morrow will be opposed for the six-year term by Alexander Simpson, democrat; Miss Esther H. Elfreth, of Haddonfield, prohibition candidate, and Henry Jager, socialist.

For the unexpired term created by appointment of Senator Walter E. Edge as ambassador to France, Mr. Morrow will run against Miss Thelma Parkinson, of Vineland, who was unopposed in the democratic primary. Mr. Edge's term has four months to run after next November.

"The president and the administration have every confidence that Mr. Dwight W. Morrow will be the next senator from New Jersey," the statement read.

Gangster Would Incriminate Lingle

Chicago Gunman When Arrested Said He Was "Working For Jake Lingle."

CHICAGO, June 18.—(AP)— Sinister rumors of "Jake" Lingle's gangland affiliations became a matter of court record in criminal court today.

A gangster, on trial as a gun-toter, was quoted as protesting to the detective who picked him up that he "worked for Jake Lingle," the Tribune reporter who was killed in a downtown subway nine days ago.

The public clamor for action had another answer in the city council, which directed its police committee to prosecute thorough inquiry into the conduct of the police department under Commissioner William F. Russell, who yielded to popular pressure Monday and resigned with his chief of detectives.

Mayor Thompson presided over the city council but offered no nomination for Russell's successor. Alcock, the "Iron Man" of the force, remained in command as ranking deputy commissioner.

The council passed another resolution memorializing congress to submit a national referendum on the restoration of state rights in the control of the liquor traffic. The memorial imputed to the prohibition laws the diversion of "millions of dollars from the treasury into the pockets of bootleggers, thus subsidizing crime which has become a major industry."

"These laws," it read, "have undermined all respect for authority, demoralizing the people and have led to the destruction of constitutional rights, such as freedom from unreasonable search and seizure and the right of trial by jury."

The evidence linking Lingle to the underworld was brought out in the court room where Anthony "Red" Kissane, reputed Capone henchman, faced the jury trial he had demanded on an indictment for bearing a concealed revolver. Detective William Drury took the stand to tell of arresting the gangster on a downtown street, searching him and finding the weapon. He said he asked Kissane what he was doing in the loop.

"I'm working for Jake Lingle," he quoted the gunman.

Detective John Howe, Drury's partner, was asked regarding Kissane's reputation for veracity. He replied that it was bad. His opinion was founded, he said, on his observation of Kissane's associations and on conversations about him with other policemen.

"Would you call Lingle a gangster?" Howe was asked.

"No, I wouldn't, because I never knew him," the detective answered.

Alderman Albert asked in urging an investigation of the police "Is there anyone, who says these crimes could be committed without the connivance of police and gangsters.

"Chicago is governed by police captains for the benefit of police captains. The remedy is not to transfer a captain from one station to another but to send the guilty ones to the penitentiary.

"Let us find out why police captains ride in Lincoln automobiles and live like Rockefellers while men are being shot down in the street."

CLARA BOW IN SECLUSION IN HOTEL IN DALLAS, TEX.

DALLAS, Texas, June 18. — (AP) — Clara Bow of the movies, remained virtually in seclusion in a hotel today while reporters sought her for a further explanation of her unexpected visit to Dallas.

The flaming haired "It" girl changed her hotel suite because of the great number of would be visitors and telephone calls.

One of the reasons she assigned for her visit here in talking with a reporter for the Dallas Times Herald was that she wished to "straighten things out" with a young Dallas professional man. She was quoted as saying that her friendship for him while he was in California several years ago caused threats of a $150,000 alienation of affections suit which she said, she settled for $30,000.

NEW YORK WILL WELCOME COMMANDER BYRD TODAY

This Morning About 10 O'Clock E. S. T. the Party Will Be Taken In Three Tugs For a Triumphal Marine Parade Up the Bay From Quarantine—Three Thousand Troops Will Precede the Admiral and His Explorers Up Broadway—At the City Hall the Formal City Welcome Will Take Place.

NEW YORK, June 18.—(AP)—Richard E. Byrd, explorer of the air and of the earth, was steaming in to port tonight after his latest exploit—a flight that made him victor of the south pole just as he was already conqueror of the north pole.

Just 20 years ago today, former President Theodore Roosevelt was given one of the city's most tumultuous welcomes on his return from 16 months in darkest Africa. Similarly boisterous reception was planned for the man who has just completed 18 months in the icy wastes of Antarctica.

Late today Mrs. Byrd, who has not seen her famous husband for almost two years, stole a march on the other thousands preparing to greet him and steamed down the bay in a seagoing tug to join him outside the harbor. Accompanied by all the members of the expedition who returned ahead of its commander, she left the Battery in the tug almost before anyone learned of the plan. It was learned that she expected to board the admiral's flagship and spend the night there, returning to the city with him tomorrow.

Just as her departure was learned, the Antarctic ships were sighted off Highlands, N. J., about two hours steaming distance from Quarantine. It was understood, however, that the craft from the frozen south would lie outside the bay during the night and hold to their scheduled time of arrival.

The admiral and his officers and crew are due to arrive at Quarantine at 10 o'clock, E. S. T., tomorrow morning. There they will be met by relatives, friends and officials in three tugs and will be taken aboard for a triumphal marine parade up the bay

Governors Island will fire a salute of 13 guns in salute to the admiral just before the tugs tie up at the Battery and the city's citizenry get their first chance to shout a mass greeting to the explorer they have twice welcomed before, once when he flew across the Atlantic and again after he had flown across the north pole.

Three thousand troops will precede the admiral and his fellow explorers up Broadway through one of the paper snowstorms with which the financial district delights to hail its heroes, and at city hall the formal city welcome will take place with loud speakers carrying he addresses to the crowds in the plaza outside.

And then begins for Admiral Byrd a round of receptions, dinners, and welcoming ceremonies that will last, almost without pause, until June 11, when he will be received by the people of Chicago.

A luncheon by the Advertising club follows the welcome at city hall, the press will be met by the admiral in his hotel suite in mid-afternoon, there will be a dinner by the Merchants association in the evening, and a special train leaves with the Antarctic party for Washington at midnight. And so it will go for the next three weeks.

A Virginia delegation, headed by Governor John Garland Pollard, left Richmond today to take part in the welcome celebration. The Richmond Light Infantry Blues battalion will serve as the admiral's guard of honor.

At 6 o'clock tonight the wrecking steamers Resolute and Relief were reported off Highlands to meet the Byrd vessels, but the purpose could not be ascertained. The owners of the steamers said they had no information about the matter and it was generally supposed that they were merely going to stand into the harbor tomorrow. The Eleanor Bolling has been towing the City of New York, which has only an auxiliary engine.

MEASURES FOR RELIEF OF UNEMPLOYMENT IN ENGLAND

LONDON, June 18—(AP)—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald today moved to take England's serious unemployment problem out of politics by inviting David Lloyd George and Stanley Baldwin, leaders of the Liberals and Conservatives to a non-partisan conference on measures for its relief.

Lloyd George, after the premier had delivered a speech covering the matter in the house of commons, announced that he had accepted the invitation for the liberals and hoped that a solution would be found for the nearly 2,000 jobless.

Mr. Baldwin had not indicated this evening what the attitude of the conservatives would be.

Premier MacDonald in his speech said that if the leaders could agree on relief legislation measures could be pushed through parliament which would bring immediate results. Otherwise, he said, the labor government necessarily would suffer delays by having to fight through all of its own legislation.

FIGHT IN INDIA AGAINST NON-PAYMENT OF TAXES

BOMBAY, India, June 18—(AP)—With the coming of the rainy season halting attacks of the Indian Nationalists against the Government Salt Works, the authorities today strengthened their fight against the non-payment of taxes—which has succeeded the salt raids—in two widely separated areas.

In the Gujert, where civil disobedience has been widespread since Mahatma Gandhi opened his campaign there March 12, the government has begun attaching movable property of those who refuse to pay land taxes. The evaders lock their doors and flee when tax collectors appear or hide in the fields, so attachment was resorted to.

To the northeast, in the Punjab, police today arrested seventeen tax evaders in a village 20 miles from Delhi.

CREATED NEW SEAPLANE WORLD ALTITUDE RECORD

WASHINGTON, June 18 —(AP)—A new seaplane world altitude record was credited today to Lieut. Apollo Soucek, U. S. N., with a calibration of his barographs showing an altitude of 39,140 feet, attained last Friday, June 13.

The new mark, breaking his own previous record of 38,500 feet, was established on a flight in which Soucek was forced down by a break in his oil feed line. His altimeter showed only about 38,000 feet and the flier believed he had failed.

The plane used was the same in which he established the land plane altitude record of 43,166 feet, equipped with pontoons.

MADE FASTEST ROUND TRIP OCEAN TO OCEAN FLIGHT

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., June 18.—(AP)—Battling stors and fuel shortages on their eastward trip, William S. Brock and Edward F. Schlee today completed the fastest recorded round-trip ocean to ocean flight across the United States.

They reached San Diego in the record time of 18 hours, 55 minutes and 30 seconds without incident, but despite adversity which struck them soon after they started the return voyage and followed them to the end, the fliers managed to make it back in 16 hours and 50 minutes. Their elapsed time for the round trip was 31 hours and 58 minutes.

After fighting severe electrical storms and head winds over the Rockies last night and being forced to land for fuel at Tallulah, La., this morning, they ran out of gas at the municipal airport and crashed into a fence, narrowly escaping injury, and doing considerable damage to the plane. They had crossed the finish line at Jacksonville beach, 12 miles away, a few minutes before.

Leaving San Diego at 5:11 p. m. (P. S. T.) the airmen encountered their first difficulties over the mountains. Several times, they said they thought they would be forced to jump in their parachutes. Riding from one storm to another, they barely managed to get through. The landing at Tallulah was made at 9 a. m. When they reached Jacksonville they flew into dense clouds. Brock estimated he spent nearly forty minutes seeking his bearings.

WOULD VEST CONGRESS WITH DRY LAW REGULATION

WASHINGTON, June 18.—(AP)—Exclusive power for regulating intoxicating liquors would be vested in congress under a resolution introduced by Representative Michaelson, republican, Illinois, today to direct the judiciary committee to submit to the house a proposal to amend the eighteenth amendment.

Describing himself as neither a wet nor a dry, the Illinois member who was indicted and later freed on a liquor charge in Florida more than a year ago, said he had concluded the people in the country held the eighteenth amendment and dry laws "responsible for much of the graft, corruption and crime which has become general."

REVOLT IN BOLIVIA SAID TO BE "WITHOUT IMPORTANCE"

LA PAZ, Bolivia, June 18. —(AP)—The Bolivian minister of the interior, Colonel Toro, declared today that the insurgent movement in southern Bolivia led by Roberto Hinojosa, communist leader, was "without any importance whatsoever."

At the same time he admitted that the communists had advanced from their base at Villazon as far as the village of Mojo, several miles inland, but said they had later returned to Villazon. The communists yesterday captured Villazon, a railway station close to the Argentine frontier

The minister of the interior made light of communist agitation within the country.

WHOLESALE COMMODITY PRICES AT LOW LEVEL

WASHINGTON, June 18.— (AP) — The decline in wholesale commodity prices which began last August was found today by the federal reserve board to have carried the general average of prices to the lowest level in 13 years.

In its monthly review of business and financial conditions the board described the downward movement of prices as an important factor in the recent course of business. It said the downward movement has been in progress in all commercial countries in the world. The price level in April was placed at about 7 per cent below that of last July.

OVER 2000 PARTICIPATE IN COLORFUL COMMUNITY REUNION WEEK PARADE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, June 18—A crowd that numbered well into the thousands this afternoon witnessed the most brilliant parade to be seen here in the history of old Windham, many being of the opinion that the colorful spectacle outrivalled the gala procession during Old Home week 15 years ago.

Showers Drench Paraders

Intermittent showers drenched paraders and spectators alike, but failed to dampen the enthusiasm that prevailed on this gala occasion, the main event of the 1930 Community Reunion week.

Many Beautiful Floats

A score of beautiful floats entered in the various divisions showed sharply resplendent in the murky atmosphere. With bands heading each of the seven divisions, the parade got underway shortly after 2 o'clock on Valley street, wending its way up Union and Main streets, up Bridge and down Pleasant to the Elks park.

At Elks' park the scheduled one-hour concert by the B. P. O. E. band, Charles N. C. Wheeler, director, was held on the west veranda of the Elks' home. Hundreds of people sought shelter in the park and at the home during the concert, many of them inspecting the beautiful building for the first time. As the rain abated later in the afternoon the various amusements rides that are at the park for the entire week, began to do a thriving business.

Proceeding between solid banks of holiday-bedecked spectators and decorated buildings, the parade was indeed a sight that will long be remembered. Some 2,500 people participated in the procession which was nearly one hour in passing and about two miles in length.

First Division

Heading the first division was a platoon of police including Captain Frank W. McLean and Officers Roderick Lariviere, Joseph Lariviere, F. Rudolph Laramie and John A. Lutton. All other officers of the department were busily occupied with traffic duty under a well-mapped program outlined by Chief Thomas F. Grady.

Lieutenant Jeremiah A. McCarthy and his aides followed in line and next came the members of the general committee in decorated automobiles. Music for this division was by the B. P. O. Elks band. Following were: Company C, 169th Infantry, C. N. G., First Lieutenant Edward A. Morrison in command; Willimantic lodge, No. 1311, B. P. O. E., Exalted Ruler George W. Hickey, with a turn-out of over 100 members; G. A. R., and D. A. R., in automobiles and a G. A. R. float bearing Past State Department Commander James Haggerty. There followed the Girl Scouts of the First Congregational church, Miss Marion Branch leader, the Boy scouts of the same church, Attorney John B. Harvey, Scoutmaster; Boy Scouts of the Baptist church, Stanley Morrill, leader; St. Paul's church Boy Scouts, Rev. F. C. Williams, leader; St. John's Commandery, No. 11, Knights Templar in charge of Eminent Commander Russell W. Potter, 70 strong in full regalia; Canton Windham No. 2, I. O. O. F., Captain Ellison S. Smith aide in charge of the division.

Legion Has 100 In Line

The U. S. Artillery band from Fort H. G. Wright, N. Y., headed the second division. James J. Shea post No. 19, American Legion followed with 100 men in line and Commander A. Sussman in charge; members of Earl W. Green post, No 52, American Legion of Mansfield and Coventry, Carleton P. King commander; auxiliaries of the two posts, Mrs. Florence Burchnall and Mrs. Madeline James, respective presidents. The American Legion float was beautifully decorated in purple and white and bore a soldier, sailor and children. Next in line were Red Cross nurses in automobile, a float of Francis S. Long Woman's Relief corps, No. 23. The St. Joseph's Hospital Alumni association float which followed was a most impressive interpretation, with Miss Alice Healy depicting Florence Nightingale. The Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil war float was historical in the presentation of four generations of a Civil war family. The float was occupied by Frederick Oatley of Norwood, R. I., past department commander of the Rhode Island G. A. R., grandfather; Mrs. Minnie Mathieu of this city, past department president of the D. U. V., daughter; Miss Mildred Mathieu, granddaughter and Master Clarence George Mathieu, great grandson. This float was decorated with 5,000 white paper napkins, and the group was in charge of Mrs. Fred N. Flagg and Miss Corinne Picknell. The Spanish-American War Veterans' auxiliary float concluded the division which was in charge of Aide Arthur W. Swanson.

V. F. W. Makes Nice Showing

The Veterans of Foreign Wars and their auxiliary made up the bulk of the third division. The band was that of Post No. 530 of Middletown. Gold Star post, No. 1724, was in charge of Commander James J. Lee and the auxiliary in charge of President Mrs. Marceline English. The veterans' float was a clever depiction of Flanders field in France, covered with poppies and bearing Miss Emmeline Dufresne as the angel of peace. The Odd Fellows and Violet Rebekah lodge, I. O. O. F., paraded and boasted a fine float, as did the Pythian Sisters. Fire Chief Charles A. Reynolds was in charge of the division.

Three Pretty Floats

St. Mary's Boy Scout band of Putnam, led by Rev. Charles Casey, headed the fourth division. A representation of the Rotary club followed. The Sons of Israel, led by Benjamin Eisenberg, president, marched 60 strong. The auxiliary was in charge of Mrs. A. Beller, president followed by the auxiliary, Ladies' A. O. H. A trio of handsome floats, veritable pieces of art, followed in line. The first was that of the American Thread company on which a gigantic spol revolved and two charming young ladies sat at sewing machines. The Rossie Velvet company incorporated a pleasing display of six beautiful young women wearing crepe velvet artistically draped to show the texture with telling effect. The float of the Ladies' Syrian society represented freedom, with Liberty, adorned in white and wearing a gold crown, assisted in the portrayal by several young ladies. Peter A. Dion was in charge of the division.

The Hebron band played at the head of the fifth division, A. E. Lyman, director. There followed Garde Sacred Heart, Captain T. Armand Perreault; the League of the Sacred Heart, Alphonse Gelinas, president; Ladies' of Ste. Anne society in a colorful float; Artisans of America assisted by a company of boys; girls of St. Jean D'Arch society of St. Mary's church, Alice Chagnon, in charge; Children of Mary society; Ashland Club Boys' band from Jewett City, Fred Bourque, director. St. Jean Baptiste society followed with one of the largest organization representations and wearing the regalia of the society. Older members rode in automobiles. Floats in this division were by the St. Jean society, Conseil St. Cecile No. 113, Ladies' of Ste. Anne and Ladies' of St. Anthony, Conseil Florimond, No. 74, L'Union St. Jean Baptiste d'Amerique also marched in this division which was in charge of Arthur Vertefeuille.

Polish Organizations Turn Out

The Knights of Columbus Boys' band, Gerald Ballon, baton major, headed the sixth division. The Polish organizations appeared in large turnouts and featured a huge float by the T. Kosciuszko Naturalization club, assisted by the Polish Ladies' Rosary society, the St. Cecelia Polish choir, the St. Joseph's Men's Polish society and Polish Woman's Alliance. Gus Sagal was in charge of the division.

The seventh and final division was led by the Italian Citizens' band with Proessor P. Puca directing. In line were the Sons of Italy, Loggia Guiseppe Garibaldi, No. 267, O. F. D. I., Loggia Principessa Iolanda, No. 1526, O. F. D. I., which had combined in arranging one of the most attractive floats of the parade, decorated with over 6,000 freshly cut flowers. Bringing up the rear were the Exchange club and the Lions club float followed by a float depicting the work of the Willimantic State Trade school. The division was in charge of William F. Mann and Luciano Marsilesi.

OLD TIMERS MAKE MERRY AT "OLD SCHOOL" RECEPTION

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, June 18—Happenings of yesterday were revived and plentiful entertainment for the younger generation was enjoyed by over 2,000 people attending the Community Reunion night held in the state armory this evening. The affair which was held in conjunction with the annual reception of the Windham high school graduating class brought back a number of old-timers who occupied boxes allotted to old school classes dating back to 1865 and previous years to the present day. The 1930 class occupied a large box at the north side of the drill shed over which was suspended the banner, Forward 1930.

The hall was resplendent in colorful decorations to which was added a brilliant touch from the many beautiful gowns. Twenty dance numbers were rendered by the Peerless orchestra, led by Ralph H. Gibson.

Among old-timers who sought out their friends tonight was the famous old musician, James W. Rollinson, 75, now of Auburndale, Fla. Mr. Rollinson attended the old stone school under Principals Powell and D. P. Corbin. He has been away from his native city for 47 years, last returning on a visit here Lucy J. Pierce, a native of Sterling, ac- 22 years ago. His wife, the former companied him tonight. Still another well known native son who returned was William H. Jillson, 75, who left here many years ago and is now a resident of North Adams.

The committee in charge of the reunion consisted of Raymond A. Parker, chairman, Ralph H. Gibson, representing the Rotary club; Dr. E. E. Gorton and John H. Wilcox, Lions club and Harold and Frank M. Lincoln, of the Exchange club.

Valuable Masonic regalia, once the property of Samuel B. Stanton, father of the late Robert F. Stanton, was presented to Eastern Star lodge by Mrs. Robert F. Stanton, the presentation being made through Judge Otto B. Robinson. The regalia was in use many years ago when the lodge was located in Lebanon, then one of the large towns of the state.

IMPROVING ROADS IN OPEN TERRITORY

Rhode Island isn't a large state, either as to area or population. There are sections which are thickly populated while there are those which are not. It is possible to travel over much Rhode Island territory without being convinced that it is cramped for space. The fact is that Rhode Island has some areas which have not been opened up, or if they are crossed by roads, they are not in the condition they should be for the convenience and comfort of its people.

Into these areas it is pushing new roads. They are, in some instances, cutoffs for the accommodation of traffic and the relief of congested village streets. They are, in other cases, serving to open up thinly settled areas and they are in various instances giving attention to the need of bettering the country roads. Rhode Island isn't giving all its attention to the rebuilding of main highways, but is giving recognition to the need of developing short cuts, opening up new areas and catering to the benefit of those, even though few in number, who are residents of the backroads but nevertheless paying their proportion of the tax which is expected to be employed for the betterment of roads. It is finding that many of the cross country roads should be put in condition whereby they can be employed by all highway users as short cuts, as a relief to traffic on other roads and as a bit of justice to those who have to use them whether they want to or not.

Such attention is only what conditions call for. Highways are becoming more and more congested. Cities are finding it difficult to take care of the volume of traffic that is poured through them and are seeking a diversion of as much of it as possible. What better way of taking care of such situations is there than the opening up of new roads to attract part of the traffic and thus bring about a greater distribution. Much mileage is now piled up because of the lack of sufficiently good cross roads. Motorists think nothing of going miles out of their way over a good road instead of taking chances and inviting discomfort on the shorter but perilous cross road. With the betterment of these roads which cut distance time, mileage and congestion are reduced and safety and satisfaction increased.

THE NEW JERSEY RESULT

Interest in the New Jersey primary was centered in the three-cornered contest in the republican party and from the result it is apparent that New Jersey republicans rose to the occasion and indicated their choice by such an overwhelming majority that there can never be any question as to what they think of their nominee and how they view his attitude on prohibition.

The contest, if it can be called such, was between Dwight W. Morrow and Congressman Fort. Mr. Morrow had taken the position that the 18th amendment should be repealed and the states given the right to deal with the liquor question. Mr. Fort ran as a dry and stood for the enforcement of the present law. Both men are unquestionably highly regarded by the people of New Jersey and there is reason for it. Mr. Morrow has made a wonderful impression not only upon the people of his state but upon the country by the services he has rendered as an ambassador to Mexico. He has unquestionably expressed the sentiment of the people of New Jersey on the dry question if we can judge by the outcome of the primary. And he received this tremendous backing at a time when his championship of the repeal of the 18th amendment was being questioned.

This expression of public sentiment in New Jersey cannot be regarded as a surprise. Rather was it to be expected. The only uncertainty that existed in the primary was furnished by the triangular contest. New Jersey has repeatedly shown its wet inclinations. This time it had a chance to do so and at the same time select an outstanding figure for senatorial candidate. That the primary insures to New Jersey a man of the highest type can, perhaps, be displayed in no better manner than by the congratulations extended to the successful contender by Mr. Fort and his assurance of full support. It is the clearest cut test on the dry question that has thus far been made in the primaries.

WELCOME TO BYRD

New York is the city that most frequently receives the returning heroes. It doesn't stint its welcomes and there is assurance that those who have figured in unusual accomplishments abroad will experience a flattering reception if they enter the country through that port.

Today it is Admiral Byrd for whom New York will open its arms and express the country's, as well as the city's, gratification for the success of his undertaking and the safe return of his party. This isn't the first time that Admiral Byrd has figured in extraordinary accomplishments. He has a penchant for such things. He likes adventure, is ready to take the chances and has the ability to make a success of what he undertakes. This has been repeatedly proved and the country gives full recognition to it.

While Admiral Byrd insists that credit for his polar trip must be distributed among his party, it is recognized that without such a leadership the result might not have been the same. This was well noted while preparations were underway. Then it was that there was an insistence upon the most careful arrangements and thorough details. There was no failure to provide whatever was necessary. For the thoroughness of this provision much credit is due, and it will be recalled that it was with the same attention to detail that all the other steps in the advance on the pole were made.

The Byrd party set out with a definite object. It had the attention of the whole world, quite the same as other explorers have had as they have attempted similar trips, and it had advantages which others were unable to secure because science had not made them available. By the manner in which use was made of the latest methods of overcoming distance and defying obstacles, by the skillful employment of known facts and the study of conditions, such a trip was made in such a surprisingly short time as to make it seem impossible when compared with other polar explorations. Furthermore, the world was in touch with the party all the time.

Some of the party have previously reached home. Admiral Byrd lands today and New York can be relied upon to do the right thing in extending the hand of welcome and briefly acknowledging his achievement.

CHINA'S TROUBLES

Much was hoped for the new government in China for the beneficial effect it might have upon that country. The government itself seemed confident enough that it not only could but would master the situation. It hasn't exactly abandoned that view but it is encountering plenty of opposition and finding out that realization is far different from anticipation.

The new government is discovering that it is not getting cooperation where it expected it. It is finding that certain elements are not only bent upon taking care of their own interests but are doing their best to break down a central government. It is recognized that in union there is strength, but China finds it extremely difficult to maintain unity. The fact is, that it doesn't appear to have secured it in the first place, but it has indicated from time to time that it was assured and it had proceeded to tell the rest of the world that there was no question about control.

It is only a short time since the nationalists were victorious and gathered up the reins. Now they are finding it rather difficult to keep going. They are encountering opposition of a serious nature from unsatisfied leaders. They are finding that there is a decided unwillingness to kow tow to Nanking, strife of bloody character is again underway and there is no telling what the outcome is going to be.

China is, of course, not doing so very much different from what it has done in the past. It is a big country. Its provinces are not disposed to join hands under a united government for any great length of time. There are jealousies, alliances, war lords and personal ambitions which stand in the way of it. There are elements which are decidedly opposed to an orderly government and those who want no close association with the rest. It presents a situation that means plenty of difficulty in effecting control and the nationalists are being made aware of it from more than one direction.

It was only a short time ago that the Nanking government decided to abandon the extraterritoriality treaties, claiming that it could take care of the situation which they were expected to meet in that country. It doesn't appear today that it is able to govern conditions among its own people, to say nothing of insuring proper protection of the rights of foreigners in their courts.

END TREATY DELAY

When those members of the foreign relations committee of the senate submitted in committee the proposition that action on naval treaty be deferred until the president turned over all the papers, which have been sought but which the chief executive has declined to do because it would be against the best interests of the country, there was permitted a test which indicated what may be expected in the way of a report from the committee.

Turning that motion down by a vote of 13 to four showed how the committee is divided. In all probability the senate itself is even more favorable to the ratification of the naval agreement that was negotiated at London. With a committee so favorable to the approval of the document, it seems a bit unnecessary to delay its report until some time next week. Likewise is it indicated that far more delay has taken place in making a report than is necessary. It lends strength to the feeling that has been expressed that the matter should have been dealt with in a manner that would have permitted its disposal at the present session of congress instead of throwing it over into a special session, as now indicated.

Furthermore, the disclosure is such that it should put an end to the efforts which have been made for some time to get the senate to so deal with the treaty that action would be further delayed until late in the year. With the senate interested rather in voting on the treaty and getting it out of the way, instead of delaying action to give the opposition more time for a fruitless fight, there should be a prompt and emphatic rejection of the proposals and schemes for frustrating action in the special session. The majority is ready and should insist upon early action.

EDITORIAL NOTES

New Jersey went to Morrow yesterday.

Has your study of the crews at practice made it possible for you to pick the winner?

There cannot be much question now as to what New Jersey thinks about Mr. Morrow and prohibition.

The man on the corner says: It would be extremely difficult for some people to pose as doves of peace.

A PRESENT FOR JOHN

It was while members of the Saturday afternoon Ladies' Bridge club were sitting around gossiping and sipping tea after completing their game of bridge that the subject of Christmas presents for husbands first was mentioned. Mrs. Elwood, a recent bride, brought it up.

"My dear," she murmured to the room in general, "I had the hardest time trying to think of something suitable to give John for Christmas—something practical and at the same time something he'd be sure to like. When I began my Christmas shopping I hadn't the remotest idea what I could possibly give him."

"I had a hard time deciding what to give Henry, too," said Mrs. Jeffries, sitting at Mrs. Elwood's right, and making a heroic attempt to choose a large piece of cake with a small amount of calories. "But at last I got the brilliant idea of giving him golf sticks!"

"Walter travels so much," broke in Mrs. Summers, "that I had a comparatively easy time selecting his gift. I just went down and got him a new traveling bag with all kinds of useful accessories."

"I bought shirts for Harrison," said Mrs. Ellis, a chubby little practical looking woman. "A man never has too many nice shirts and they wear out so fast they seem to me to be an ideal gift. I'm giving him six shirts, each with a different colored stripe, and a tie to match each stripe—lavender, green, pink—"

"I'm giving Norris the usual things—sox, gloves and handkerchiefs," said young Mrs. Andrews, who looked as though she never let anything worry her much. "I don't think you can ever go wrong giving a man things like that." Mrs. Elwood, whose intended disclosure had been rudely postponed by the ardor of her friends in relating their own purchases, now found a gap in the conversation into which she hurried with zest.

"I just won't give John anything so commonplace as handkerchiefs," she said. "There are plenty of occasions when you can give things like that, but at Christmas I insist on being original. At first I thought of giving him field glasses, which he wants very much, but he'd use them so seldom they'd be an awful extravagance. At one time I had a camping outfit on my list—John loves to go fishing in summer. But summer is such a long way off I decided to let well enough alone until the time comes for using a tent and all that sort of thing.

"Once I considered giving him a lounging robe—he adores to lounge around the house in the evening, reading and smoking—but I decided the old woolen bathrobe I gave him for his birthday was plenty good enough to spill cigarette ashes over, and I took the new silk lounging robe off my list as entirely unsuitable.

"Most of the other things you all mentioned were on my list at one time or another, I intended getting him golf clubs, but he already has so many standing around in all parts of the house where I least want them that it would be silly to bring more trouble on myself by getting him any more. As for traveling bags, we never go anywhere out of town, so they, of course, were out of the question."

"My dear," interrupted Mrs. Jeffries at this point, "I should say you did have a hard time. Do tell us what you finally decided upon." Mrs. Elwood beamed.

"It came to me like a flash one evening," she said, "after I'd given a luncheon party where I was miserably embarrassed by having to serve my guests creamed pea soup with bullion spoons! All of them were women who would notice a faux pas like that above everything else. Up until then all my suggestions to John about adding to my meager silver service had gone in one ear and out the other—just like a man! So it suddenly occurred to me that Christmas was my golden opportunity. My dears, you should see the exquisite dozen silver cream soup spoons I bought. I know John will be simply thrilled to death when I give them to him!"—Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, June 18—Death has claimed another of that group of Americans to whom the thunder of guns in the World war was to prove but the knocking of opportunity upon their doors.

For it was the war that gave Herbert M. Lord, army paymaster, his chance. It made him the master paymaster of history. He paid out ten of billions of dollars in a matter of months.

Never was man better fitted for what destiny held in store for him. General Lord was a marked man before the first stir of the war rippled to the surface of European events in 1914.

Starting his public career as a clerk to Nelson Dingley's ways and means committee of the house, the war with Spain swept him into army life as a paymaster.

Benefited By Row

He began, by virtue of that relationship "on the hill" as a major of the pay corps. He retained that rank for years until the controversy over his pay corps colleague and senior, Major Beecher Ray, raged at full tilt when the democrats came into power in 1912 with President Wilson in the white house.

Ray was charged with political activity in behalf of Taft. Ultimately, he was denied by President Wilson the special promotion to a lieutenant colonelcy that had been provided, and it was Major Lord who got the step up.

And so well did this pay officer function, despite the origins of his army beginnings, that he became war time chief of army finance and after that, director of the budget, succeeding General Dawes. They had seen much of each other in France, Dawes and Lord, and probably it was to Dawes General Lord owed his last and biggest public service assignment.

Tireless Worker

Even back in his committee clerk days, Herbert Lord proved himself a veritable human adding machine when dealing with figures. His memory, down to the cents, was dumbfounding to less gifted folks. He never lapsed from that gift.

He was, also, a giant for work. At the budget bureau he toiled early and late in putting through Coolidge economy policies. No saving was too small or too large for him to attempt. Annual budget meetings were far from dry-as-dust connings over of figures under his direction.

He had been a newspaper man in early life and retained his taste for unusual expressions and striking illustrations.

It is strange to think what a difference the war made in the destinies of so wany men whose names today nationally, sometimes internationally, are household words.

Remember The Fly

By James F. Elder, M. D., Youngstown, Ohio.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

How he grows! He toils not, neither does he spin. He has no conscience, and pride is not in him. As a mathematician, he is the world's chief multiplier, and India with all her millions is not more teeming than he.

This time of the year is the favorable season for mating and raising large families of flies. The robust carriers of germs, filth and dirt which have been hibernating during the winter are now coming forth with the warm weather to feast for the summer season.

Do you know that today's husky female fly will be a mother, grandmother, great-grandmother and so on to about seven "greats," and the ancestress of over a million flies in July? Some family! So swat and kill her now!

Figure it for yourself. If you do kill her now, all that million and more flies die at the one swat. If you wait until the end of June one swat only keeps about a hundred thousand from distributing disease. But if you delay still another month, you can only kill one fly at a time and oh, how many there will be!

So let us lay out an active campaign against the fly, who is the poorest sport we have and has no respect for decency. They will walk over filth and then, if they have the chance, will come into our homes, walk over a good steak and all the trimmings, or even over the mouth of our most precious baby. This is not nice to contemplate, but it is the way of the fly.

Now for the campaign against him. Carefully screen all windows and doors. All the world knows that screens will keep out flies in the mass. If a fly accidently gets into the house, hunt him down and swat him immediately. Any housekeeper knows that a few are going to get in even when rigid sanitation is practiced, but ten minutes a day with a stout fly swatter will accomplish wonders. Now let us go further. Destroy all breeding places. Keep all garbage cans well covered. Either burn or destroy all garbage regularly. Clean up all filth and tin can dumps. Spread lime, borax or calcined colemanite on damp spots where filth has been.

In getting rid of these flies you go a long way toward preventing such diseases as diarrhoea in children, dysentery and typhoid fever.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Jerry Enjoys a Little Joke

The truly smart are far too wise
To let their ego blind their eyes.
—Old Mother Nature.

Peter Rabbit was very much out of sorts. He had failed to find the new home of Jerry Muskrat. Of course what he was looking for was a house, —just such a house as Jerry had long had in the Smiling Pool. You know Jerry Muskrat's house is often very much like a small edition of the house of Paddy the Beaver. It usually stands in the water and the roof comes well above the water. In fact, Jerry's bedroom is above the water and has a nice arched roof. There are no windows and no doors to be seen. The entrance is from beneath. It is under water. Jerry has a tunnel which lead right into the cellar of his house and then opens into his bedroom. This was the kind of house that Peter Rabbit had looked for along the Laughing Brook, above the Smiling Pool and along the Laughing Brook and along the Laughing Brook below the Smiling Pool.

Now, all the time Peter thought that Jerry Muskrat didn't know of the search that Peter was making. As a matter of fact, Jerry knew all about it and he chuckled a great deal.

"Peter thinks himself very smart," chuckled Jerry. "He is sure that he can find my house and he is sure that I don't know that he is looking for it. By and by he'll tell me that I haven't any house. Yes, sir, that is what he'll do. He'll come around and tell me that I haven't any house, because he hasn't been able to find it. It hasn't entered that funny head of his that there may be more than one kind of house."

Sure enough, it happened just as Jerry Muskrat expected. The very first time that Peter Rabbit saw Jerry, he accused him of being dishonest. Jerry pretended to be indignant, but all the time down inside he was laughing.

"Peter Rabbit," said he indignantly, "don't you dare say that I haven't told the truth! Don't you dare do it! I told you that I have another home That is the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. It's a good home, if I do say so. It is a very good home. I'll be glad to have you visit me there any time that you feel like doing so." Jerry's eyes twinkled when he said this.

Peter didn't know just what to say. No, sir, Peter didn't know just what to say. "I-I-I don't mean to say that you haven't told the truth," said he. "Just the same, I can't help feeling that it is queer that I can't find that new house of yours. There is nothing the matter with my eyes and certainly that house of yours is big enough to be seen by any one."

"That depends," replied Jerry. "I know that my old house was easily seen. In fact, any one who visited the Smiling Pool would have to be blind not to see it. But you know there are houses and houses, Peter, and not all houses are alike. Now, my present house isn't anything at all like my old house. No, sir, it isn't anything at all like that old house. That is, it isn't anything at all like it in looks.

"Peter Rabbit," said he indignantly, "don't you dare say that I haven't told the truth"

You might sit right on it and not know it."

"What's that?" cried Peter sharply.

"I said that you might sit right on the roof of my house and not know you were sitting on it at all," replied Jerry. 'In fact, you are sitting on it right this very minute."

You should have seen Peter Rabbit jump up! It was funny. He jumped up and turned around and stared in every direction. When he looked back in the water, Jerry Muskrat had disappeared. Once more Peter looked. All he could see was the grass-covered bank of the Smiling Pool. "Now, what did Jerry Muskrat mean by that?" muttered Peter.

CHILD TRAINING

"Do" And "Don't"

Ruth L. Frankel

Many mothers are puzzled as to how to apply the psychologists' rule, to be positive instead of negative in giving orders. "Say 'do' rather than 'don't'," they advise and they explain that an idea presented in this manner will be far more effective than a mere prohibition.

At first thought, the application of this seems more or less impossible. When Johnny insists on banging a drum at the time daddy wants to sleep, the logical thing to say seems to be: "Johnny, stop that noise! Don't do that!" But, if instead, you say confidentially, "Daddy wants to go to sleep; let's see how quiet we can be," and if you then suggest something interesting that he can do without noise, your effort will be much effective. Somehow, human nature loves to do the thing that is forbidden, while it as quickly follows sensible suggestions. So "be quiet!" is far better than "don't make such a racket!", but the tone of the former may suggest the latter. Our "do" should be an invitation to cooperate.

Children are not naturally naughty or indifferent. They are full of energy that must be worked off. They are little savages without sensitive nerves that mind noises. And they must be provided with proper outlets in order that they may use up this energy. It is useless as well as cruel, on a rainy day, to insist that small muscles be cramped for hours while the children sit docilely at some peaceful task. It is courting disaster to persist in "don't touch this," "don't do that," "don't squirm," and so on. But, on the other hand, it should not mean that the house is made unbearable by the children's presence. Put them to work. Tell Johnny the old rocking-chair in the nursery needs mending and set him to work in an out-of-the-way corner with screws, gimlet, screw-driver and gluepot. Let Ellen come into the kitchen and help mix a cake, or let her try her hand at remodeling an old dress or hat. Keep the children busy, every one.

Have a rainy day closet, if possible, full of things to do; toys and books to be mended, sewing materials to be made into pretty things, tools and wood, scissors, paste and crepe paper. Whenever the children get restless and "whiney," put them to work. Let them do whatever interests them most. If the day is fine, send them out on an errand, if it is only to the corner to mail a letter or buy a postage stamp. Give them spades and rakes to dig in the garden.

Another positive attitude lies in encouragement. It is far better to praise a child for a good action than to scold for a wrong one. If Betty, aged five, has successfully managed to go to the store and buy a loaf of bread, praise her and let her think that such a grown up achievement is worth all sorts of effort. Pay less attention to the spilled cereal when Tommy attempts to feed himself than to the few successfully managed spoonfuls he does get into his small mouth. Whatever the children do that is good, or that is a sign of progress in the right direction, should be noticed and commented on. Daddy should hear at supper time not how Mary broke the vase and Billy disobeyed, but how Mary, having accidentally broken the vase, ran for a dustpan and cleaned it all up and then wanted to save her pennies to buy mother another, and how Billy managed, all unaided, to dress himself completely, when he awoke from his nap. Encouragement goes a long way; little people try harder to get on tiptoe to reach the jam shelf than the vinegar bottle. And when parents realize the immense improvement in the response that comes from the use of the positive instead of the negative attitude on their part, this better way easily becomes their habit.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

Yorubaland

The five-day week is not an invention of Soviet Russia but has been in use for a long time among the semi-civilized natives of the Yoruba tribe in Nigeria, Africa, according to a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic society. The Yorubas have other customs that make them understandable to westerners, the bulletin points out—policewomen who patrol the village streets and political machines that seat and unseat rulers.

"Theoretically, this tribe of the Slave Coast is governed by local chiefs and a king. Actually the controlling power is wielded by a political machine made up of secret societies. When the council of the Ogboni society, most powerful of them all, is displeased, a delegation is sent to the king with a gift of parrot eggs. An accompanying statement expresses deep concern at the fatigued condition of the king, caused by the cares of government and suggests that it is time for him to rest. Long custom decrees that the 'rest' shall be achieved by swallowing poison.

"At frequent intervals the 'diety' Oro, personifying the executive power of the Ogboni society, haunts the forest. His roaring, windlike approach can be heard in the distance and his wooden mask, with blood-smeared lips and his flowing white robe hung with shells emphasize the importance of his duty—to punish the objectionable.

"This corner of darkest Africa has its policewomen who patrol the village streets to see that their semi-civilized sisters live up to the local moral code. Each village policewoman is known as Iyalode—'head woman' or 'mistress of the street.' When Oro is at large the Iyalode wields great power for it is her duty to keep the girls and women shut up in huts.

"The Yorubas esteem gods of thunder, of lightning and of agriculture, a faith which is reminiscent of early Egypt. In their primitive fear of death they devise images of the recent departed ones to insure peace to the surviving relatives. A child is said to be his deceased grandfather or uncle. Often he is given the name of the ancestor who is supposed to have been born again in him. Sometimes a mother will carry her child on one shoulder and on the other a similar mummylike wooden child fashioned to resemble its deceased twin in shape and sex. The living child is always accompanied by this twin doll to keep it from pining and to keep the spirit of the deceased twin alive.

"The Yoruba week begins with Akojo, First or Sabbath day, a day of rest for all. To undertake any business on this day will incur ill luck. Then comes Ojo-awo, Day of the Secret (sacred to Ifa); Ojo-Ogun, the Day of the God of Iron and War; Ojo-Shango, Day of the Thunder God; and Ojo-Obatala, Obatala's Day. Each day is a rest day for those who follow the god to which the day is dedicated.

"Every fifth day is market day. Yoruba women, perfect blends of velvety sun-tan, bring huge baskets of yams. They carry babies on their backs throughout the day and feed them without interrupting trade. The market-women say, 'A man of the town knows nothing about farming, or the seasons for planting, yet the yams he buys must always be large.'

"The Yorubas are addicted to proverbs. In place of 'out of the frying pan, into the fire'—they say, 'He runs away from the sword and hides himself in the scabbard.' 'A hunchback is never asked to stand up.' is their way of saying, 'No one expects the impossible.' In the English-speaking world, 'To marry in haste is to repent at leisure,'—with the Yoruba, 'Quick loving a woman means quick not loving a woman'."

This Woman In 4 Weeks Lost 19 Pounds of Fat

Here's a letter written October 21, 1929, by Mrs. Fred Barringer of Lewiston, Montana, that ought to be read by every overweight woman in America.

"Gentlemen: I first saw your advertisement in a Billings, Montana, paper and decided to try Kruschen Salts.

I started taking them every morning as directed as I was very much overweight and wanted to reduce.

I had tried going on a diet but would get so hungry that my diet would not last long, so I decided to give "Kruschen Salts" a fair trial. The day I started to take them I weighed 256 lbs. and at present, which has been just four weeks, I weigh 239 pounds. And I must say, I feel better in every way, besides looking much better. Kruschen Salts had a decided effect upon the quantity of food I took and stimulated my desire to greater activity.

I have recommended Kruschen Salts to many of my friends, in fact, have a number of them taking Kruschen Salts.

May all large people, both men and women, who want to reduce in an easy way, give Kruschen Salts a fair trial. I am sure it will convince any one."

A bottle of Kruschen Salts that lasts four weeks costs but 85c at Lee and Osgood's or any drugstore in America

Stories That Recall Others

Sure

Edward, age four, lives in a double house. Mr. X, who lives on the other side of the house, bought a new car recently. Edward got quite a thrill out of this, and early in the evening after the car had arrived, he ran to meet his father with: "Daddy, the X's have bought a new car! Mr. X is on the porch, and he'll tell you all about it!"

Always Room for One More

That the milk of human kindness is not all sour was well illustrated in the case of the much discussed abandoned baby found one day in the rain beside the road.

A man who peddles from door to door stopped at a childless house a few days after and inquired, in the course of the conversation, if they had heard about it.

"Yes," came the reply. "Wasn't that pathetic?"

"Well, my wife and I went to the hospital to try to get it, but we didn't have any luck. I looked too poor, I guess."

"What did they say?"

"Well, something about the court having to decide about its future. But we did so want that little feller. All our children got plum excited when we said we were going after it. All of us wanted it".

"How many children have you?"

"Seven."

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The Ansonia O. & C. Company, Ansonia.

One of the oldest manufacturing concerns of the Naugatuck valley is the Ansonia O. & C. company in Ansonia; so named from the founders, Messrs. Wilbur F. Osborne and George W. Cheesman, who organized the Osborne & Cheesman company in 1847.

This concern, now a textile manufacturing company, was something quite different in the early days when hoop-skirts, for instance, then in vogue, were notable products.

Some 50 years ago George O. Schneller, a man of talent and energy, was beginning to be influential in Ansonia. In 1892 he became very prominent in the concern, which was then reorganized and incorporated as The Ansonia O. & C. Co. Afterward his son, the late George O. Schneller, 2nd, became a dominant personality in the company.

During the late war, the company supplied the United States government with large quantities of legging laces and army belts. Since then the business of the company has grown rapidly and is still growing, but its products have changed quite radically.

The company has an up-to-date, centrally located, plant with five acres of floor space. Its chief products now are the well-known "Ansonette" corset elastic webbing and "Tutone" hose supporters. The company is a close corporation.

The present officers are: Alton T. Terrell, president and general manager; Harold G. Donham, secretary and treasurer; Wallace F. Fassett, vice president; Raymond W. Eastop vice president.

RIGHT OF WAY SUIT ON BOSWELL AVE. PROPERTY

Before Judge Allyn L. Brown in the superior court here Wednesday afternoon trial was in progress in the right of way suit in which Rosa Zimmerman is the plaintiff against Frank B. Disco, two adjoining property owners, Mrs. Zimmerman owning the property at 17 Boswell avenue and Mr. Disco at 23 Boswell avenue.

The legal trouble is over a claimed right of way between the properties upon which Mrs. Zimmerman claims that Mr. Disco has infringed by building a five car garage, part of which is on the right of way. She has secured a temporary injunction against Disco and is asking $2,000 damages.

Besides the plaintiff, witnesses called to testify Wednesday were George B. Phillips, civil engineer who examined a blue print and pictures of the property; Walter A. Ryan, Richard L. Tarrant and Louis Zimmerman, husband of the plaintiff, for whom Charles V. James is attorney. Mayor Lee Roy Hobbins and C. Hadlai Hull are counsel for Mr. Disco.

The plaintiff's testimony had been practically concluded when court adjourned for the day to resume trial of the case this (Thursday) morning.

OBITUARY
Squire Gregson

Squire Gregson, 70, passed away suddenly Wednesday morning at his residence on the Joseph Perkins road, although he had been in ill health for about two years. Born in England, July 23, 1859, the son of the late Richard and Mary Davenport Gregson, he came to this country in his youth with his parents and located in Norwich in 1887.

SQUIRE GREGSON

Mr. Gregson was born in England, July 23, 1859, the son of the late Richard Gregson and Mary Davenport Gregson. With his family he came to this country when a child and located in Norwich in 1887.

On May 28, 1890 he was united in marriage with Mary Welsh, of this city, by Rev. Eric Schmidt, of Trinity Episcopal church. To this union were born one son, Harry Davenport, who died in infancy, and three daughters.

For years Mr. Gregson was interested in the laundry business, retiring in 1924, after being associated with the business for a period of about 37 years.

With his brother, John, Mr. Gregson came to Norwich from Providence, in January, 1887, entering the laundry business under the firm name of S. and J. Gregson, proprietors of the Norwich Steam laundry. At that time the business was located in the old Lucas building at the corner of Shetucket and Water streets. In 1890 it was found necessary to move to large quarters and which time the McWhirr building, at 193 Franklin street, was purchased.

Again in 1907, a further increase in business required added floor space with the result that an addition was made to the building. Messrs. S. and J. Gregson continued in partnership until April, 1920, when John Gregson relinquished his interests to his brother in order that he might establish the Gregsons' Dry Cleaning business with his sons. For four years Mr. Gregson conducted the laundry alone, disposing of his holdings in March, 1924.

Fraternally he was a 32d. degree Mason, being raised in Somerset lodge.

Mr. Gregson was a member of Trinity Episcopal church and throughout his life was a man upright in business, loyal to friends and a loving husband and father. He led a quiet life but was ever interested in the welfare of his community.

Surviving are his widow, three daughters, Mrs. Weston C. Pullen, of Norwich, Mrs. Frederick B. Craven, and Mrs. Lorimer A. Slocum, both of Winchester; five grandchildren, Weston C. Pullen, Jr., Janet Gregson Pullen, Christine Craven, Robert Gregson Slocum, and Mary Jean Slocum. There are also surviving three nephews, Richard P. Gregson, J. Raymond Gregson and Donald F. Gregson, all of Norwich, and one niece, Mrs. Lucy Gregson Kendrick, of Boston.

EXPECT 1,000 YACHTS TO BE IN THAMES FOR YALE-HARVARD RACES

This year the expectation is that a fleet of 1,000 or more spectator boats will crowd into the Thames river to see the Yale-Harvard boat races on Friday.

For the first time since 1927, this year's varsity race on the Thames river will be rowed downstream from Bartlett's cove to the railroad bridge, at New London. As the finishing line under these conditions is directly in the path of the huge fleet of boats, the safety of the shells and the oarsmen as well as the yachts themselves is endangered unless the rules laid down are explicitely obeyed.

"Power boats must remain anchored or moored until 15 minutes after the finish of the varsity race and of the morning races," says the code of regulations announced by the coast guard which is empowered by act of congress to patrol the course.

"The safety of the crews at the finish depends upon the strict observance of this rule.

"When the 15 minute interval is over, boats must not exceed a speed of 12 knots an hour until they have passed through both bridges.

"Boats must be anchored or moored at least 30 minutes before the scheduled time for the start of a race.

"Any boat, except the official boats, that follows the crews during a race will be arrested and penalized."

To protect further the huge throng that will be assembled on land and water, Connecticut state police in airplanes will be present to enforce the state law and prevent aircraft from flying over the course of spectators. A collision between a seaplane and a power boat marked last year's regatta.

W. A. Meikleham of Columbia, referee for 32 years, and F. V. Chappell, chairman of the regatta committee, join in urging that boats refrain from anchoring in the space from shore to shore between the two and one-half and three mile points, in order not to obstruct the view from the observation trains.

The schedule of races:

Freshman—9 a. m. (E. S. T.), downstream, over middle two miles of varsity course.

Junior varsity—Immediately after freshman race and over same course.

Varsity—6:30 p. m., four miles downstream from Bartlett's cove to railroad bridge.

SHOWS MEMENTOES FROM SOUTH POLE EXPEDITION

Admiral Byrd's steamship "City of New York" is scheduled to enter New York harbor this (Thursday) morning year and a half to Antarctic seas upon the return from the trip of a

As a response to a radio letter sent last March to Esmonde O'Brien, chief engineer of the steamer, G. I. Smith of the Reid & Hughes company has just received a card that went over the South Pole in the airplane with Byrd and Balchen on November 28, 1929.

The card follows:

Byrd Antarctic Expedition,
Little America, Antarctica,
Lattitude 78 degrees, 34 minutes, south,
Longitude 163 degrees, 30 minutes west

South Pole Air Mail

I greet you from the bottom of the world by air mail,

Sincerely,
ESMONDE M. O'BRIEN,
Barque "City of New York",
28th November, 1929.

Bay of Whales.

Mr. Smith has also received a letter from Esmonde's father, who was a former Norwich boy. Accompanying this is an envelope mailed on the auxiliary barque "City of New York" on April 17, 1929, which came the 10,000 miles to reach its destination for four cents in postage.

These interesting mementoes of the South Pole expedition are displayed in the show window of the Boston store. A copy of Mr. O'Brien's letter follows:

"I assume that you have received a little card from my son from 78 degrees 34 minutes South and 163 degrees 30 minutes West.

These cards were all flown over the South Pole by Admiral Byrd 28th November, 1929 as printed on the card.

"The boy will be in on the 19th inst. I have been invited through the representative of Admiral Byrd to go down on a tug to meet them on arrival in the lower bay next Thursday morning. The boys on the fire boat New Yorker, Engine No. 77, of the New York fire department expect me to go along with them, too, that morning. Imagine if you can what a pretty sight it is to see a boat throwing twelve streams of water at one time with 4 inch nozzles at a pressure of 150 pounds. It surely is a wonderful sight. This is the fire boat the boy was engineer of when he left to go with his admiral to the south.

"The men of the fleet, ten boats in all, are to give him a dinner a little later on. I'm enclosing another envelope, the kind you did not receive. It is postmarked "S. S. City of New York" as that is their "post office" and came 10,000 miles for 4c. Those birds you notice are penguins and are known as the Emperor variety. They are larger in size than any others found in the islands of the Pacific.

"The boy said they had fried penguin for their Christmas dinner but he said they were of an awful fishy taste, yet they saw no small fish at all and did not know where the penguins get them.

"This letter was posted at their base Little America—Antarctica.

"The boy said he got a good kick out of the Antarctic expedition and would have not passed it up for anything, with all the hard work and freezing that he took it was well worth while.

"He hopes that Admiral Byrd will again invite him to go anywhere, that is, if the admiral does go anywhere again.

"The boy said he did his part and considers that he did it well.

"He feels happy to think he was part and parcel of as fine a bunch of men as was ever assembled.

"Really I have not seen much of this boy for a long time. He became a sailor man and followed that a long time and thn came home and joined the New York fire department.

"He anchored down in lower Manhattan and seldom comes up to the wilds of the borough of the Bronx.

"It may be later on that he will get to Norwich and talk to the people there on his experiences in the Antarctic. He is also a veteran of the World war.

"With my best wishes, I still remain,

"Your true friend,
"PATSY O'BRIEN,
1129 East 180th St."

BOARDMAN APPEAL FROM BOARD OF RELIEF HEARD

Judge Allyn L. Brown heard trial in the superior court here Wednesday morning on the appeal from board of relief by Albert Boardman and his brother, Horace, who are in the hardware business in The Bulletin building at 74 Franklin street, calling their store The Household. After the evidence had been concluded, the attorneys agreed to submit briefs in two weks. Attorney E. W. Higgins is counsel for the appellants and Town Counsel H. H. Pettis appeared for the board of relief.

The appeal is from the assessments of $7,000 put on stock and fixtures, which was the amount to which the board of relief reduced the assessment after the assessors had made it $8,000. The Boardmans claim that $7,400 would be a 100 per cent valuation and that they ought to be in the list at 75 per cent of that amount.

Fred G. Prothero, a member of the board of assessors, was called to the stand by Attorney Higgins. He was asked to produce the assessment figures of two other hardware concerns. These were the Eaton-Chase company at $32,000 for stock and $1,250 for fixtures in the October, 1929, list. The Eldredge Hardware company was $13,400 on stock and $400 on fixtures. In 1928, the witness said, the stock was in for $25,000 and he considered this a proper 75 per cent value. However, Assessor Prothero stated, that considerable difficulty had been experienced over this list with the board of relief and this continuous fight with the board of relief resulted in list of the Eldredge Hardware Co. remaining at $13,400.

Mr. Prothero admitted that the assessors had adopted a rule of 75 per cent in placing property in the tax list. In reply to question, he said that the Manufacturers Appraisal Co., of Philadelphia had made the appraisals and had turned the figures over to them (board of assessors).

The valuation of the Eaton-Chase stock in the tax list of $32,000 was a good 75 per cent, valuation of their stock, Assessor Prothero testified. On cross-examination, Assessor Prothero stated that he was not a hardware stock expert.

The only member of the board of relief to testify was Edward Kirby, who testified to Albert Boardman, appearing before the board and leaving his application for relief. This is a printed form which Mr. Boardman filled out. It was marked as an exhibit, after Mr. Kirby had been told to bring it to court.

Albert Boardman gave testimony that he figured his stock worth $7,400 and fixtures at $140. His store has one floor and a basement, and he testified the Eaton-Chase Co. occupy five floors and he estimates their stock not less than $100,000. He estimated between $75,000 and $80,000 for the Eldredge stores stock. This store, he said, occupies three floors and a basement as well as another building. He told of a Mr. Lamb of the Manufacturers Appraisal company being in the Boardman store for a few minutes and saying that the stock was worth $10,000 and the fixtures $500.

Charles S. Eaton, an accountant, was the only witness called by Town Counsel Pettis. He testified to taking an inventory at the Boardman store at actual value which showed $9,217.

Trial Time Set

Two of the cases assigned for trial in the superior court here Wednesday, but which were not reached, were put over by Judge Allyn L. Brown until 1 o'clock this (Thursday) afternoon. These are Chapman vs. Fisher and Sullivan vs. Fisher.

SIX-CHURCH CONFERENCE WAS HELD IN LISBON

The Conference of Six Churches was held at Lisbon Congregational church Wednesday, with 177 attending, although not a propitious day. The platform was very lovely with its decorations of roses, sweet william, peonies, Canterbury bells and potted geraniums. Frank Hyde played the organ voluntary at the opening, followed by the invocation by the pastor, Rev. W. J. Reynolds. The responsive reading was led by Rev. George Clark, of Preston City, and the scripture from John 16 was read by Rev. G. F. Goodenough, of Jewett City. John MacLean, of Jewett City, sang "There Is a Green Hill Far Away," accompanied by Mrs. E. H. Hiscox. Rev. D. C. Stone, of Hanover, offered prayer. Mr. Reynolds gave notice that on Sunday his son, Chaplain Reynolds, would occupy the Lisbon church pulpit. The offertory collection was received by Nathan and J. Kellogg Hall, of Preston City.

The sermon was delivered by Rev. W. G. Sargent, D.D. His text was: "Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world." The task allotted is building the Kingdom of God, which in this age must be thought of not as a kingdom but as society. He enlarged on three points; truth, power and love. Ignorance and truth do not work together. Truth leads to knowledge and knowledge to power. Progress is built on truth and love, for love is truth in action. The worst skeptic in the world is one who fears the truth. Dr. Sargent particularly emphasized the fact that many institutions of learning do not teach that education should teach pupils to build men and character, but what they shall get out of it in dollars and cents. The foundation should be to put high ideals into the minds of the boys and girls. In this constructive work of building the Kingdom of God, God moves along side with us.

Rev. Harold Arnold, of Pachaug, pronounced the benediction.

Dinner was served in the Community hall, the blessing being asked by Edwin Hill, of Norwich. A vote of thanks was given the women, on motion of Mr. Goodenough. The praise service was led by Rev. Howard Bushnell, of Goshen church. The record of the last conference was read by the scribe, Mrs. Everett H. Hiscox, of Jewett City. She called the roll, showing from Preston City 20, Hanover 9, Plainfield 11, Lisbon 35, Jewett City 11, Pachaug 26 and visitors 65. Mrs. Hiscox resigned the office of scribe, which she has held for eight years, her successor to be elected in September. The solo, Open the Gates of the Temple, was sung by Mr. MacLean, who received special thanks from the pastor.

Miss Gertrude S. Avery, of Norwich Town, recently returned from India, spoke on Missions in India. She told most vividly of the religious aspect of India, particularly in Bombay where she had been located for some time; of the work in the schools and colleges and the conditions, and methods which are focused on teaching the natives to help themselves and their countrymen.

Mr. Reynolds closed the conference by thanking those who had assisted in making the day so pleasant and profitable, and pronouncing the benediction. During the dinner hour there were speeches by Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, of Greeneville, and Abram Baldwin, of North Dakota, a native of Lisbon visiting relatives at the homestead.

FINAL TESTIMONY IN ANTZIS DIVORCE SUIT

The final testimony in trial of the divorce suit of Samuel Antzis against Helen Feinberg Antzis, both of this city, was given here Wednesday morning in the superior court before Judge Allyn L. Brown, who reserved decision.

All the testimony was presented on the side of the plaintiff as Mrs. Antzis did not contest the suit.

The final witness Wednesday was Albert Rodgers of Detroit, Mich., who formerly resided here on Talman street. He is the son of Albert and Minnie Rogers and testimony was given last week that he had been out riding with Mrs. Antzis in an automobile. He testified that it was his mother who made an automobile trip to Albany, N. Y., with Mrs. Antzis and Val Luppert, a former Norwich supernumerary policeman. He told of having Mrs. Antzis out riding in his car late in 1928 and early in 1929, and of a time when Mrs. Antzis and her sister were with him. They stopped on the Jewett City road and an automobile salesman named Bush came along and Mrs. Antzis drove away with the salesman. The witness said he had seen Mrs. Antzis out with men on various occasions.

The Antzis suit, in which Attorney G. C. Morgan is counsel for the petitioner, is brought on the grounds of a statutory offense. The couple was married in June, 1923.

MILLARD MANNING TO TAKE CHICAGO SUMMER COURSE

Having spent a week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Manning, Professor Millard Fuller Manning, an instructor the past year in physics at Worcester Polytechnic Institute, left last week end accompanied by another instructor from Worcester for his second year summer course at Chicago university, which involves two sessions. Professor Manning, who is a graduate of Trinity college, Hartford, received his P. S. degree in 1928, and his M. S. degree in 1929. He and his companion, on their way to Chicago, stopped Saturday at Niagara Falls.

Following summer school, Professor Manning, who is to take advanced study in physics at Chicago university, will return to Massachusetts to take up his second year work as instructor in physics, at Worcester Polytechnic institute.

AIRSHIP IS MOVED TO FAIRGROUNDS MOORING

New England's own airship, the Neponset, of the New England Aircraft corporation, is now moored in the plot of ground within the track at the Norwich fairgrounds, East Great Plain. The blimp was moved from its old location at Gager's farm at Mohegan hill Wednesday afternoon, arriving at the fairgrounds about 6 o'clock. The craft is expected to remain here for two more days.

The shift was made by the officials, it is said, because the field at the fairgrounds was more suitable for landing and taking off purposes. Because of the inclement weather conditions the Neponset did not make any flights Wednesday outside of its trip to the fairgrounds. It will, however, make flights today (Thursday).

Up until dark Wednesday evening many persons went out to its berth and inspected the ship.

Fog and a drizzle during a good part of Wednesday afternoon added to the discomfort for visitors in reaching the mooring spot at the Gager farm, but there were many who got there. The favorite route was to drive in to the Mohegan church yard where a car could be parked and walk from there through the road and the lots to reach the place where the Neponset swung at her mooring mast. A stiff wind whipped over the fields and the blimp was held steady by members of the ground crew who manned a couple of ropes at the bow and another at the stern to keep the Neponset headed into the wind.

WEDDING
Cowan—Chesebro

The wedding of Charles Herbert Cowan, 3rd, of Boston and Stonington, and Miss Barbara Chesebro, daughter of Mrs. Alice E. Chesebro of 43 Perry street, New London, took place Tuesday evening at 6 o'clock at Stonington Manor inn, which was beautiful in its special floral decorations.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ, New London, in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends of the couple.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her mother's cousin, William Strong of Cleveland, wore a bridal gown of white point d'esprit, fashioned with a close-fitting chiffon bodice and puffed sleeves, long full skirt with ruffles from below the hips to the floor, and tiny white velvet bows completing the design of the dress. Her veil was of plain white net arranged with a ruffle across the back, which made a charming frame for the bride's face. She wore lace mitts and carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Margaret Battles of New London was the maid of honor. Her gown was of Nile green point d'esprit, with puffed sleeves and long full skirt. A green satin sash, lace mitts and an old fashioned bouquet of talisman roses tied with pale green gauze ribbon and edged with a paper frill were attractive details of her costume.

The bridesmaids were Rosamond Holmes of Mystic and Lillian Ottenheimer of Willimantic, both Connecticut college graduates.

The bridesmaids were attired in orchid and green dresses in the same style as the gown of the maid of honor. Both wore mitts and carried old fashioned bouquets in paper frills tied with gauze ribbon.

Richard Dimock of Stonington was the best man. Frank O'Connor, Billings Fairbrother and Lorenzo Fairbrother of Stonington were the ushers.

An instrumental quartet played during the evening. Approximately 75 guests were present at the reception and supper which followed the ceremony.

Following a motor trip of unannounced destination, the couple will be at home at 19 Water street, Stonington.

Miss Chesebro graduated from Connecticut college in the class of 1928. Mr. Cowan graduated this year from the Wentworth Institute of Technology in Boston. He will be employed at the Atwood company in Stonington.

DEALER FINED FOR SALE OF FIREWORKS TOO SOON

As a result of a series of complaints received that school children were setting off fireworks at the different schools for the past few days, Joseph Cooper of Thames street was arrested Tuesday evening by Officer Clifford Crary on the charge of selling fireworks before the specified time. He was presented in the city court Wednesday morning and fined $5 flat after counsel for the accused, Attorney Thomas J. Kelly, demurred to the complaint of City Attorney Charles W. Cassidy, which was overruled.

Following an investigation Officer Crary learned that the children had purchased the fireworks from the Thames street merchant and his arrest followed. Chief George Linton of the police department stated after the disposal of the case that all merchants found to be violating his order will be arrested and prosecuted. A period for the sale of fireworks will be set later.

NICKERSON PITCHES THERMOS TO WIN OVER SMOKE SHOP IN LEAGUE OPENER

The Thermos Bottle Co. nine, a year ago the doormat of the Dusty league, got off to a good start in the current City league chase last night by defeating the Smoke Shop, champs of 1929, 5 to 0, at the Academy campus.

In tripping the champs, the Bottlers proved to 1,500 or more fans that they are to be reckoned with this year in the distribution of local baseball honors. The Hastedt-Driscoll combine is strong on both the offense and defense and against the Smokers played real smart ball. The team has been retamped considerably since last seen, every department having been strengthened to some extent.

They are unusually strong in the box department, Mike Nickerson proving through his shutout of the Cigtenmen that he has stuff, and plenty of it. Mike, in his first league performance in Norwich, not only shut out the city's best, but actually held them on their heads. He allowed but three scattered hits in seven innings of play, and during the course of the evening had eight men playing stiff. Mike isn't so bad with the stick either, his time sheet for the evening showing a single and a triple for three trips to the plate.

The game itself was well played from start to nish and up to the final frame was anyone's. In the seventh, the Bottlers got to Magnan, the Smoke Shop boxman, for five hits, and all of their runs. Up to this inning the Smoker had hurled good ball, keeping his allowance of hits to five.

X. Lemieux, diminutive Thermos third baseman, opened the seventh with a slashing double to center and scored when Chubby Gibbs allowed his (Lemieux's) brother's shot to go through his legs. E. Lemieux went to second on the play and completed the circuit when Nickerson banged out his long three-bagger over the right field fence. Normandin hit to center for a base and Mike came home with the third run of the inning, Mundy going to second on the play. Jimmy Mullins foul flied to Goldblatt for the second out of the inning, Dudek having popped to Fitzgerald for the first, and Enos Eccleston scored Normandin with a one-ply smack over the middle station. On the play at the plate, Eccleston went to second and galloped home with the fifth and final run of the fating when Carlie Krauss' single. Krauss was caught napping for the final out of the inning.

While all of the Bottlers played good ball, credit for the victory really belongs to Nickerson. For the Smokers, Magnan was the best on the offense and both LaCroix and Fitzgerald worked nicely afield. Each dragged down long hits labeled as hits.

Opening Formalities

The league was thrown into operation with the usual big-time formalities at 6:30 o'clock the players of the six clubs in the circuit lined up in front of Slater hall and together with officials of the Recreation commission and the league governors marched to the flag pole in center field behind the combined Academy-Rotary club band. Al Silven, president of the loop, raised a brand new banner and both players and band headed for home plate.

They were met here by Bill Fitzgerald, chairman of the recreation commission, and Mayor Lee Roy Robbins. Mr. Fitzgerald spoke briefly to the players, urging them to stand up for Norwich during the coming grind and then introduced the mayor.

"His honor" expressed his appreciation of the work being done by the Recreation Commission, particularly by Mr. Fitzgerald, and emphasized the fact that if it had not been for the untiring efforts of Mr. Fitzgerald the glittering en hand would probably have been scattered elsewhere at that particular moment. He urged the "boys" to give their best in the coming grind and wound up by stating "I would rather be a good ball player than the mayor of the city of Norwich."

He then sent the first ball of the season spreading over the plate and the game was on.

Disputes Broadway's Title.

The members of the Samuel Huntington school base ball team dispute the title of grammar school champions claimed by Broadway school. They say that they do not recognize the title on the grounds that Broadway and Samuel Huntington have each defeated the other. The Huntington school team in conclusion state that they are willing to play Broadway a third game to decide the title, anywhere or anytime.

Brown Stops Brostoff.

BAYONNE, N. J., June 18.—(AP)—Adams Al Brown, lanky Negro bantamweight, who is recognized in some states as world champion, stopped Harry Brostoff of New York in the second round of their ten round bout here tonight. Brostoff received a bad cut over his eye in the second round and the referee halted the bout, awarding the victory to Brown on a technical knockout. Brown weighed 124, Brostoff 121.

POLISH CITS CLASH WITH ROYALS TONIGHT

The chase is on. Twilight baseball got off to a start here last night, the Thermos team taking the lead in the chase for 1930 honors by virtue of a sensational last-minute win over the Smoke Shop. Tonight the fans get the second contest of the season when the Polish Citizens, runners-up in 1929, hoop up with the Royals, strangers to the City league following.

The Royals, under the management of Mike Panek, pilot of Cits in the chase last year, are composed mostly of Polish boys and in their independent games to date have turned in a fine record. The Royals and Cits are not going to get along very well this season and it will be safe to say that each of their games will be for "blood."

Asked last night to announce their lineups, the managers of the rival clubs handed out their lists of players and advised the writer to "dope" them out. The lists of eligible players are as follows:

Polish American Citizens—C. Lamory, P. Finn, T. West, Lloyd Jarvis, Leo Jarvis, John Greene, Joe Greene, S. Cimikowski, P. Labenski, P. Raymond, Leo Gaudette, W. Sydlo.

The Royals—J. Burns, E. Nevins, T. Simcox, S. Kosiorsky, E. Hamil, H. Cummings, B. Ringland, H. Snow, P. Morosky, W. Natorsky, R. Burrell, E. Kozlowski; Mike Panek, manager; John Oney, assistant manager and coach.

While the starting lineups are not known, it is almost safe to say that the rival hurlers will be Tony West for the Citizens and Eddie Kozlowski for the Royals.

William J. Fitzgerald, chairman of the recreation commission, announced last night that on Saturday the Italian Young Men's club and Polish Citizens would play a benefit game, the entire receipts of the session to go to the playground "Beach fund." Child's day is observed throughout the country on Saturday and the local commission is plannnig to do its part by staging a benefit game for the kiddies.

PETERSON-BARRIE BOUT AT WESTERLY TONIGHT

Arrangements are all completed for the third outdoor boxing show of the season, to be held in the Stillman Avenue arena tonight. All of the fighters listed to appear on the card are in perfect condition, and from the advance sale of tickets the biggest crowd of the season is expected to attend the bouts.

Although the main bout, which will feature Ero Peterson of Worcester and Joe Barrie of New York, is expected to be the best battle of the night, interest is running high in anticipation of the clash between Julio Rossi and Billy Euell, both Westerly boys. These scrappers are scheduled for a six round bout, but because of the intense rivalry that exists between them it is doubtful if the battle will go the limit.

Euell has not fought in Westerly since last summer, when he beat Frankie Cheslock, of the Coast guard. The sailor held a previous win over Euell, but in their return meeting, Euell won hands down. Both Rossi and Euell have been training hard for their coming fight, and both are confident of a knockout victory.

Besides the Peterson-Barrie, Rossi-Euell bouts, other battles scheduled for tonight will be fought between Joe Rossi of Westerly, and Artie Brusso of Worcester. Young Lavigne of New London and Johnny Dixon of Worcester, and Young Rochette of Westerly and Young Lizzi of Westerly.

The combination crew, which will race Harvard's combination boat tomorrow afternoon, paddled a mile upstream and practiced racing starts all the way back.

Coach Leader will give the crews a short paddle tomorrow.

SCHMELING TO BE GUEST OF ELKS AT NEW LONDON NEXT TUESDAY

Max Schmeling, heavyweight champion of the world, will be the guest of State Athletic Commissioner Thomas E. Donohue and the New London lodge of Elks next Tuesday afternoon at New London. This announcement was made by Fritz Voght, chairman of the committee who is making arrangements for the visit of the champion to New London.

Schmeling will be in New London for several hours before going to Hartford where he has an engagement for the evening. The champion will arrive in New London about 4 o'clock where he will be met by Commissioner Donohue and a welcoming committee from the Elks. He will be escorted to the Elks' home where open house will be held and the people of New London given a chance to meet the new titleholder.

The new heavyweight champion comes to New London from Philadelphia and will be able to spend only a few hours in the Whaling City. Schmeling comes at the invitation of Commissioner Donohue who invited the German boy to visit New London when the commissioner met him at his training camp. Schmeling told the commissioner that if he won the title New London would be one of the first cities that he would visit before he returned to his homeland. He is now fulfilling that promise to Commissioner Donohue.

You hear a lot about civic pride and civic co-operation and civic harmony. But in the majority of cases it's just a lot of two-bit words spilled out because they tinkle when they land.

But yesterday I saw as nice a demonstration of civic co-operation and civic pride as I think I ever saw anywhere at any time.

I was up in Willimantic, that little town up north that is not a part of Greater New London, to see the Community reunion week.

There I saw over 2000 persons of all nationalities, and all creeds, march in a downpour of rain for several miles to show that they were glad that they lived in Willimantic.

When I saw that splendid demonstration of community spirit it set me to wondering just what was in back of it. Other towns have tried it and they were flops, but the people up there sure put it over.

It's no small job to put on a parade and have everything look smart and nice and everything go off smoothly. But there was no hitch anywhere, traffic was handled nicely and the only thing that marred the day was the rain.

Willimantic deserves praise.

RUBBERMEN TROUNCE CAMPERS IN J. C. TWILIGHT GAME

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, June 19—The tenth game of the series in the Jewett City Twilight league played on a wet ground Wednesday evening went to the Fisk Rubbermen by the score of 11 to 1. Young Walter Pizzo, leading pitcher for the Campers, relieved Jarvis and allowed only four hits, proving somewhat of a puzzle to the heavy sluggers of the opposing team. Umpire Jarvis gave him credit for some of the finest breaks he has noted in any of the games. Four hundred fans gave him a fine hand.

ONE KILLED IN STORM THAT HALTS ASCOT RACES

ASCOT, England, June 18.—(AP)—The Royal Ascot race meeting was washed out this afternoon by one of the worst storms to visit England in the last few years, a storm with tragic results in the death of a book-maker.

Twenty-two horses ran for the Royal Hunt cup, with The MacNab coming first, Lord Glanely's Grand Idol second and Sir H. Cunliffe Owen's Lion Hearted in third, but the glamor of the meet, which was attended by the king and queen, was destroyed by the elements.

Walter Holbein, widely-known as a north of England book-maker, was killed by a stroke of lightning, but there were no other casualties except for beautiful dresses and slippers which were plastered with mud.

The storm, which turned paddocks and enclosures into miniature lakes, lasted nearly an hour. It broke just as the Royal Hunt cup was being run and extraordinary scenes were witnessed as it came down in fury.

Fashionably dressed women rushed for shelter, and many of them fell or were knocked into the mud. Hats were lost and some of the guests left behind their shoes, stuck in the deep mud.

When the rain had ceased conditions were nearly as bad. Men and women high in English society waded ankle-deep in the mud of the parking places, joining in a scrimmage to extricate their cars from the thousand others trying to get away at the same time.

The king and queen and others of their party kept dry, for they had shelter in the royal lounge. They left in their motorcar for Windsor castle when the downpour had halted.

The other races on today's card were abandoned and will be divided between tomorrow's and Friday's program.

CUBAN STARS TO PLAY AT TAFTVILLE SATURDAY

The Army and Navy team of Taftville will have the crack Cuban Stars of Havana, Cuba, as their opponents on Saturday at Taftville. The Cubans are the pick of the players of the Winter league of Havana, Cuba, every mon on the team being a born native Cuban and each a star in his position. Luque of the Brooklyn Nationals, who just at present is the Robins' leading hurler, started with the Cuban Stars and came to the States first with that club some many years ago and every winter is manager of one of the Winter league teams down in Havana. Such players as Oms, the Babe Ruth of Cuba, playing the outfield for the Stars, also Big Dehigo, another wonderful player, are with the team, while "Little" Chacon, the peer of shortstops, is again with the club; in fact, the entire team is better than was ever sent here before from the Pearl of the Antilles. Their lineup is as follows:

Funes, lf; Echegoyan, 3b; Dehigo or Chacon, short; Oms, centerfield; Solis, 2b; Massip, 1b; Abrews, rf; Pedroso, c; Bragana, p; Alvarez, p; Campos, p; Aballi, p.

McGrath Elected Crimson Leader

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., June 18—(AP)—Edward H. McGrath of Brookline, was elected captain of the 1931 Harvard varsity baseball team here today when the Crimson nine defeated Yale, 14 to 4, to divide the annual objective two game series. McGrath, who played centerfield, has been a regular during the past two seasons. Last year he was awarded the Wendall Bat, given "to that player who shows himself as the greatest offensive value to the Harvard nine."

Freeman-Baker Bout Postponed

CLEVELAND, June 18—(AP)—The twelve round bout between Tommy Freeman and Sergeant Sammy Baker, welterweights, scheduled for tonight was postponed until next Tuesday, because of threatening weather.

JONES TIES WITH COTTON AND SMITH FOR LEAD IN THE BRITISH OPEN

(By Frank H. King, Associated Press Staff Writer)

HOYLAKE, England, June 18—(AP) Shooting the Royal Liverpool links in 70 for the first round of the British Open Golf championship, Bobby Jones today hung up a target which remained unbeaten through the stress and storm, although MacDonald Smith and Henry Cotton drew level with the Georgian by scoring 70's on their own account. The young British pro and the veteran Scot, who has lived in the United States for 20 years, had fine chances to beat Jones and break the course record, which was equalled today by the leading trio.

On the trail of the leaders camped "Long Jim" Barnes, with 71 and Horton Smith followed with 72. Leo Diegel and young Don Moe were a bit farther back with scores of 74, along with Archie Compton, leaving all the double quartet of Americans among the leaders except George Von Elm, who scored 81 and F. C. Stevens, Jr., at 80. Von Elm had a nine at the fifth hole which ruined his chances and Stevens after a great start—going out in 35—fell back to 45 strokes for the second nine.

Soon after Jones finished a storm broke with rain flooding the course, lightning flashing and thunder rumbling, but the stress and strain of chasing the American was more calamitous than the storm.

Player after player rounded the turn in par or thereabouts and with banners flying "Excelsior," scaled the famous short "Alps" hole triumphantly got their four at the 12th, and three at the short "rushes," and with this encouraging start homeward visualized hauling down the Georgian's flag, only to stumble and fall on the five punishing finishing holes which are long and tightly trapped and with rough like hayfields awaiting errant shots.

First came Cotton with 17 strokes left for the last five holes to score 69 but he failed, finally coming to the home hole needing a par four and taking five. The storm had cleared but the strain was still there to take its toll of shots from the youngster.

Then came Mac Smith, whose sensational 33 for the first nine scored through an almost blinding rain was one of the great feats of the day. Smith came to the 14th hole without a five on his card and then took three in succession and had to hole a long putt for a birdie three at the home hole to get his 70.

Barnes finished with a brave gesture of two birdie threes but still found himself a stroke behind the leaders. Horton Smith played great golf after a poor start. He took a five at the first hole, par four at second and then six at the third but he was out in 37, nevertheless, and came home in 35 to stand all even with par.

Gabriel Gonzalez of Madrid with his set of local rules in Spanish and interpreter, answered the starter's early morning call but the Spaniard came home with his championship hopes blighted by an 84. This however, was as good as Cyril Tolley's score and better than George Duncan could boast. Duncan's card showed two glittering eights.

Von Elm's chances were practically ruined by his nine at the fifth. He took three shots in a bunker, two in tall grass, and a couple of putts for this substantial aggregate.

Don Moe showed the way for the Americans early in the day and his 74 was a good score for Hoylake.

Jones with his marching gallery was a mid-day attraction. The American star played well and was rolling his putts to the brink of the cup, only to see most of them remain out. Only two long ones dropped. It was a typical Jones round which might have been 67 in stead of 70. Bob thought himself unlucky until soon after he finished the skies opened and flooded the course, resulting in the lower half of the field going out to a certain drenching.

Bobby is among the leaders where golfers always look for him but he is not out in front as he was at St. Andrews three years ago when his first round 68 gave him an advantage of five strokes.

The starting times will be revised tomorrow with Archie Compston the first of the favorites to go out. The Americans will follow, MacDonald Smith and Barnes playing in the morning and Stevens, Horton Smith, Diegel, Jones, Von Elm and Moe in the afternoon.

After tomorrow's round the field will be reduced by the forced retirement of all players, 15 or more strokes behind the leader.

The leaders:

Robert T. Jones, Jr., Atlanta	70
MacDonald Smith, New York	70
Henry Cotton, England	70
James Barnes, New York	71
Fred Robson, England	71
Horton Smith, New York	72
Norman Sutton, England	72
Auguste Boyer, France	72
Tom Green, England	72

Leo Diegel, Mexico, Donald K. Moe, Portland, Ore., Archie Compston, England, Bert Hudgson, England, P. H. Rodgers, England and Charles A. Whitcombe, England all with 74's.

A. J. Young, England, W. H. Oke, England, Len Holland, England, Abe Mitchell, England, Percy Allisa, Germany, D. C. Jones, England, A. Isherwood, England, Tom Barber, England and Pierre Hirigoyen, France turned in scores of 75's.

YALE DRAWS WEST LANE FOR VARSITY RACE

RED TOP, Conn., June 18—(AP)—Drawings for lanes for the Yale-Harvard crew races tomorrow and Friday were held here today at a meeting of crew captains and race officials.

As a result, Harvard will have the east lane and Yale the west lane in the varsity race at 7:30 p. m. Eastern Daylight Time, Friday. This race is over the four mile course downstream.

In the morning races between the junior varsity and freshmen boats, Harvard will have the west channel in both events and the Ells shells will row in the east lanes. Both crews will race downstream over the middle two miles of the course at 10 o'clock Eastern Daylight Time. The east lane is favored for the shorter race.

The combination event will take place tomorrow afternoon at 4 p. m. Eastern Daylight Time, over the upper two miles of the course upstream.

Walters of both camps will stage their annual burlesque race tomorrow morning at 10:30. Their purpose is not to win, but to lose the race.

HARVARD EVENS SERIES WITH YALE TEAM

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., June 18—(AP)—Playing through several heavy showers, the Harvard baseball team today ended its season by swamping Yale, by a 14 to 4 score. The victory gave the Crimson an even break in its objective series for Yale won, 9 to 5 yesterday at New Haven. Like last winter's hockey series, the 1930 baseball issue will remain deadlocked for no provision was made for a third and "rubber" game.

Harvard's heavy hitters drove two Yale pitchers off the mound in the first and second innings. Bill Newton, who started, was touched for three runs on a base on balls, Captain Frank Nugent's single, Eddie McGrath's double and Barry Wood's triple.

Angus McDonald, who relieved Newton, met with the same fate in the second when four Harvard runs were scored, McGrath's homer accounting for three of them. Al Taylor started pitching for Yale in the third and was hit freely in almost every remaining inning.

Yale had several scoring opportunities but Charlie Devens, who twirled erratically was effective in some of the pinches. He fanned McDonald in the second, retiring the side with the bases filled. Yale loaded the bases again in the fifth, when its first run was scored, and again in the 7th, when two base runners crossed the plate on Edgar Warren's single.

Devens was extremely liberal with passes but the heavy hitting of his teammates offset this wildness.

Score:

Harvard	340	001	42x	—14	14	1
Yale	000	010	201	—4	5	4

Devens and Sheldon; Newton, McDonald, Taylor and Maine.

GIANTS RALLY IN 7TH TO WIN FROM PIRATES

PITTSBURGH, June 18—(AP)—The New York Giants won from the Pittsburgh Pirates today, 4 to 3, as they opened their second tour of the west. Scoring three runs in the seventh inning to break up a pitchers' battle, the Giants barely stood off a closing Pirate rush when Hughey Critz ended the game with an unassisted double play.

Singles in the first inning by Leach and Lindstrom sent New York off ahead but Walker and Meine continued in a tight duel until Walker left the game in the fifth due to a wrenched leg. His successor, Heving, did not fare so well after the Giants had given him a four run lead and the Pirates got three counters back in the last three frames. Hub Pruett came in and pitched only to Paul Waner, who sent a hot liner that Critz managed to pull down over second and stepped on the base, doubling Grantham.

ATHLETICS TURN BACK THREAT OF INDIANS

PHILADELPHIA, June 18.—(AP)—The Athletics met Cleveland's threat to take first place in the American league today by handing out heavy punishment to Wes Ferrell and winning the opening game of the important series, 7 to 2.

The Athletics gained an early lead by scoring three runs in the first inning. They completed the rout of Ferrell in the fifth when Al Simmons, Jimmy Foxx and Bing Miller hit successive home runs, two of them going into the left field stands and Simmons' over its roof. Eddie Morgan of Cleveland opened the barrage with a homer in the first of the fifth.

Mahaffey allowed 11 hits in scoring his fifth triumph of the year but was effective with men on base.

HARVARD CREWS HAVE FINAL WORKOUT ON RIVER

RED TOP, June 18—(AP)—Harvard's crews, with the exception of the combination boat, held their final long workout today in preparation for the Yale races Friday.

The combination crew will race the Yale's combination shell tomorrow at 4 p. m., (E. D. S.) time and consequently eased up this afternoon.

A high wind was blowing, making a paddle down stream impossible because of rough water. Most of the practice was held within a mile of the Ell boats upstream.

The varsity and junior varsity crews paddled three miles upstream under the direction of Coach Whiteside. Coming back to the training quarters, the coach ordered the junior varsity stroke up to about 36 for five minutes and then raced the varsity boat at the same beat for ten minutes.

The freshman and combination shells rowed three miles and back at a slow stroke. The former also practiced racing starts.

Tomorrow the varsity, jayvee and freshmen crews will have only a light practice.

LATZO WINS ON FOUL OVER LARRY JOHNSON

NEW YORK, June 18—(AP)—Pete Latzo, Scranton, Pa., light heavyweight, defeated Larry Johnson, Chicago Negro, on a foul in the sixth round of a scheduled ten round bout at Ebbets' field tonight. Latzo weighed 175 1-2 pounds while Johnson tipped the scales at one-quarter of a pound less.

For five rounds the fighters toiled freely but in the sixth session, Latzo dropped to the canvas claiming foul. The referee refused to listen to the Scranton fighter's claim and began to count him out. On the count of nine Latzo rose to his feet and was immediately hit by Johnson with a blow, which the referee ruled low. Both judges agreed with the referee.

For the greater part of the five rounds the fighters chose to mix 'n close, refusing to open up. Johnson did the leading with Latzo content in tying up

DANIELSON

LOST CONTROL OF AUTO CAUSING HIS OWN DEATH

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, June 18 — Rev. Adelard Landry of Springfield lost his life at North Grosvenordale on June 9, because he lost control of the automobile he was operating, Coroner Arthur G. Bill said in his finding made today.

The coroner says: "I viewed the body of the deceased, and on the 17th day of June held an inquest as to the cause and manner of said death at my office in Danielson. From the testimony taken at said inquest I find that the Rev. Adelard Landry died at said Grosvenordale on June 9th, from a fractured skull caused by his head being caught in a window of the automobile in which he was riding, and which left the highway, plunging into a lot below the same and turning over on its side.

"I find further that said accident was not caused by the criminal carelessness or negligence of any person or persons, and that the same was the result of the said Rev. Adelard Landry losing control of the automobile."

FUNERAL

Donat Morrisette

The funeral of Donat Morrisette was held from the home on Short street this morning with funeral services at St. James' church at 9 o'clock. Among the many attending were delegations from the Sacred Heart society at the Welfare council of the parish. Rev. Anthelme Mollard, M. S., Rev. John Tobin, M. S., and Rev. Francis X. Baldwin, M. S., were officers of the solemn high mass of requiem. Burial was in Holy Cross cemetery. Rev. J. A. Demers, M. S., conducting the committal service. The bearers were Benoni Meunier, Nestor Gaudreau, Peter Gazeau, Silas Breayea, Alexander Chabot and Peter Barrette. L. E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

Louis Peloquin announced today that he is completing arrangements for staging outdoor amateur boxing shows here during the summer season, and will offer the first card about the first of the coming month.

His arena will be developed on his property off North street, where there is ample space and also plenty of room for parking cars. The area where the ring is to be set up and seats placed will be surrounded with a canvas screen. There will be seating arrangements for about 450, and more accommodations can be provided if it is found necessary.

Mr. Peloquin says that there are about nine boys in training here, and that he has applications from dozens of boys in eastern Connecticut and more distant points who would like to appear in bouts.

A columnist writing in a Boston paper today has this to say about Leprelet Logee, who is a relative of Arthur W. Logee of Danielson: "While passing through Charlton one day last week I stopped in to visit at the Masonic home there. I had a pleasant chat with Mr. Logee, who, I think, rates first place on New England's list of spry old folks. Mr. Logee, at 104 years of age, has remarkable use of all his faculties and is in fine health. He sends warm greetings to his many friends in Masonic circles in Greater Boston."

Mr. Logee is the oldest member of the Masonic order in New England, and possibly in the entire United States.

Following certain changes in the provisions under which the borough re-authorized a bond issue at a special meeting last evening plans for the issue and the sale of them will go forward promptly. The issue will be for $50,000, as originally planned, but instead of retiring the bonds at the rate of $2,000 annually through the course of twenty-five years, they are to be wholly retired in 15 years. This will be accomplished through the creation of a sinking fund. It is estimated that about a mill a year on the tax rate will care for this arrangement.

Not all of the money realized from the bond issue will be used in sidewalk construction, it was pointed out today. More than half of it will be employed to retire outstanding notes of the borough, the remainder to meet sidewalk construction costs, sharing equally with property owners who have walks built in the cost of them.

It is being recalled that one of the trans-Atlantic cables broken in the earthquake off Newfoundland last fall connects up with land lines that run through this town to New York. The matter comes to mind at this time by reason of the fact that one of the several cables broken that long ago has just been repaired. An upheaval of the ocean floor ruined upwards of 200 miles of one cable.

Roadside stands that the state has erected along trunk line highways in this territory are proving very popular with motorists. All of these stands and the seats that go with them are placed in ideal spots, where there is plenty of shade and where there is ample space to park cars off the traveled part of the highway. Almost daily the stands are in use at lunch time and on Saturdays and Sundays are used by one party after another.

Iran A. Warren, in charge of Danielson's fire alarm telegraph system, was giving it a check over today. Shortly after last midnight, during the heavy rain, the siren of the system sounded once, indicating some small difficulty with the system.

A. S. Harley, representing a market data bureau, was here today in an effort to establish the extent of Danielson's trading area—the territory from which it draws trade. The information sought is being assembled in the interest of national advertisers and in the interest of newspapers having circulation in this section. Mr. Harley is covering the entire state of Connecticut, and Danielson is listed as one of the trading centers to which business flows from surrounding communities. Mr. Harley interviewed various persons in seeking the information he desired.

Miss Margaret Burton of this town was a member of the class graduated and receiving degrees from Oberlin college yesterday. Miss Burton majored in physical education and in music (violin) during her course. She is to be a counsellor in a girls' camp in Ohio during the summer, and this fall will begin teaching in a school near Cleveland.
